ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF MYSORE.

ANNUAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1940-41.

PART I—ADMINISTRATIVE.

Dr. M. H. Krishna, M.A., D.LIT. (Lond.), continued to be the Director of Archaeological Researches in addition to his full-time professorial duties at the University. The post of Architectural Assistant remained vacant during the year; proposals regarding the filling up of the post have been submitted to Government. Mr. R. Rama Rao, B.A., Assistant to the Director, went on privilege leave for a month and a half from the afternoon of the 16th May of 1941, and Mr. L. Narasimhachar, M.A., Junior Technical Assistant, was appointed as acting Assistant to the Director during this period while Pandit R. Chakravarti acted as Junior Technical Assistant.

A temporary staff consisting of a pandit and a typist was sanctioned for work in connection with the rapid publication of the supplementary volumes of the Epigraphia Carnatica. The typist was entertained with effect from 24th April 1941, and arrangements are being made to secure the services of a suitable Pandit.

In connection with the study and inspection of ancient monuments in the State and the collection of inscriptions, the Director and the Junior Technical Assistant toured in several parts of the Kolar and Shimoga districts, while the Assistant to the Director toured in parts of the Mysore, Tumkur and Hassan districts for collecting and copying inscriptions. Among the ancient sites and monuments inspected and studied during the year may be mentioned those at Gudibande, Dēvaragudipalli, Sādali, Bētamangala, Hungunda, Maḍivāla, Mārkaṇḍēśvarabeṭṭa, Sivārapaṭṇa, Kōlār, Narasāpura, Hoskōṭe, Nandagudi, Bellūr, Ānandapura, Hosagunda, Gauja, Shikārpur, Belgāmi, Tālgunda, Bandalike, Chikkamāgaḍi, Maḷavalli, Kubaṭūr, Bhārangi, Kuppagaḍḍe, Udri, Sorab, Chandragutti, Ikkeri and Keladi.

In the neighbourhood of the Kolar Gold Fields was discovered a wide field of cromlechs. The ancient site at Hungunda seems to be important like that of Chandravalli near Chitaldrug; the potsherds, particularly, appear to present interesting data for study. There is room for thinking that the place might mark the site of a pre-Śātavāhana town. But the existence of cromlechs here like those met with at Brahmagiri suggests the possibility of there having been also a prehistoric iron age town in the vicinity, while the series of caves round about Sitiguḍḍa near Hungunda Paṭṇa appear to have been the dwelling places of man from the Neolithic times. In front of the Sitiguḍḍa cave was picked up a neolithic celt and nearby were discovered several cup-like depressions on the rocks. Hungunda seems to be a promising site for excavation and exploration. That it was a very important place during the Nolamba and Chōla periods is gathered from the many inscriptions at the place. The 'dimāla-diṇṇe' to the south-east of the village is an ash-heap and may represent the old site where gold was extracted, if the authors of the cromlechs were pre-historic gold diggers.

A tour in parts of the Shimoga district has resulted in the discovery, for the first time, of monuments belonging to the Rāshtrakūṭa period. Some information about the architecture and art of the period is collected and it seems to be important in the reconstruction of the early history of architecture and sculpture in Mysore.

The main cell of the Vijayēndra temple at Bētamangala is a monument of the 10th century A.D., though the large beautiful image inside the garbhagriha seems to belong to a much later period. At Śivārapaṭṇa the Sōmēśvara temple appears to belong to the time of Śīpurusha, the Ganga king (c. 753 A.D.). The Varadarāja temple at the same place has some fine pillars in its mukhamanṭapa. At Maḍivāla near Bētamangala the Svayambhuvēśvara temple is a structure built during the days of Iḷavañjirāya, grandfather of Iḷavañji Vāsudēvarāya, the builder of the Sōmēśvara temple at Kuruḍumale. Thus the temple is one of the early monuments of the east Mysore school of architecture with a combination of Hoysala and Draviḍian features.

The Mārkaṇḍēśvara temple on the Mārkaṇḍēśvara-beṭṭa near Vakkalēri is a large and interesting monument of the Draviḍian style discovered during the year. Though originally constructed in c. 1400 it appears to have been extended subsequently, during the days of Sugaṭūr Tammegaḍa. It is interesting to note that the temple was endowed by a Muslim general named Sitaḥ Khan for the merit of his master Dilāvar Khan in about 1556 A.D.

During the early part of the year, the Director's conservation notes in respect of the ancient monuments inspected by him during 1939-40 were forwarded to Government, the Deputy Commissioners, the Muzrai Commissioner and the Chief Engineer as usual for favour of information and necessary action.

Conservation.

Proposals for further renovation work at Bēlūr and Hālebid have been noted and urgent items submitted to Government. Arrangements have been made to prepare a bhaktavighraha statue of His late Highness Sri Krishnaraja Wadiyar IV in vañchalōha and install it at the Bēlūr temple. In connection with the conservation of the Gōmaṭēśvara colossus at Śravaṇabelagoḷa, the Committee met on 29th March 1941, and discussed the views of the several members. It was resolved that for the present experiments might be conducted with Vinyl Acetate at Bangalore and Śravaṇabelagoḷa on stones similar in quality to that of the image. An estimate for the construction of a masonry wall in place of the existing packing wall supporting the right wing of the lower portion of the statue was returned countersigned. In connection with the conservation of the other ancient monuments in the State, several estimates were received as usual. Most of them were passed while some were returned for revision. Among the estimates scrutinised and countersigned may be mentioned those pertaining to the following monuments :—

1. Śrikanṭhēśvara Temple at Naṅjangūḍ.
2. The temples at Beḷḷūr.
3. The temple at Kūḍli.
4. Do Hosabūdanūr.
5. Kailāśēśvara temple at Doḍmaḷūr.
6. Fort at Chitaldrug.
7. Hoṇḍa at Santebenmūr.
8. Tripurāntaka temple at Belgāmi.
9. The temples at Kōlār.

About 60 inscriptions were collected during the year of which 4 are copper plate records and the rest stone epigraphs. The majority of them have been edited in Part VI of the Report under the Director's guidance by Mr. R. Rama Rao assisted by the Epigraphy.

Pandits. Of these one is a copper plate record from Koṇḍrahaḷḷi, Hoskote Taluk, issued in the 39th regnal year of the Ganga king Kongaṇi Muttarasar, perhaps a name of Śrīpurusha, and recording the grant of the village Śāliggāme to a Brahman named Bhūtaśarma.

Another copper plate belonging to the village Vadanagal, Pāvagaḍa Taluk, records the creation of an agrahār named Bukkarāyapura by Bommaṇa, under the orders of Prince Bhūpati Voḍeyar, son of Bukka II, who is called heir-apparent (bhāvman sārvaabhauman). The grant was issued during the reign of the Vijayanagar king Harihara II. Bhūpati, although a son of Bukka II, the eldest son of Harihara II, did not succeed his grandfather on the throne. His uncle Dēvarāya I ascended the throne in 1406 and Bhūpati Voḍeyar remained as governor under him till about 1420.

A third copper plate grant from the village Chōḷayanahaḷḷi in Gndibande Taluk dated Śaka 1351 records the gift of the village Chōḷiṣeṭṭipalli, renamed Tryambakapura Agrahāra, to some Brahmans by Dēvarāya II of Vijayanagar. Among the donees the first to be mentioned is Kriyāśakti, called the world teacher (bhuvana-guru) of the Kāśyapa-gōtra and Yajuś-śākhā. The recording of the gōtra and sūtra of Kriyāśakti-guru, who exercised great influence on Dēvarāya II and his subordinates, is of some importance.

The fourth copper plate record of the year is of the reign of the Vijayanagar king Harihara II and mentions the governor of Gōvā named Bāchanṇa Voḍeyar or Bhāskara who granted an agrahāra village named Kāṇvapura.

Of the stone records one mentions the names of Vikramāditya, the Chālukya king, and Konguṇi Arasar, the Gaṅga king, as engaged in a fight with the Pallavas (Kāḍuveṭṭi). This stone record comes from Jangamarahalli in Pāvagaḍa Taluk. Another stone record found at Bechirak Dēvalāpura in Kolar Taluk belongs to the reign of the Vijayanagar king Sadāśiva and records some grant made for the temple of Mārkaṇḍēśvara by Sitāpaka Maluka Voḍeyar (Malik Sitab Khan?), agent of Dilāvarkhān, who was apparently a Mussalman. The record is dated Śaka 1479.

Another stone record found at Bēlūr records the gift of some lands to the guru Surēndratīrtha-śrīpāda of Bēlūr for the worship of the God Rāma and the maintenance of his matt by Guṇḍappadaṇṇāyaka under the direction of Teppada Nāgaṇṇa Voḍeyar, subordinate of Harihara II. It belongs to the year Bahudhānya which probably corresponds to 1398 A.D. A monk named Surēndratīrtha of the Mādhva sect is mentioned in the succession list of Śrī Rāghavēndrasvāmi Matt at Nañjanguḍ as the guru of Vijayēndra-tīrtha and a contemporary of Vyāsatīrtha who flourished in the reign of Kṛishṇarāya (1509–1529). Apparently this Surēndratīrtha belonged to a different lineage.

A few coins were acquired for the office Museum from Gwalior, Lucknow, the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, etc. The Numismatics. electro-type casts of coins prepared for exhibition at the Bangalore Museum were arranged and forwarded to the Curator of the Museum. Specimens of coins and coin impressions received for examination from some private persons were duly examined and returned after identification. A gold coin received from the Amildar of Chennagiri was also examined and returned. Some treasure trove coins discovered near Muḷbāgal and preserved at the Kōlār District Treasury were scrutinised. The coins of the Śāta-vāhana period discovered at the Chandravaḷḷi excavations were further studied and classified. A note on the East Chālukya coins in the possession of the Department has been prepared for publication in the detailed Annual Report for the year.

A manuscript entitled “Koḍagina-Kaifiyat” was obtained from the Records section of the General and Revenue Secretariat for examination. It is about 15' long and consists of one long sheet of paper written on both the sides in Kannaḍa. At the end it bears in English the signature of Vīrarājendra, the Raja of Coorg. It gives information about some battles fought during the fourth Mysore War (1798–99). A review of the manuscript is published in Part V of the Report.

About 54 books were acquired for the Library and one set of five copper plates and six coins for the office Museum.

sum of Rs. 530-12-9 was realised by the sale of departmental publications and photographs.

The success of the work of the Department was rendered possible by the sincere co-operation of the members of the office staff.

PART II—CONSERVATION OF ANCIENT MONUMENTS.

Conservation Note of the Director of Archæological Researches on the Monuments inspected during 1940-41.

KOLAR DISTRICT.

BHŌGANANDĪŚVARA TEMPLE, NANDI—(I CLASS).

It is necessary to preserve the Bhōganandīśvara temple, as far as possible, in its original form. No improvement should be given effect to which would affect the plan of the temple or is likely to mar the appearance of the ancient monument. Thus it is undesirable to allow any room to be put up anew in the kaisāle. If, as seems likely, the open space in between the yāgaśāle and the north-eastern kaisāle has to be enclosed so as to prevent the pilgrims from fouling the place, the introduction of ornamental cement concrete railings suitably coloured so as to match the neighbouring stones may be considered.

As regards the raising of the central ceiling of the yāgaśāle with a view to let out smoke, the removal of the brick and mortar work in the east and west sides of the ceiling may be suggested. It is not desirable to raise the roof itself by anything more than a few inches. A raised roof, particularly in front of the temple, would affect the view of the main temple.

The temple servants have been put to a lot of inconvenience owing to want of light in the pākaśāla. It is out of the question to provide windows in the side walls. Perhaps the introduction of some more electric lights, particularly where the cooking is done, would make matters better.

The whitewash and wax covering the sculptures, walls and pillars in the temple should be scraped off slowly and carefully. All further whitewashing should be strictly forbidden.

The pond to the south-east of the temple is a source of danger and nuisance in the premises. It may be kept under lock and key.

It is a pity that the Vaisya chaultry has been allowed to be constructed immediately to the north-east of the vinānas. The height of the building hides the graceful front view of the temple. As far back as 1934-35 the Director of Archæology disapproved of the construction of the building at the place where it stands at present and it is learnt that the Second Member was pleased to express his dislike of the existence of the building there when he had been to the place for inspection. At considerable cost the building has been constructed and a private party has been allowed to acquire proprietary rights in land belonging to a Protected Monument under the administration of the Government. It is now a problem how it could be made less prominent than the temple. Moreover the pilgrims that stay there during the jātra foul the entire premises. Recently a latrine too has been permitted to be constructed in the premises in spite of protest. It is desirable that all the non-government buildings should be removed; in due course the old maṭṭapas belonging to the temple may once again be opened out.

The temple is a First Class Ancient Monument deserving of preservation in a worthy manner.

Gudibande.

RĀMĒŚVARA TEMPLE ON THE HILL.

This temple is a muzrai institution which once enjoyed several inam lands. These lands have been reported to have been taken over by Government and an Archak is said to have been appointed on Rs. 12 per month. His salary is now reported to have been reduced to Rs. 6 on the ground that the yield of the lands is very little. As the Archak has to supplement his income by other means, the temple is in a neglected condition. Though from the architectural point of view the temple is not a very important institution, still as a monument of the early Pāllegārs who ruled at the place it deserves some attention. It is in need of repairs particularly regarding its roof which has become generally leaky. Rain water wets the whole area and sometimes even stagnates here and there. This stagnation has resulted in rendering the walls out of plumb in several places so that if immediate steps are not undertaken to repair the roof and set right the out of plumb slabs of the walls, the whole structure may come down very soon. It is also necessary to induce the Archak to look after the building better.

THE VENKAṬARAMAṆA TEMPLE IN THE VILLAGE.

This is also a monument built by one of the early Pāllegārs of the place. It happens to be an important institution in the locality deserving to be preserved intact. The roof is generally leaky so that rain water drips down in several places, wetting the wall slabs and the flooring of the temple. The vegetation growing here and there on the temple may also be removed. In other respects the temple is intact.

Devaragudipalli (near Bagepalli).

VENKAṬARAMAṆASVĀMI TEMPLE.

The temple is a muzrai institution very popular in the locality and maintained intact. But in some places in the navaraṅga the flooring is uneven. It may be set right when funds permit. On the left pilaster of the outer vestibule is a figure of Yoga-Narasimha for whom a brick and mortar niche has been built in recent times.

The niche may be removed. For the vāhanas which are kept in the navaraṅga a separate room may be given in the prākāra. The whitewashing on the walls and, other parts of the temple has covered the inscriptions and sculptures. It may be carefully and slowly scraped off without damage to the stone.

Betamangala.

THE VIJAYĒNDRA TEMPLE.

There is no doubt that the sanctum sanctorum of the temple was constructed some time during the 10th Century A.D., though it is possible that the present main image was consecrated even as late as the 16th or 17th Century A.D. But even this image is extraordinarily good and deserves to be preserved along with the temple. The temple is a minor muzrai institution and may be put into Class III of the Protected List for purposes of conservation. The mukhamanṭapa and the pātālāṅkaṇa are in a bad state so far as their roofing and their outer size-stone walls are concerned. It may be considered whether the removal of these outer walls would be advantageous for the better upkeep of the temple. They do not happen to form part of the original structure. The surroundings of the temple need to be cleared of all vegetation including the cocoanut tree on the south-east. The priest's quarters in the north-western corner of the area may be removed. A door made up of iron railings might be given to the manṭapa. The roof is in need of general repairs. It is reported that an estimate for Rs. 500 has been prepared and sent up for sanction. An estimate for the other items suggested above may also be prepared.

Madivala.

SVAYAMBHUVĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

This temple is a large Dravidian structure older than the Sōmēśvara temple at Kurudumale and as ornate. The main structure is almost intact though its roof is leaky in some places. The leaky portions may be repaired. But the prākāra and the porches particularly require immediate attention inasmuch as many of the wall slabs have fallen and are falling, being out of plumb in several places. The temple may be placed in Class III of the list of Ancient Monuments and the initial repairs may be got done. The surroundings require to be cleared of all vegetation and the view of the temple needs to be improved. The vegetation growing on the outer walls and tower of the main structure should be removed at once. The archak of the temple has built a brick granary in the north-east corner of the navaraṅga for storing his paddy. This may be removed and he may be strictly forbidden from using the temple and its premises as his dwelling place. There is a stone jagali or platform against the inner north wall of the navaraṅga. This appears to be old ; but it may be removed, if necessary.

To the east of the mahādvāra of the Pārvatī temple is a cell in the prakāra of the main temple which is used as a horse-stable by the priest and as a kalyāṇa-maṇṭapa by the villagers on occasions to celebrate marriages. The roof of this cell is in immediate danger of collapsing. It may be repaired.

The area comprising the main temple, its prakāra and mahādvāra, the Pārvatī and other temples as also the pillar, etc., in front of the main mahādvāra has been enclosed by a large outer prakāra which is now in ruins. In the north-east corner of this area is a pond with stone steps and good water. The steps need repairs and the pond may be railed off for protection.

Ramasagara (near Betamangala).

VENKATARAMAṆA TEMPLE.

Though this temple is architecturally unimportant, it seems that if the villagers are encouraged, the institution could be put into some order and worship allowed to continue. Otherwise the structure which is now very much dilapidated may come down before long. The outer wall slabs have gone out of plumb in several places and have collapsed in some. The roof has become generally leaky and the flooring is in a bad state. The temple is a muzrai institution.

Kolar Gold Fields.

CROMLECHS.

About 3 miles to the east of K. G. F. on the pipe line, and about half a mile to the north of the village of Hungunda, north of K. G. F. are wide areas comprising several acres of land in which are found cromlechs belonging to the prehistoric age. It is learnt that some of the cromlechs have been rifled owing to the fact that the villagers are ignorant of their historical importance. The antiquities found in them are reported to have been destroyed. Instructions may therefore be issued to the local Revenue officials to see that the cromlechs are not opened in future by the ignorant villagers. The stones forming the rings on the surface may not be broken to pieces for domestic and other purposes.

Hungunda.

CHAUDĒSVARI TEMPLE.

Among the temples in the village of Hungunda there are two which are important from the archæological point of view. One of them is the Rāmēśvara temple on the hill to the south of the village. It is a Chōla monument and is quite intact. The other is the Chaudēśvari temple which is situated at some distance to the east of the village. The structure is dilapidated and architecturally unimportant. But the images of the Seven Mothers inside the garbhagriha are old sculptures of about the Chōla period. They need protection and for their sake some repairs are necessary for the temple, particularly concerning its roof.

Vakkaleri.

MĀRKANḌĒŚVARA TEMPLE ON THE MĀRKANḌĒŚVARA BETṬA.

This institution has not been noticed up to now in any of the Annual Reports of this department. It is a large structure built in the Draviḍian style and going back to about the 14th Century A.D. and greatly extended during the succeeding periods under the Vijayanagar and Sugaṭūr rulers. The temple is sufficiently intact and with very little expenditure could be put into a decent form. For purposes of protection it may be included in Class III of the list of Ancient Monuments. The roof of the mukhamanṭapa is stated to be leaky in some places. The leaky portions may be cement-pointed. Some of the pillars in the verandah seem to be slanting. They may be examined. The outer prākāra walls are out of plumb in several places owing to the growth of vegetation on them. The slabs must be made quite free from the growth of trees between them. Whatever roots there might be should all be cut down and the joints cement-pointed. The roof of the kaisāle needs immediate attention. The well in front of the temple may be railed off for the sake of the safety of the pilgrims. Just inside the mahādvāra is a pool containing about 6' of water. If possible it may be filled up after draining out the water. The flooring of the courtyard in front of the temple may be made even and paved with stones. Since the temple is situated on the summit of a hill and commands a good prospect all round and since electricity is available at Vakkalēri, the question of installing electric lights in the institution may be considered. An approach road from Vakkalēri to the temple may also be made, if possible.

Sivarapatna.

SŌMĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Sōmēśvara temple appears to date from about the Chōla period, though it is even possible that the linga inside the main cell may hail from the Gaṅga times as can be surmised from the inscription of Srīpurusha Gaṅga standing to the north-east of the temple (c. 753 A.D). The temple has become dilapidated; but the villagers want to get the temple rebuilt in a better place in the village and install in it the main linga. They may be encouraged to contribute liberally towards the renovation of the old temple itself.

VARADARĀJA TEMPLE.

This structure is also dilapidated and its mukhamanṭapa which contains some good pillars is in a woeful state. The villagers may be encouraged to get this temple also renovated. The old inscriptions on the basement cornice of the temple should not be injured or hidden from view during the course of renovation. The garbhagriha is empty. But since the village has several sculptors of repute, it may be possible to encourage the villagers to get a new image of Varadarāja prepared and installed in the temple.

Bellur (near Kolar).

KANVEŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Kanvēśvara temple at Bellūr is about 700 years old and abounds in inscriptions. Its situation very near the high road makes it desirable that certain initial repairs to the monument should be effected and its appearance improved. The outer walls have gone out of plumb in some places. They may be set right using only the old materials, the joints of the slabs being properly cement-pointed. The roof requires to be cleared immediately of the vegetation growing on it and cement-pointed particularly in places where rain water drips through it. The surroundings may generally be made neat and tidy. The outer walls of the Pārvatī shrine may be plastered over including the tower of the main cell, its roof being cleared of the vegetation growing on it. An approach from the road may be made and a low compound wall may be constructed enclosing the whole temple area, if possible.

RĀMANĀTHA TEMPLE.

The leaky portions of the roof require proper cement-pointing. The outer walls have collapsed in several places and have been rebuilt in recent times higgledy-piggledy here and there. The collapsed portions may be properly rebuilt. The precincts may be cleared of all vegetation and a compound wall may be constructed. The southern doorway of the navaraṅga may once again be opened to let in more light. The brick platform on the north side of the interior of the navaraṅga may be removed and the flooring improved.

Hoskote.

VARADARĀJA TEMPLE.

The Varadarāja temple at Hoskōte is a minor muzrai institution requiring immediate repairs particularly in respect of the northern outer wall of the sukhānāsi. This wall is out of plumb and in danger of falling. The roof is also leaky in several places. The flooring is in a very bad condition. The mukhamanṭapa needs some kind of protection from the cattle which are making it their shelter. Reinforced concrete screens of suitable design may be inserted to a height of 3' if funds permit.

SHIMOGA DISTRICT.

Anandapura.

THE POND OF THE MAHANTI MATHA.

This pond is situated in a very attractive spot about 2 miles to the north-east of Anandapura. It is very large and well-built with steps of laterite blocks. It appears to be a monument of the Keḷadi dynasty and deserves, on account of its beautiful surroundings, to be conserved. The cost of renovation, too, would not be high since it is almost intact. A few minor measures may enhance its economic value also since it is provided with a sluice through which water is said to have been once irrigating the lands of Mallandūr. The rank vegetation growing here and there in the area may be cleared. The large tree growing in the south-western corner of the pond should immediately be cut down.

Hosagunda.

ĪŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Īśvara temple at Hosagunda is built in the Nāḍkalsi style by the Śāntaras and has a graceful appearance. It has become very much dilapidated owing to the fact that the village is far removed from it and that the villagers are generally loth to come to the jungle-clad surroundings of the temple. If the jungle could be cleared, they would perhaps have no objection to revive worship in the temple. The large tree that is growing right against the south wall of the temple must immediately be brought down. The wall slabs have been dislodged by the roots of trees and other vegetation. The roof and the flooring require general repairs.

Gauja.

GAUTAMĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Gautamēśvara temple at Gauja appears to date from about the Rāshṭrakūṭa period and deserves to be preserved in its original form as far as possible. As it is, it consists of the garbhagriha only with no protection above. It is learnt that an estimate has been prepared to re-build the temple, dismantling its apsidal cell. The apsidal plan is peculiar and should not be interfered with. The construction of a mukhamanṭapa may be permitted as also a roof for the temple.

Belgami.

KEDĀRĒŚVARA TEMPLE—II CLASS.

At the time of inspection the temple premises were in a very unsatisfactory state. People had converted the institution into a dharmaśāla, using indiscriminately the premises for cooking purposes. Travellers had carved their names here and there on the polished pillars of the mukhamanṭapa. Some of the names have been carved very recently. The surroundings were in a very dirty condition. The temple is a second class monument and the following measures of conservation appear to be absolutely necessary :—

1. A compound wall and a gate securely lockable may be provided.
2. The ugly mud walls of the Nandi shrine must be removed.
3. It is said that the ceiling of the Prabhudēva temple is very leaky. This may be looked into.
4. The dilapidated structure to the south of the temple area may be examined with a view to making it useful as a kitchen and store.
5. The thick chunam coating in the inside of the temple may be carefully and slowly scraped off. The outer walls and the towers may be cleared of their mortar coating and the slab joints may be pointed with cement suitably coloured so as to match with the slabs.
6. The mahādvāra has become much ruined owing to neglect. Some of the pillars are out of plumb. They may be set right and a gate provided. Its tiled roof may be replaced by a better one, preferably of stone, if the weight will not be too much.
7. The roof of the main temple is said to be leaky in some places. The leaky portions may be cement-pointed.
8. In the south-east corner of the temple area a person is said to have been buried about 15 years ago. Instructions may be given to his relatives to exhume the body and bury it elsewhere.
9. The Archak of the temple may be given strict instructions not to allow the people to foul the place and use the premises as a musafirkhana. A board declaring the monument to be a protected one may be put up prominently in front of the temple.

THE BHĒRUNDĒŚVARA PILLAR.

During the course of constructing the size stone platform for the new Bhērūṇḍa image, the inscription on the east base of the pillar has been entirely covered up. It is necessary that the inscription should be made visible.

Transverse cracks have sprung up both at the bottom of the pillar and at the top. It is difficult to think that the weight at the top will not force it to come down. The newly given steel hoops and the steel supports may not be enough to save the pillar from falling down. Minute examination by the P.W.D. seems to be necessary.

The smaller inscription that stands a little distance to the south-west of the pillar may be carefully removed from there and set up near the platform of the Bhērūṇḍa pillar.

TRIPURĀNTAKA TEMPLE.

1. The basement of the temple to the south of the mukhamanṭapa has recently been repaired and its platform is paved with cement. The smooth surface of the pavement requires to be made rough and coloured to match the stone.
2. The flooring of the mukhamanṭapa and navaraṅga may be made even.
3. The slabs of the walls have been pointed with cement but the colour of the cement does not match the colour of the slabs. The cement may therefore be scraped off carefully and the joints again pointed with cement coloured to match the neighbouring slabs.
4. The walls may be cleaned of all dust and patination and restored to their original colour.
5. The two pillars on the jagali of the eastern porch of the mukhamanṭapa seem to be out of plumb and leaning to one side. They may be examined and the porch strengthened so that it may act as a buttress to the pillars.
6. The southern beam of the above porch is cracked. It may be examined and, if necessary, replaced by another. If any roof is proposed to be constructed for the porch, care should be taken that it will not add undue weight to the structure.
7. The basement all round the temple may be made even and paved with cement as has been done on the south side of the mukhamanṭapa. The dentil mouldings, however, should be left visible.
8. The outer walls of the temple seem to be out of plumb in many places, particularly to the north of the Viṣṇu shrine where a vertical crack has sprung up in the wall. The walls may be examined and, if necessary, re-built where they are out of plumb. While re-building them original materials should be used as far as possible. No size stones should be used.
9. Several of the images inside the temple have been restored in an ugly way. The cement restoration of their broken parts may be removed very carefully.
10. The bilva trees to the east of the temple, the tamarind trees to the south and the tree to the west should all be cut down and the premises made clean.
11. The two houses to the south of the temple as also one or two houses to the west may be acquired and dismantled so that there may be a large open yard in front of the temple to the south and more open space to the west. In the front yard may be preserved the several images lying in a neglected condition in various parts of the village.
12. A compound wall may be put up all round the temple including the open area mentioned above.
13. If possible, the thick brick roof of the temple may be examined with a view to reduce its weight.

14. Some of the navaraṅga ceiling slabs have sprung lengthwise cracks. They may be examined.

15. The total cost of attending to all the items mentioned above may come up to Rs. 10,000. It may be spread over two or three years, the repairs of the temple proper being taken up in the first instance.

SŌMEŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Sōmeśvara temple is generally intact. But some minor repairs are necessary to improve its appearance. The area consisting of the temple and the fields around may be enclosed with a railing all round. A door may be provided for the navaraṅga doorway. The trees and plants growing by the side of the walls and between the wall slabs may be removed and the joints cement-pointed with cement coloured to match the stones. No private buildings may be permitted to be constructed near the temple. The yard in front of the temple may be levelled up and converted into a playground for the children of the school. The steps leading up to the temple may be improved and the jagali set right. The flooring of the navaraṅga requires to be made even. One of the sukhanāsi ceiling slabs is cracked. It may be examined.

KĀLIKĀDĒVI TEMPLE.

The slabs of the outer walls are out of plumb and require re-setting in several places, the joints being properly cement-pointed.

NĪLAKAṆṬHĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The outer walls and basement of the temple are out of plumb in many places and are overgrown with rank vegetation. They may be set right.

ONAKEHONḌADA-BASAVANṆA TEMPLE.

The structure has become very much dilapidated, the outer walls and the tower having collapsed beyond all possibility of being renovated without very heavy cost. The images in the vicinity may be removed to the compound of the Tripurāntaka temple.

IMAGES LYING IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE VILLAGE.

All these may be removed to the compound of the Tripurāntaka temple and preserved. In a backyard called Kamnārara-hittalu, there are two beautiful images of a Yakshi and a male attendant which require to be immediately removed to a place of protection. In the kaṇa or hittalu belonging to Gurupāda Gauḍa, there are lying neglected some good images of a Nāga couple intertwining. They may also be preserved in the compound of the Tripurāntaka temple.

Talagunda.VIRABHADRA TEMPLE.

An image of Virabhadra which appears to have been originally worshipped in the temple is now lying buried in the open verandah behind the temple. It is a good piece which is worthy of being preserved in the maṇṭapa of the temple.

PRANAVĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The temple has been renovated and a low compound wall has been put up. All the stray images in the neighbourhood may be collected and preserved in the compound. The temple enclosure may be kept clean and made tidy, the lantana and other trees growing up here and there being cleared. The level of the open yard in front of the temple is higher than that of the flooring of the temple. Rain water may thus enter the temple unless prevented by suitable drainage in front of the doorway. The famous Kadamba inscription pillar seems to be slanting a little to the south-east. It may be examined and the pillar set right if necessary.

Bandalike.BASTI.

The basti is a good example of the fully developed Chālukyan style and is well worthy of preservation as an Ancient Monument under Class III. The premises may be cleared of all vegetation and the fallen slabs of the walls and ceilings restored to their original places. The joints of the slabs may be cement-pointed. The roof requires to be made water-proof and the flooring to be made even and cement-pointed.

SŌMĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

This is an ornate structure containing some very beautiful screens and doorways of the twelfth century. It is completely a Chālukyan structure worthy of preservation under Class III of the Ancient Monuments. The outer walls have become out of plumb in several places and the beams and ceiling slabs have become dislodged here and there. The roof and the flooring require general repairs. The thick vegetation growing on the temple and in the vicinity must be cut down and the temple surroundings made neat and tidy.

TRIMŪRTI TEMPLE.

This temple is a triple-celled structure of the Chālukyan period and deserves to be preserved as a monument of Class III. The surroundings may be cleared of the jungle and the teak trees planted in front may be cut down. The towers and roof as also the flooring of the temple require general repairs. The slabs of the walls have to be re-set in some places, the joints being properly cement-pointed. The ground around the temple may be levelled up and made neat.

Chikkamagadi.KALLĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

Many of the ceiling slabs have come down as also some of the slabs belonging to the outer walls. They require to be re-set and the temple surroundings cleared of all rubbish. Cooking inside the temple premises may be forbidden.

JAIN BASTI.

The basti is generally intact and it will not cost much to effect some minor repairs. The vegetation on the roof and in the neighbourhood may be cleared and the plants growing on the monument may be cut down. The roof requires general repairs. The premises should be levelled up. If possible, a compound wall may be constructed. The temple may be included in Class III of the protected list.

Malavalli.PILLAR INSCRIPTION.

The platform that has recently been constructed at the base of the pillar requires to be lowered down by about a foot and a half since it has hidden from view about 13 letters in each line of the inscription. The base of the pillar is lying in the drain to the south-east of the Kallēśvara temple. If possible it is desirable, to get it joined to the pillar and secured by iron hoops, care being taken not to damage the inscription.

Kubatur.KAIṬABHĒŚVARA TEMPLE—II CLASS.

The temple is a fine monument of the Chālukyan style hailing from about the 11th century A.D. It is an ancient monument of the second class and deserves to be carefully preserved. The following points of conservation may be suggested :—

1. It may be provided with an ancient monument board.
2. It may be provided with a compound wall inclusive of the smaller temples and running at a distance of about 30 yards on the west. Against the west wall may be built a line of brick buildings consisting of the priest's quarters, the pākaśālā, a store room and an extra room, the priest being forbidden from using the Pārvatī shrine as his dwelling place thereafter. Since the temple is in a jungle and a person is needed for its protection, it is necessary that the priest should live in an out-house. The temple has been previously attacked by robbers.
3. The mud walls in the western part of the building and on its south-east may be completely removed, opening to view the garbhagriha doorway.

4. The floor of the maṇṭapa which is paved only in the central aisle may be provided with concrete flooring, the stone slabs being pointed with coloured cement.

5. The original bull was broken and removed some years ago. A new one may be provided. If possible, the unbroken fine bull in the ruined Pañchaliṅgēśvara temple at Belgāni which belongs to the same school and period may be brought over and installed in the square of the maṇṭapa just to the east of the central ceiling.

6. The whitewash and soot on the ceilings and pillars may be carefully removed without damage to the carvings or the polish.

7. The tower may be cleared of all plants, the old mortar work scraped off and the joints of the stones pointed with cement coloured to match the stones.

8. The dilapidated and ugly-looking vacant modern structure to the south-east of the temple may be dismantled and the ground levelled up.

9. The compound should be levelled and properly furnished with drainage to lead off water.

10. The wood work inside the garbhagriha may be completely removed. The temple may be provided with movable lampstands and a thin steel rod for suspending the water vessel over the līṅga.

It is learnt that the temple has about Rs. 1,500 as reserve fund.

PARŚVANĀTHA BASTI.

The basti is a structure of the Chālukyan times having some well carved images. For the sake of these images the following points of conservation are suggested :—

1. The ceiling slabs which have gone out of plumb here and there may be set right and the roof generally repaired and made waterproof.

2. A lockable wooden door may be provided in the place of the existing one which has become useless.

3. The flooring may be generally repaired.

4. A Jain Archak may be appointed to look after the monument.

5. The basti may be included in Class III for purposes of protection.

6. It is learnt that the institution used to enjoy several inam lands. Worship may be restored, if possible.

7. The images in the compound deserve to be better preserved.

RĀMĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Rāmēśvara temple is almost intact. Only the surroundings require to be made neat and tidy. The institution may be placed in Class III for purposes of conservation, since it happens to be a genuine monument of the Rāshtrakūṭa period.

Bharangi.BASTI.

The structure is almost intact. It may be considered if it is possible to encourage some Jain priest to offer worship in the basti.

KALLĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The temple is very much dilapidated, its outer walls having collapsed in several places. The villagers may be encouraged to renovate it.

BANAŚANKARĪ TEMPLE.

Three of the images in this temple, viz., Nos. 1, 3 and 4 from the left of the row, are worthy of being preserved in a museum, or looked after carefully in case there should be any difficulty in removing them to a museum. For the time being the temple may be generally repaired and a local person, preferably the Patel or the Shanbhog, instructed to look after them well. The surroundings may be cleared of all vegetation. The roof of the temple requires to be made waterproof.

Kuppagadde.ĪŚVARA TEMPLE.

1. The temple is sufficiently intact having been repaired about five years ago. But there has been put up an ugly zinc sheet roofing above the mukhamanṭapa. It must be removed and the original roof repaired to prevent rain water from soaking through the ceilings.

2. Several of the ceiling slabs are cracked and require to be examined and cement-pointed.

3. Cooking inside the open manṭapa should strictly be forbidden. An ancient monument board may be supplied and set up.

4. The plants growing on the walls, etc., of the temple should be cleared. The priest may be asked to look after such work occasionally.

5. The surroundings have a thick growth of lantana and some trees. These may be cut down and the place made neat and tidy.

Udri.DILAPIDATED ĪŚVARA TEMPLE.

This temple stands to the north-east of the village and is so much ruined that it is impossible to renovate it. Even the single celi that is standing now is about to collapse. But its architectural members consisting of pillars, pilasters, doorways, etc., may be removed to a safe place since they show good workmanship.

JAIN BASTI.

This stands to the west of the village. It is almost intact and is in need of certain minor measures of conservation. Some of the ceilings have sprung cracks, particularly the central ceiling and the one to its north. These may be examined and set right. The roof may be repaired and made water-proof. The front part of the temple and the surroundings may be cleared of all vegetation. The plants growing on the walls and tower may be cut down and the slab joints cement-pointed. The inscription stone lying to the south-east of the temple may be set up properly so that its letters may not get damaged. The front wall of the temple may be repaired.

ŚIVA TEMPLE.

This temple is situated about a hundred yards to the east of the basti mentioned above. It requires a concrete roof and the slabs of the walls need to be cement-pointed at the joints. The surroundings should be made neat and tidy.

LAKSHMĪNĀRAYAṆA TEMPLE.

This temple stands about a hundred yards to the south-east of the Śiva temple. As it is, it consists of a single cell which has recently been repaired and provided with a doorway. Worship may be restored in the temple.

REPAIRS AND MAINTENANCE OF MONUMENTS.

[Based on the Reports of the Sub-Division Officers.]

The annual reports in respect of the repairs and maintenance of ancient monuments have been received only from the Mysore, Chitaldrug, Kolar, Hassan, Kadur and Shimoga Districts. The Sub-Division Officers of the other districts have not so far forwarded their inspection reports.

CHITALDRUG DISTRICT.

CHITALDRUG SUB-DIVISION.

The Rock-cut temple at Rāmadurga and the Edicts of Aśōka in Siddāpur, Moḷakālmuru Taluk, are both reported to be in good condition.

DAVANGERE SUB-DIVISION.

The ancient monuments in this sub-division are as under :—

1. Hariharēśvara temple, Harihar—I class.
2. Basti, Heggere—II class.

3. Īśvara temple, Ānekonda—II class.
4. Īśvara temple, Nanditāvare—III class.
5. Do Nandiguḍi—III class.

These five monuments in the Dāvangere Sub-Division are reported to be in good condition.

SHIMOGA DISTRICT.

The Deputy Commissioner, Shimoga District, has forwarded the following report on the working and preservation of the Ancient Monuments in the Shimoga District during the year 1940-41 :—

The appended statement gives the names of ancient monuments in this District and the particulars regarding their inspection by the several officers during the year under report.

There has been an addition to the list of ancient monuments—Shaji's tomb at Hodigere has been declared a protected monument under section 3 (1) of the Ancient Monuments Preservation Act, vide Government Notification No. E. 209—Univ. 216-39-66, dated 16th July 1940. In response to this notification, inviting objections, if any, Kadamma, mother and guardian of the minor khatedar of the land on which this tomb lies has submitted an objection petition claiming ownership of the land so far for the purpose of preserving the monument in question and praying that the amount spent on the land may be paid to her together with the value of the land before declaring the tomb an ancient monument. A report was therefore submitted to Government. Final orders of Government under section 3 (3) of the Act regarding the confirmation or withdrawal of the notification have not so far been received. Sanction has since been accorded to the proposal to acquire 1/2 an acre of land for the purpose in G. O. No. E. 535-37—Univ. 16-39-87, dated 14th August 1941, the cost of acquisition having been ordered to be met out of the University funds as a special case.

Condition.—All the institutions are reported to be in a fairly good condition. The question of effecting repairs to some of the institutions is under correspondence. It is reported that estimates for certain repairs to the Bastis at Narasāpur and to the Śrī Trimūrti Nārāyaṇa Temple at Banda-like in Shikārpur Taluk have been called for from the Assistant Engineer, Shikārpur. The roof of the Śrī Mallikārkjunasvāmi temple at Kalasi in Sāgar Taluk is reported to be leaky and the Assistant Engineer, Sāgar, has been requested to prepare an estimate. Jungle clearance in the palace site outside the fort at Nagara is stated to be under correspondence with the Public Works Department. The question of effecting repairs to the Śrī Kaiṭabhēśvara Temple at Kubatūr and of constructing a compound wall is engaging attention.

Repairs.—During the year under report, repairs are reported to have been effected by the Public Works Department to the following institutions :

1. Sivappa Naik's Fort at Nagar—Clearance of jungle at a cost of Rs. 25.
2. Devaganga ponds at Basavana Byana, Hosanagar Taluk—Resetting the fallen slabs at a cost of Rs. 46.
3. Bastis and Inscriptions at Humcha—Urgent repairs at a cost of about Rs. 50.

Establishment.—The following institutions continued to entertain the establishment noted against them :—

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Sri Kudli Ramesvaradevaru temple | ... One servant on Rs. 2 per mensem |
| 2. Sri Bhadravati Lakshminarasimha Devaru | ... One servant on Rs. 4 per mensem. |
| 3. Santebennur Honda and Musafirkana | ... One care taker paid out of District Board Funds. |
| 4. Sri Belagavi Kedareshwara and 2 other temples | ... One care-taker on Rs. 4 per mensem paid out of Nehami allowances. |
| 5. Kubatur Kaiṭabhesvara Temple | ... Care-taker. |
| 6. Nagar Devaganga Pond | ... Care-taker on Rs. 7 per mensem paid out of State Funds. |
| 7. Melige Ananthanatha Basti | ... One care-taker on Rs. 2 per mensem. |

General.—The Muzrai Commissioner paid a visit to the Sri Rāmēśvara Temple at Keḷadi during the year under report in company with the Deputy Commissioner.

ŚRĪ RAMEŚVARASVĀMI TEMPLE ON THE HILL AND ŚRĪ VENKĀṬA-RAMAṆASVĀMI TEMPLE, GUḌIBAṆḌA.

The Assistant Engineer, Chikballapur Sub-Division, has been requested to furnish estimates in respect of the repairs to these temples. As soon as they are received further proposals will be taken up.

Among the monuments inspected by the Director of Archæological Researches during the year there are not only those which are already on the list of Ancient Monuments, some of them being declared 'Protected', but also those which are not so included. The former, of course, require the attention of the D. P. W., while in the case of the latter other departments of Government like the Muzrai, or private bodies might be interested. In all the cases the recommendations are from the point of view of the Archæological Department; and the proposals are made according as the monuments need conservation. The Archæological Department is primarily interested in the upkeep of the 'Protected' or 'Ancient' monuments as admitted in the list, by reason of their artistic or historical importance. As regards other monuments, wherever any need is observed, a recommendation is made, the idea being that all deserving monuments may be put into order by those interested in them at least by effecting the initial repairs so far as is possible. Some of the monuments might be of interest from the point of view of the Muzrai Department particularly. In such cases it is for the Muzrai Department to consider these proposals. In some other cases it has been felt that the local people might be encouraged to keep a monument in good order. In these cases a contribution from the villagers might be taken and the temples repaired. If, however, no funds of any kind are available, the Director's proposals cannot evidently be given effect to, for such monuments are not on the conservation list of the Archæological Department.

REPORT ON THE CONSERVATION OF ANCIENT MONUMENTS IN THE STATE DURING THE YEAR 1940-41, BY THE GOVERN-MENT ARCHITECT, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, BANGALORE,
FOR 1940-41.

PART III—STUDY OF ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND SITES.

KOLAR DISTRICT.

Mulbagal.

The larger temples of Mulbāgal have already been described in the Annual Report of this department for the year 1930, pp. 17–18. Some of the smaller temples which deserve notice here are : the Nāchchāramma temple at the foot of the Mulbāgal hill, a ruined temple about a hundred yards to its south-west and the Vidyāśaṅkara temple which is situated beside the tank called Śankara Tīrtha at a little distance to the south-east of Mulbāgal.

NĀCHCHĀRAMMA TEMPLE.

The Nāchchāramma temple stands at the foot of the hill. It is a cave temple with a navaraṅga built in front whose doorway is to the south. A flight of steps leads into the cave shrine of the goddess. The deity, about 3½' high, is rude and is called Pārvatī by the local people. But in the inscription No. Mulbāgal 7 of 1416 A.D. the name of the goddess is given as Nāchidēvī and she is called the chief goddess of the place. The structure is of the 15th century.

The navaraṅga is plain and has in the central square four Draviḍian pillars with cubical and octagonal mouldings. On the cubical mouldings appear padma medallions in relief. The capitals are of the imitation ribbed pattern met with in the 14th and 15th century structures at Terakaṇāmbi and elsewhere in South Mysore. Two rude images, one of Gaṇēśa and the other of Mahishāsuramardīnī, are set up in the navaraṅga.

The temple is not architecturally important. The occurrence of the capitals of pillars usually met with in South Mysore is however to be noted.

RUINED TEMPLE ON THE HILL.

Since the main god of the temple on the hill is missing and there is no inscription referring to the temple, it is not known for which god the temple was built. The temple is much ruined and stands on a hillock rising immediately to the south-east of the main hill at Mulbāgal. It is a granite structure consisting of a garbhagṛīha, an open vestibule and a navaraṅga, of which the last has two entrances—one on the east and the other on the south. In workmanship the structure reminds us of the 14th and 15th century temples of the Vijayanagar period.

The outer walls are plain and are raised on a basement consisting of two plain right-angled cornices. The eaves have a sharp curve with a row of sea-horses above them as at Terakāṇambi and elsewhere. The pillars inside the navaraṅga are Draviḍian in style having cubical, octagonal, sixteen- and thirty-two-sided mouldings. The capitals have the imitation ribbed mouldings and plantain bud hangings. The ceilings are all plain except for a padma medallion appearing on the central one. The temple appears to have had a tower originally; but this has completely disappeared now. The structure is not architecturally important.

VIDYĀ-ŚĀṆKARA TEMPLE.

The Vidyā-Śaṅkara temple is situated to the north-west of Śaṅkara Tirtha. It is a granite structure endowed in 1389 A.D. by Bukka II King of Vijayanagar. It has now become dilapidated and is not architecturally important.

Date. It consists of a garbhagṛiha enshrining a low liṅga called the Vidyā-Śaṅkara liṅga, a closed vestibule and a navaraṅga having a doorway on the south. In front of the navaraṅga doorway is a porch of three squares connecting which and another dilapidated mono-celled shrine is another porch. The brick tower above the garbhagṛiha of the temple is much ruined.

LAKSHMĪ-NĀRĀYAṆA TEMPLE.

To the west of the above-mentioned temple is another smaller temple, also ruined. It perhaps originally enshrined the god Lakshmī-Nārāyaṇa mentioned in Mulbāgal 10 of 1339 A.D.

VIGHNĒŚVARA SHRINE.

The mono-celled Vighnēśvara shrine lies a few yards to the west of the Vidyā-Śaṅkara temple. It is a granite structure built to enshrine a relieve figure of Gaṇēśa carved on a large boulder which contains several inscriptions in Kannaḍa and Nāgarī.

Goribidnur.

VENKATARAMAṆASVĀMI TEMPLE.

The Venkataramaṇasvāmi temple is a very plain structure of about the Nāyak period consisting of a garbhagṛiha, a closed vestibule of three squares and a raṅga-maṇḍapa having in its middle square four Draviḍian pillars with cubical and eight-sided mouldings.

Plain structure.

The main image is about 4' high. It is four-handed, with dāna, chakra, śankha and gadā. It is very rudely carved. Similarly the images guarding the garbhagriha doorway are also rude and dwarfish. In the vestibule are kept a stone image of the goddess Alamēlammā and a metallic processional group of Janārdana. The image of the goddess is four-handed with abhaya, padma, padma and dāna. The prabhāvali is of the same stone.

Rude images.

Gudibande.

The history of Gudibande is given in the Annual Report of this department for 1914. The place is said to have derived its name from the temple (guḍi) that is built on a rock (baṇḍe) to the east of the place. The tank of the village which is called Baira-sāgara is said to have been constructed by Baire Gauḍa who was a Pāllegār of the place and is known to have built also the fortress on the hill which rises immediately to the north of the village. A little distance to the south of the village there is a hamlet called Haḷe-Gudibande which is said to have been the older town.

History of the place.

(Pl. II, 1).

The temple from which the name of the place is said to have been derived is dedicated to Ībala (or Ahōbila) Narasimha worshipped in the form of a natural stone. There is no image. The structure is really a cave shrine with stone walls built on the four sides in front of the cave. Above the boulder which contains the cave is constructed a brick and mortar tower. The temple faces south.

Cave shrine.

The cave is divided into two chambers of which the inner one forms the garbhagriha and the outer one a maṇḍapa. The latter has a doorway guarded by dvārapāla figures. On the north outer wall of the maṇḍapa appear rude relievo figures of Vāmana, Rāma, Varāha and Ugra-Narasimha. There are also crude carvings of a matsya and a serpent.

The structure appears to be of the 17th or even of the 18th century. It is not important architecturally. A new inscription was discovered to the south-west of the temple.

GĪPĀLAKRISHṆA TEMPLE.

The Gōpālakrishṇa temple which is now much ruined stands about 50 yards to the north of the Ībala Narasimha temple. It consists of a garbhagriha, an open vestibule, a navaraṅga and a porch. The outer walls which had been constructed of brick have all mostly disappeared. The brick tower too is gone. The main image of the temple is missing.

THE GUḌIBAṆḌE HILL.

The fortified hill at Guḍibaṇḍe is locally called Surasadmagiri. The following are the several points of interest that we come across as

Points of interest. we ascend the hill :—

1. Āñjanēya temple.
 2. Rock-cut steps.
 3. First line of fortifications with bastion. There are rock-cut steps by the side of the fort walls.
 4. Second line of fortifications provided with bastions.
 5. A dome or pool of water.
 6. A cross wall connecting the main fort and built to protect the gateway mentioned below (No. 7).
 7. Natural gateway formed by boulders.
- The two lines of fortifications mentioned above are free from the use of mortar. They have also no parapets.
8. Bastion with which is connected the cross wall mentioned in No. 6.
 9. A dome or pool of water.
 10. Gateway and third line of fortifications. The gateway and the walls have brick and mortar parapets above, which evidently seem to have been put up during the Mosiem period. The parapets are provided with musket holes and cannon platforms. The stone slabs used in the construction of this line of fort walls are neatly dressed and pointed with mortar. The gateway consists of six squares and the two rows of pillars belonging to it are all plain with cubical mouldings.
 11. Kṛishṇa temple.—This temple is immediately behind the gateway described above and has become very much dilapidated. But it indicates that the gateway was originally a Hindu construction. The structure is very plain with its outer walls built of rubble in some places and of brick and mortar in others. It has a garbhagriha, an open vestibule and a front maṇḍapa. The four central pillars of the last are Dravidian in style and contain cubical and eight-sided mouldings. The ceilings and the doorway jambs are all plain. The main god of the temple is missing. The structure is said to belong to the period of Rāme Gauḍa, the brother-in-law of Baire Gauḍa, the Pāllegar of the place.

12. A group of about six dones.
13. Grinding mill of stone, probably used for making gunpowder.
14. A bastion belonging to the third line of fortifications. It is provided with not only the usual musket holes and cannon platform but also with underground rooms entered by two narrow flights of steps. The underground rooms were perhaps used for storing gunpowder or as guard rooms.
15. A deserted and ruined temple.
16. Gateway with diḍḍi-bāgilu. Fourth line of fortifications provided with brick parapets, etc., like the third line.
17. Above the gateway is a bastion belonging to the fifth line of fortifications. The brick parapet above the bastion has the relief figure of a lotus having minute petals.
18. Another natural gateway formed by two large boulders. To the west of the left boulder is a sally port leading down the hill on the west.
19. A cross wall connecting another line of fortifications.
20. A natural gateway formed by boulders.
21. Another gateway.
22. Old smithy beneath overhanging boulders to the left of the boulders mentioned above.
23. Another cross wall connecting a bastion.
24. An arched gateway having a Gaja-Lakshmī group on its lintel. In a cross wall to the left of this gateway on the outside is a small stone relievo figure of Hanumān. The presence of Hanumān and Gaja-Lakshmī indicates that the gateway is Hindu in construction. The arch indicates Muslim influence. Above the gateway is a high brick parapet which is undoubtedly of the Moslem period. Probably the construction is of the days of Hyder or Tipu.
25. A maṇṭapa probably used as a powder magazine.
26. A bastion further up with a fort wall running westward.
27. A cross wall running at right angles to the bastion mentioned above and provided with two narrow openings at bottom which were probably used for observing the enemy.
28. Bastion with a row of powder magazines to the right. The parapet above the magazines is connected with a huge rocky boulder.
29. A flight of steps leading up to another fort wall. To the left of the steps are the ruins of an old structure which appears to have faced east and been provided with a low brick and mortar railing in front and an arched narrow window, also of brick and mortar, on the south. The structure was perhaps used as a chāraḍi.

30. A done or pool of water to the north of the gateway mentioned in No. 24. The wall of the gateway is carried northwards and then is constructed in a curve so as to bound the outer margin of the pool: and further up it is connected with a huge boulder.
31. Fort wall built of large slabs and provided with a gateway (Pl. II, 2). Above there are battlements on one of which is carved the figure of a man's head. The slabs of the wall are joined one to another by grooves cut on their edges. No mortar is used. In front of the gateway there is a stone-built maṇṭapa with Draviḍian pillars. The eaves of this maṇṭapa have a row of small hanging lotus buds. The fort wall, the maṇṭapa and the gateway are all evidently Hindu in construction. On the inside of the gateway there is a maṇṭapa supported on Draviḍian pillars having the cubical and eight-sided mouldings.
32. Done.—The water of this done is said to be very deep. It is a perennial spring with good drinking water.
33. Rock-cut steps.
34. Granary.—The building is now used as a place for entertainments.
35. Fort wall which is in continuation of the wall mentioned under 31. The wall surrounds the huge central rock on top of the hill and on the rock are built the granary mentioned above (No. 34) and the temple mentioned below (No. 36).
36. Rāmēśvara temple.—This is a structure of the late Vijayanagar period consisting of a garbhagriha, a vestibule and a front maṇṭapa with a pillar in front. The temple faces east. The outer walls are plain and the slabs are joined by grooves and mortar. The pillars of the front maṇṭapa are Draviḍian, having the usual cubical and other mouldings. On the cubical mouldings appear the relievo figures of Gaṇēśa, lion, Nandi, peacock, monkey, yāli, nāgabandha, liṅga, lady, etc. Only the central ceiling is deep and raised on two sets of corner stones with a low padma pendant in the centre. In the vestibule are kept rude small stone images of Gaṇēśa and Nandi. The liṅga in the main cell is small. The pillar in front of the temple is ornate, though carved of granite. On a carved cubical base rises a sixteen-fluted shaft which is surmounted successively by ornamental, cubical, wheel-shaped and lotus-shaped mouldings. The capitals have plantain bud hangings. Above the capital appears a square abacus well carved on its four sides with downward dentil mouldings. The four corners of the base of the pillar have rearing lions while the facades of the base have the relievo figures of Sūrya on his seven-wheeled chariot (west), Nandi couching (north), Virabhadra (east) and Kaṇṇappa (south) kicking the liṅga. The plinth on which the pillar stands consists of three cornices of which the one at the top has the kīrtimukha ornamentation.

To the north of the temple is the Pārvatī shrine which contains an image of the late Vijayanagar period. The image is like the Apītakuchāmbā and Girijāmbā images at Nandi.

CHANDRANĀTHA BASTI.

The village of Guḍibaṇḍe appears to have been a prosperous Jaina settlement also. There are two principal bastis at the place and a hillock called Pāda Beṭṭa where the old Jaina monks are said to have been performing sanyasana.

Jaina vestiges.

The Chandranātha basti is also known as the Chikka Basti and appears to date from about the Vijayanagar period judging from the pillars of the navaraṅga and of the mukha-maṇṭapa. The structure consists of a square garbhagriha, a closed vestibule, a navaraṅga and a front maṇṭapa, the last with a pātālāṅkaṇa attached to it. The pātālāṅkaṇa is approached by a flight of steps flanked by elephants on either side. The main image in the garbhagriha is of white marble and in the seated posture. It is about a foot in height. Several metallic images are kept in the vestibule. They are all of the different Tīrthankaras. On the cubical mouldings of the four central pillars of the navaraṅga appear the relievo figures of a cow, a crescent, a peacock and a serpent, and several gods and goddesses. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga is deep and raised on four sets of corner stones with a relievo padma in the centre. On the cubical mouldings of the pillars of the mukha-maṇṭapa appear the relievo figures of birds and animals. The four pillars of the pātālāṅkaṇa are however sixteen-fluted. A brick and mortar niche in the parapet above the pātālāṅkaṇa contains the stucco image of Chandranātha with his emblem, the crescent, on the pedestal.

DODḌA BASTI.

This basti is to the north-west of the Chikka Basti and appears to be much older than the latter, though plain. It is raised on a basement consisting of two cornices of which the upper has the kīrtimukha ornamentation at intervals. Between the two cornices is a frieze depicting gods, animals and men in various attitudes. Among these may be noticed the following: a lion attacking a man (south), a yāli rider (north-west) and two wrestlers (north).

Older basti.

The basti consists of a garbhagriha, a vestibule of three ankaṇas of which the side ones have been converted into cells and given doorways, a navaraṅga and a porch of three ankaṇas. The flight of steps leading to the porch is guarded by elephants.

Description.

The navaraṅga is a spacious hall, about 28' square, with four Draviḍian pillars in the middle, each of which has cubical mouldings bearing the figures of seated and standing Jaina saints, caparisoned horse, rosettes, lovers, nāgabandha, yāli, elephant, etc. The central ceiling is somewhat deep and is raised on two sets of corner stones. It has a low padma in the centre. The navaraṅga seems to have had a doorway on the south also originally.

VENKAṬARAMAṆASVĀMI TEMPLE.

The Venkaṭaramaṇasvāmi temple in the village is also a structure of the Vijayanagar period and consists of a garbhagṛiha, a vestibule, a navaraṅga and a front maṇṭapa with a pātālāṅkaṇa in front. The outer walls are raised on a basement consisting of two flat cornices in between which is a frieze of sculptures depicting in relief rosettes, padmas, snakes, matsya and so on. The eaves are straight-sided with the brick parapet above having a row of parrots. On the south parapet above the garbhagṛiha is the stucco representation of a very large seven-hooded serpent. Corresponding to this on the south-west side the parapet has the stucco representation of the god Ranganātha. The north parapet of the temple has also several interesting stucco groups among which may be mentioned a tiger attacking a boar. There is a low brick and mortar tower above the garbhagṛiha.

In front of the temple there is a tall monolithic pillar which appears to be very similar to the pillar in front of the Rāmēśvara temple on the hill, though it is perhaps less fine. The pillar is tapering and is set upon a basement consisting of three cornices of which the last from the bottom has been ornamented with kīrtimukhas alternating with figures of seated lions. The base of the pillar is carved on all the four sides with the figures of Garuḍa (west), Janārdana (north), standing Narasimha (east) and Hanumān treading on Akshayakumāra (south).

The main image of the god Śrīnivāsa in the garbhagṛiha is about 2' high with a stone tōraṇa. The god is four-handed with dāna, chakra, śankha and kaṭi. The garbhagṛiha ceiling is raised on four sets of corner stones with no carving in the middle. The ceiling of the vestibule is plain. In the vestibule are kept the images of the Śrī-vaishṇava saints, Vishvaksēna and a warrior who is pointed out as Tirumangai Āḷvār. The last image holds a drawn sword and a buckler in his hands and wears the kācha or loin cloth of a wrestler.

The central ceiling of the front maṇṭapa has a padma pendant carved in its centre with figures of lizards on either side. The front row of the pillars in the maṇṭapa are Draviḍian in workmanship with figures on their cubical mouldings and with plantain bud hangings. The four pillars of the pātālāṅkaṇa have square bases and sixteen-fluted shafts with an ornamental band in the middle of each shaft. These pillars have also the plantain bud capitals.

The mahādvāra in front of the temple appears also to belong to the same period as the temple. The doorway of the mahādvāra is guarded by figures of female deities standing on yālis from whose trunks issue ornamental creeper scrolls which are carried on the lintel of the doorway and terminate in a kīrtimukha. On the outer walls of the mahādvāra are the relievo figures of a camel, a dancing group, fighting tuskers, a naked lady sitting in an obscene posture and a fish and an elephant facing each other. The significance of the last representation is not known.

ĪŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Īśvara temple of the village is situated at a little distance to the north of the Venkaṭaramaṇa temple. It is a structure of more recent times with its outer walls built of size stones and with pillars and ceilings of no architectural merit. The temple consists of a row of three cells containing from right to left: Gaṇēśa, liṅga and Pārvaṭī. It is said that the temple is of the Pāllegār period and that the front maṇṭapa was put up recently. The temple is not important from the archæological point of view.

Devaragudipalli.

The village of Dēvaragudipalli is situated about two miles to the south-east of Bāgepalli. The ancient name of the place was Gaḍida. The name Gaḍidampaṭṇa was also used. It is said that the place is one of the three ancient towns which were known to have been existing in olden times.

VENKAṬARAMANASVĀMI TEMPLE.

In the inscriptions Nos. 15 and 16, Bāgepalli Taluk, Epigraphia Carnatica, Vol. X, Kolar District, the god of this temple is called Prasanna Śrīnivāsa and Tiruvēṅgaḍanātha. The temple is a large structure built in the Draviḍian style of architecture. But the prākāra is a recent structure like the pillared open maṇṭapa in front of the temple. The original temple inside the prākāra consists of a garbhagriha, two vestibules of which the outer is open, and a navaraṅga. According to the inscriptions it was built in 1391 A.D. by Tirumala Nāyaka, grandson of Teppada Nāgaṇṇa Voḍeyar during the time of the Vijayanagar King Harihararāya. The sculptors who are said in the inscriptions to have constructed the temple were Nāyṇḍe Kāmōja and Bairōja.

The outer walls of the temple are raised on a basement consisting of three cornices, the first of which from the bottom is octagonal, the second square and the third square with dentil drops. The walls of the navaraṅga are relieved, at intervals, by right-angled pilasters bearing creepers and the loaf and biscuit-shaped ornamentation as in the 14th century structures of the South Mysore school. The outer walls of the garbhagriha and vestibule are also relieved by similar pilasters; but the pilasters here have no loaf and biscuit-shaped mouldings. They have instead the brackets of the imitation ribbed pattern and vertical scroll ornamentation on their shafts.

On the north and south outer walls of the navaraṅga there are niches bearing boat-shaped turrets which are raised on caves-shaped cornices having the kirtimukha and creeper ornamentation. The south niche bears a perforated window in the shape of a creeper scroll, while the north niche is empty. In the panels between the pilasters on the outer walls appear relief figures just above the basement cornices. Starting from the south-east and proceeding clockwise they are as follows :—

2. Vāmana—A peculiar figure wearing beard and with hunch back. The figure wears a loin cloth or ḍaṭṭi like a Brahmachāri and an Yajñōpavīta. His hair is tied in a knot above his head and he holds in his left hand an umbrella and a daṇḍa. In his left arm pit appears a palm leaf manuscript. His right hand is stretched forward in the attitude of begging.
3. King Bali seated in state on his royal couch with his queen standing in front of him and pouring water from a vessel. The scene shows the act of making the gift.

South—

4. Vāli and Sugrīva engaged in a fight.
5. Figure of a warrior holding a drawn sword.
6. A marching lion.
7. An archer wearing kirita.
8. A lady in labour. Two ladies attend on her. The pregnant lady is in standing posture.
9. A lady—two-handed—holding lotus in the left.
10. Janārdana with abhaya, chakra, śankha and gadā.
11. Lakshmī-Nārāyaṇa.
12. Fish (Matsya).
13. Kāliya-mardana.

West—

14. Hanumān.
15. An obscene group on the garbhagriha outer wall.

North—

16. Yōgā-Narasimha. A Matsya above.
17. Kneeling Garuḍa.
18. Kūrma (Tortoise).
19. Obscene group.
20. Ananta Padmanābha.
21. An eight-handed Ugra-Narasimha.
22. Lakshmī-Narasimha.
23. Sarasvatī.
24. A lady attendant.
25. Seated Viṣṇu in sukhāsana. The right lower hand rests freely on the raised right knee, while the left lower hand is in the abhaya pose. In the back hands are held chakra and śankha.

North-east—

26. Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa.
27. Four-handed Vēṇugōpāla.
28. Hayagrīva.

The eaves above the temple have a sharp curve and are relieved at intervals by kīrtimukhas. A frieze of sea horses appears above the eaves of the navaraṅga. It may be mentioned here that the sea-horses appear in temples at Rāghavāpura, Terakaṇāmbi, etc., in South Mysore.

The navaraṅga doorway is guarded by a pair of dvārapāla figures which are dwarfish in stature. On the lintel appears a Gaḷalaksīmī group. The corner pilasters inside the navaraṅga hall have capitals with plantain bud hangings. In the centre of the hall there are four Draviḍian pillars which have the usual cubical and eight-sided mouldings. On the cubical mouldings are carved the relievo figures of Hanumān in the striking attitude, an elephant, gaṇḍabhērūṇḍa, a monkey, yāli, lion, kukkuṭa, cow and calf, a lady at toilet, a trunked yāli, man and tiger, two lions standing back to back with a common head shaped like a kīrtimukha arch, kalaśa, caparisoned horse, a warrior, an obscene figure, dancing ladies, peacock, padma medallions, etc.

The central ceiling of the navaraṅga is raised on two sets of corner stones with a padma pendant in the centre surrounded by low relievo figures of the eight Dikpālakas. The lower set of the corner stones has the carvings of padmas and wheeling acrobats.

On either side of the open outer vestibule are two Draviḍian pilasters with their capitals having the plantain bud hangings. The ceiling of the vestibule has in the middle a padma relief. The doorway of the inner vestibule has the figures of dwarfish dvārapālas on either side and the scroll, bead and padma ornamentation on the jambs and lintel. There is also a Gaja-Lakṣmī group on the lintel.

The ceiling of the inner vestibule has also a padma in the middle ; but unlike the padma of the outer vestibule ceiling, the padma here is inset in a square. The ceiling of the garbhagriha is raised on two sets of corner stones and has also a padma.

The main god of the temple stands on a broad Garuḍa pedestal with his two consorts standing on either side of him (Pl. II, 3). Each of these images is independent having its own prabhāvali carved of stone. On the prabhāvali of the main image appear the ten avatārs of Viṣṇu. The image is about 4½' high including the tōraṇa. In the four hands of the god are held the following attributes : dāna, chakra, śankha and kaṭi. The kirīta of the god, the contour of the limbs, the disposal of the fingers and the drapery suggest that the image is carved in imitation of Hoysaḷa sculptures, though the prabhāvali appears to be somewhat peculiarly designed. The image of the consort on the right has a well-worked breast band while that of the one on the left is more slim and with finer folds appearing on the drapery. The latter image is more graceful and impressive. The entire group of images speaks well of the art of the period following, as it does, the traditions of the Hoysaḷas on the one hand and those of the Draviḍian sculptures on the other. Thus the image of the goddess to the right of the god is more Hoysaḷa in character and that of the one to the left reminds us of the sculptures of the Chōḷa period. In the image of the main god both the traditions have a happy blend.

NARASIMHASVĀMI TEMPLE.

The Narasimhasvāmi temple in the village of Bāgepalli is a late Vijayanagar period structure having no architectural importance. It

General description. consists of a garbhagriha, a vestibule and a front maṇṭapa which is open. The pillar in front of the temple is about 18' high including the plinth on which it is set up.

The outer walls of the temple are raised on a basement consisting of two square cornices between which is carved a long panel representing low relief figures of animals, birds and men. On the outer walls appear the figures of elephants, lions and obscene groups. The pillars of the maṇṭapa are Draviḍian in style and have, on their cubical mouldings, relief figures of gods, men and animals.

Sādali.

Sādali is a roadside village situated about 18 miles to the south-east of Bāgepalli. The old temples at the place which are not very far removed from one another are situated in the fields near the roadside.

ĪSVARA TEMPLE.

The Īsvara temple is an old structure of about the 14th century built in the Dravidian style. It consists of a garbhagriha, a vestibule and a navaraṅga. On the south there is a fallen maṇṭapa. The outer view of the temple does not call for any special remark. The basement has plain cornices square in shape. The navaraṅga doorway is guarded by dvārapālas, while the lintel has the figure of Gaṇēśa. The jambs are ornamented with scroll and bead work. The pillars inside the navaraṅga are all Dravidian in style having ribbed mouldings on the brackets as at Terakaṇāmbi and elsewhere in South Mysore. On the cubical mouldings of the pillars appear the figures of several gods and men.

CHENNAKĒŚAVA TEMPLE.

The Chennakēśava temple is similar to the temple at Dēvaraguḍipalli in workmanship. The mahādvāra in front of the structure is rudely constructed. The temple consists of a garbhagriha, a vestibule, a navaraṅga and a porch. The outer walls are built on a basement, about 5½' high, consisting of five cornices which are as follows : square, octagonal, square, and square with dentil drops. The walls are relieved by right-angled pilasters. Among the images on the walls may be mentioned the following : an old man, a man and a lady, a dancing couple, Rāma and Lakshmaṇa seated with Hanumān in front, Rāma and Lakshmaṇa standing, Śēshaśāyi, Vēṇugōpāla, Ugra-Narasimha, Vidyādhari and the daśāvatāras, like the natural Matsya, Kūrma, Varāha, Narasimha, bearded Vāmana, Bali with consorts on throne and Trivikrama ; Vāli and Sugrīva, Garuḍa. Āṇjaneya, Yāli and elephant, Buddha, a Sukhāsīna-mūrti, Matsya attacked by a warrior or demon (Hiranyāksha ?), makara, lion, wrestlers, deer, etc. The images on the outer walls of the garbhagriha and vestibule have peeled off. The walls have niches bearing boat-shaped turrets. The eaves are sharp and ornamented with kīrtimukhas at intervals. Above the eaves appears a frieze of sea-horses.

The porch measures two ankaṇas by one. On the cubical mouldings of the pillars are carved the figures of Ugra-Narasimha, Janārdana, seated lion, Vēṇugōpāla, dancers, Hanumān, Lakshmī-Nārāyaṇa, Sarasvatī, Viṣṇu, etc.

The navaraṅga doorway is guarded by dvārapāla figures. On the lintel appears a Gaja-Lakshmī group. The jambs are ornamented with scroll and bead work. The navaraṅga pillars are Dravidian in style with the nāgabandha and other designs appearing on the cubical mouldings. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga is raised on two sets of corner stones.

The vestibule is a double one with the outer aṅkaṇa being open. The doorway of the inner aṅkaṇa is guarded by dvārapālas and has the image of Chennakēśava on the lintel. The jambs are designed like those of the navaraṅga doorway with scroll and bead work. The main image of the temple is missing.

field belonging to one Mr. Venkaṭarāmiah where stands a row of more than a dozen vīragals bearing sculptures of dead heroes and their sati wives. Some of the heroes are on horse-back while at least one of them has a royal umbrella held above, with a woman following him. About half a dozen vīragals have shrines protecting them with side slabs and top slabs. On three of these wall slabs inscriptions in Grantha characters of about the 13th century were found. One of these shrines with its top slab remaining intact might be mistaken for a doimen. It is definitely different from anything prehistoric.

which is a small village situated in the midst of a number of rocky heights. To the east of the village about 2 miles away (where there is the 7/4th furlong stone from Bētamaṅgala) on the top of a rocky ridge and on its sides we find more than a hundred cromlechs with the rings of stones appearing just above the ground (Pl. III, 1). The diameters of these rings vary from about 40' to 7'. These definitely prehistoric structures close to the gold mining area deserve to be excavated and studied. With these we may compare the cromlechs discovered near Hungunda, about 7 miles from here.

Betamangala.

Bētamaṅgala is the headquarters of a hobli in the Bowringpet Taluk. It is situated at a distance of about 8 miles from the Kolar Gold Antiquity of the place and temples.

Fields. The place appears to have been one of great antiquity. In the inscriptions it is called Vijayāditya Maṅgala of which the modern name is said to be a corruption. The earliest inscription at the place is Bowringpet 4 which is inscribed on the octagonal west basement cornice of the garbhagriha of the Vijayendra temple. This inscription which is ascribed to the 10th century (c. 950 A.D.) refers to the restoration of the tank of the village. It does not refer to the construction of the temple. But there is no doubt that the cornice on which it is inscribed forms part of the original structure and the existence of the inscription definitely proves that the temple is at least of the same period as that of the inscription if not earlier. The object of inscribing the inscription on a cornice belonging to the temple seems to have been mainly a religious one, that is, to invoke the god Vijayēndra as a witness to the grant made in connection with the restoration of the tank. Thus the temple and the tank both appear to be older than the inscription. It is possible to assign the temple to circa 900 A.D., though there is reason to believe that the main image existing now in the garbhagriha is by far later than the inscription itself, belonging perhaps to the 16th or 17th century.

According to the town-planning that obtained during the period there must have been, at some distance to the north-east of the Viṣṇu temple, an Īśvara temple near which existed the tank of the place. The tank of the village is already mentioned. Near this there is an Īśvara temple which is of about the 14th century. But it is possible that near this spot existed an older Śiva temple. Indeed there are to be found some old sculptures of the Chōḷa and earlier periods nearby and some of these are set up now in a recent structure by the side of the Arkēśvara temple. There are also some sculptures, a linga and a Nandi bull set up in an Īśvara shrine immediately to the south of the Vijayēndra temple and these are said to have been brought from a ruined Śiva temple that once stood near the present Arkēśvara temple beside the tank. Immediately to the north of the Arkēśvara temple there is a maṇṭapa having pillars of the Nōṇavinakere type, which in M. A. R. 1939, p. 56, have been assigned to the Gaṅga period. In the Mysore Gazetteer, Vol. V, p. 298, the place is said to have been under the sway of a Bāṇa king named Vijayāditya and to have probably derived its name from him. If that is so, the name of the temple, viz., Vijayēndra, suggests that the original Viṣṇu temple also was built by him. It is a pity that there is no inscription which records the construction of the temple. At Āvaṇi, however, there is an inscription (No. 38, Mulbāgal, Kolar District, E. C., X) on a pillar outside the southern gateway recording that the Nōḷamba queen Dēvabbarasi got constructed a lake called Dēvabbe-samudra and a Viṣṇu shrine at Horavangala. It is suggested in M.A.R. 1935, p. 50, that Horavangala may be Bētamaṅgala. But the inscription does not mention the name of Vijayēndra.

THE VIJAYĒNDRASVĀMI TEMPLE.

The main god of the temple is called Vijayēndra locally. In the inscriptions No. 7 (b) Bowringpet of 1275 A.D. and No. 6 Bowringpet of 1288 A.D. the god is called Viṛṇṇirunda Perumāl [cp. the name given in an inscription to the god Kṛishṇa at Toppūr (M.A.R. 1939, p. 29)]. In inscription No. Bowringpet 8 of 1167 A.D. the god is given yet another name—Maṇavālālvār. In the Epigraphia Carnatica of the Kōlār District, Vol. X, the temple is called that of Vijayarangasvāmi—probably due to the fact that there are actually two shrines in the temple which are respectively dedicated to Vijayēndra and Raṅganātha. Whatever the name of the god and the date of the consecration of the original image, it is probable that the present main image does not belong to the 10th century A.D. It is in all probability an image of the 16th or even the 17th century A.D. inasmuch as it happens to wear a Śrīvaiṣṇava caste-mark on its forehead and there is no image indeed of the 10th century so far discovered anywhere in South India that is definitely known to be wearing such a mark. The workmanship of the image is, however, extraordinarily good and, but for the existence of the caste-mark, could well have been ascribed to an earlier period.

Inscriptions prove that the place came under the sway of the Bāṇas, the Nolamba-

Pallavas, the Chōlas, Hoysaḷas and the Vijayanagar rulers successively. They also indicate that the temple received extensions during these periods. The temple, as it is, consists of a garbhagriha, a closed vestibule, a navaraṅga with the Gōvindarāja shrine to the left, an ardhamanṭapa enshrining the images of the Āḷvārs, a mukhamanṭapa and a pātālāṅkara. Structurally, too, the different periods of extensions are well indicated particularly by the basement of each of the different compartments of the temple.

The original structure appears to have consisted of the garbhagriha only with an open porch in front (c. 900 A.D.). The stone-built baseween the octagonal cornice and the one rising above it, there is an inner cornice which is short and relieved by minute right-angled pilasters. On the north there is a stone sōma-sūtra. The outer walls of the garbhagriha are built of brick as at Narasamangala in the Mysore District and are relieved by slender right-angled pilasters bearing the loaf and biscuit-shaped mouldings. There are empty niches on the three sides of the garbhagriha on the outside. Of these the one on the west is surmounted by a horse-shoe-shaped turret and the pilasters bearing this turret are round and have wheel mouldings. The south-western corner pilaster bears on its abacus a two-handed stucco figure, thus suggesting that there might have been similar stucco sculptures on the other corner pilasters also. Below the eaves on the back outer wall of the garbhagriha there is a frieze of sea-horses constructed of brick and mortar. This frieze is missing on the other side walls of the garbhagriha. The brick tower above the garbhagriha was in all probability constructed during the Pāllegār days.

The front porch of the original temple seems to have been open but walled in when the navaraṅga was added. The two front pillars which are now mostly imbedded in the wall and the two pilasters on either side of the garbhagriha doorway form one group with their ribbed brackets which are generally met with in the Chōla and earlier periods. Each of these pillars stands on a base which has also ribbed mouldings. The base is short and square and the shaft has the eight-sided, sixteen-fluted and vase mouldings. Below the vase is an ornamental moulding consisting of two horizontal ribbed bands with garland hangings in low relief. Above this band appears the wheel moulding which in turn is surmounted by the ribbed brackets. The garbhagriha doorway is plain. The ceiling of the porch (that is, the present vestibule) has been carved with a padma in very high relief. The garbhagriha is about 7'-7" square with an octagonal ceiling having in bold relief a padma in its centre. The petals of the padma are inset in a circle.

The navaraṅga appears to have been constructed between 1167 A. D. (Bowringpet 8) and 1275 A. D. [Bowringpet 7 (b)]. The outer 12th century extension. walls are plain and raised on a basement which has been worked in imitation of the older ones. The stone eaves are rude with low relieve kīrtimukhas at intervals. Inside the navaraṅga the central pillars are worked similar to those of the porch; but their brackets are quite different and bear no ribbed ornamentation. Such pillars are often met with in the structures of the 12th and 13th centuries. The ceilings of the navaraṅga are all plain except for the central one which has the carving of a padma inset in a circle.

The two dvārapāla figures guarding the navaraṅga doorway are undoubtedly of the Vijayanagara period. In the north-western corner of the hall is built in recent times a shrine in brick and mortar to enshrine the goddess Vijayalakshmi.

The Gōvindarāja shrine to the north of the hall and the ardhamanṭapa in front of the navaraṅga both form one group. Their outer basement 14th century extension. cornices prove this point: they are so different from the basement cornices of the navaraṅga. They consist of two plain and square cornices with a row of plain slabs set on edges between them. On the north outer wall of the ardhamanṭapa there is the figure of a fish in relief. The image of Gōvindarāja (Pl. VII, 1) seems sculpturally to belong to the 14th century. This date may be tentatively assigned for the construction of the shrine and the ardhamanṭapa. The workmanship of the image of Gōvindarāja is poor. He lies on Ādisēsha attended by his consorts whose images are also rudely sculptured.

The next stage of additions to the temple consists of the construction of the mukhamanṭapa which originally appears to have been open, 15th century extension. but to have been walled in in recent times with size stones. The Draviḍian pillars of the mukhamanṭapa have brackets bearing the imitation ribbed brackets of possibly the 15th century.

The last stage of extension is the pātālāṅkaṇa with its front porch probably assignable to the 16th century. The porch pillars are 16th century extension. Draviḍian with plain brackets. There is a fragmentary inscription of the time of Kṛṣṇadēva Rāya in front of the temple. Its existence indicates that the pātālāṅkaṇa and the porch were both constructed in his times. The two sets of the dvārapāla figures kept in the mukha-maṇṭapa and the ardhamāṇṭapa as also the images of the Ālvārs in the ardha-maṇṭapa seem to belong to the Vijayanagar period.

In front of the temple is a rude late Garuda shrine of no architectural value. The Bali-pīṭha behind it seems, however, to belong to the 14th century. To the south-west of the pillar is an uyyāle-kamba.

The present main image (Pl. IV, 1) is perhaps assignable to the period during which the pātālāṅkaṇa and the porch were added. It is not known what became of the original image. The carving, however, of the present image is, as already said, extraordinarily good, though the same cannot be said of the images of his consorts. The god is seated on a lion pedestal with his left leg placed on the ground and the right knee folded up on the seat. On the left corner of the pedestal there is a maned lion seated on its haunches. To the right side of the pedestal there is another maned lion but bigger than its pair and having a longer tail. The tōraṇa behind the god rises gracefully to a little above the tiara of the god. Though the drapery and ornaments of the god are worked out in detail with minute skill and though the folds on the abdomen are carved in a very impressive way, the broad fingers of the hands and feet look rather unnatural and too broad to do credit to the sculptor. In other respects, however, the image is an example of the high standard of art that prevailed during the period.

To the south of the Vijayendra temple is a structure which is said to have once served as the kalyāṇa-maṇṭapa but to have been walled up recently and converted into a temple to enshrine the old Recent structure. Arkēśvara līṅga brought from the now disappeared Arkēśvara temple. The rude eaves and the Draviḍian pillars suggest that it was a structure of about the 16th century. In a walled up cell within the temple the old līṅga is set up. In a cell to its left is enshrined an image of Pārvatī, probably of the Vijayanagar period. In another cell to the right is set up an image of Shaṇmukha which appears to be of the Chōla period, probably brought from the disappeared Arkēśvara temple. The images of Sūrya-Nārāyaṇa, Gaṇēśa, Bhairava and Vīrabhadra set up against the walls inside the temple seem also to have been brought from the Arkēśvara temple. The image of the Nandi bull in front of the shrine reminds us of the one at Narasamangala in the Mysore District, though it is not as fine.

ARKĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The old temple of Arkēśvara near the tank of the village is no longer in existence. The present temple near the spot seems to belong to the 14th century. The original temple seems to have faced south as indicated by the uyyāle-kamba.

History and general description. The present structure faces east and consists of an empty garbhagriha, a double vestibule (of which the inner ankaṇa is closed and the outer one is open) and a navaraṅga with a now disappeared porch. The basement cornices on which the outer walls are raised are similar to those met with in the construction of the mukhamanṭapa of the Vijayendra temple. The pillars inside the navaraṅga are all Draviḍian with the cubical, octagonal and sixteen-fluted mouldings. On their cubical mouldings appear the figures of various gods, devotees, etc., like Gaṇēśa, Kaṇṇappa, linga and lady, Umāmahēśvara, Puruṣaṃṛiga, Vidyādhari, etc. The ceilings of the navaraṅga are arranged svastika-wise as at Kaivāra, Kuruḍumale and Maḍivāḷa. This supports the view that the temple is of the 14th century.

By the side of the temple is a recent structure in which are enshrined some old sculptures: e.g., the Sōmēśvara līṅga, the images of the Saptamātrikas, the image of Bhairava and Viṇādhāri Virabhadra. These images appear to belong to the Chōḷa times. Among them the image of Vaiṣṇavī has a human-faced and bird-bodied Garuḍa which is rather peculiar. (Pl. IV, 2).

OTHER TEMPLES IN THE VILLAGE.

There are two Hanumān temples in the village of which the one to the south-west of the Vijayendra temple is a Draviḍian structure enshrining a colossal relieve figure of Āṇjanēya, about 12' high, in the striking attitude. The figure is represented as treading on Akshayakumāra and shows good workmanship. It is possible that the figure belongs to the 16th century.

Hanuman temple. The Dharmadēva temple standing a little distance to the south of the Vijayendra temple is a modern structure of no architectural importance. It contains several painted wooden images. It is said that the Kāraga festival is celebrated in the temple once a year.

Madivala.

Maḍivāḷa is a village situated about half a mile to the south-west of Kyāsamballi which is the headquarters of a hobli in the Bowringpet Taluk of the Kolar District. During the period of the Chōḷa governor Iḷavaṇji Vāsudēvarāya (13th century) it belonged to the Muḷuvāyi kingdom in Iḷavañji-nāḍu of the Nigariḷi Sōḷamaṇḍalam. The chief temple at the place is that of Svayambhuvēśvara which is an ornate structure built in many respects like the Sōmēśvara temple at Kuruḍumale.

SVAYAMBHUVĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

Of the many inscriptions engraved on the walls, basement cornices and pillars of the temple, the earliest, namely, Bowringpet 35 (f) has been ascribed to c. 1200 A.D. though it does not in fact mention any date. The earliest inscription that gives a date is Bowringpet 35 (b) of 1-28 A.D. which is to be found on the right side of the main doorway of the temple. It says that during the rule of Kuttāḍun Dēvan, son of Jayaṅḡḇḍa Śōḷa Iḷavañjiya Rāyan alias Mārālvān, two servants of the ruler made certain grants to the god. Thus the construction of the temple and the consecration of the liṅga are not mentioned in any of the earliest dated inscriptions. In the absence of such inscriptions therefore we may ascribe the temple to the period of Iḷavañji Rāya, grandfather of Iḷavañji Vāsudēva Rāya, the builder of the Sōmēśvara temple at Kuruḍumale. In the workmanship of the outer walls, the cornices, the pillars and pilasters, there is so close a resemblance between this temple and the Sōmēśvara temple at Kuruḍumale that it is very likely that Iḷavañji Vāsudēva Rāya followed the architectural traditions current during his grandfather's days while building the Sōmēśvara temple at Kuruḍumale. Some of the architectural features met with in the temples of South Mysore as, for instance, the one at Rāghavāpura, are also to be found here.

Constructed in about 1200 A. D. the Svayambhuvēśvara temple belonging to the Kēśavan-paḷḷam of Iḷavañji-nāḍu continued to be endowed with grants during the late Hoysaḷa and Vijayanagar periods. Grants of land at the time of the Hoysaḷa king Rāmanātha are mentioned in the inscriptions Nos. Bowringpet 23, 25, 27, 33, etc. A gift made to the temple at the time of the Vijayanagar king Mallikārjuna-mahārāya is mentioned in inscription No. Bowringpet 18. Another gift made during the period of Virūpāksha (1472 A.D.) is mentioned in Bowringpet 19.

The temple faces east and consists of a garbhagriha, a double vestibule (of which the inner ankaṇa is closed and the outer one open), and a navaraṅga having in its central ankaṇa four Draviḍian pillars (Pl. VI, 1). All round the temple runs a pillared verandah which unfortunately has in many places collapsed and in others disappeared completely. In front of the temple there is a mahādvāra having a porch on the inner side and another porch on the outer side. The inner porch is borne on four pillars which, however, are different from those met with in the Kuruḍumale group of temples. Each of these pillars rises on a square base and has a sixteen-fluted shaft surmounted by indented cornice mouldings ornamented with hanging rudrāksha beads below them. At the base of the shaft is a vertical band of flutes while above the cornice mouldings already mentioned appears a vase moulding which is surmounted by what seems to be a trident or the 'Triratna' symbol. Above the vase appears a wheel moulding ornamented by vertical flutes. The abacus is square and is carved with the lotus design on its undersurface. The base of each pillar has its four faces carved with low relievo figures. Among the figures, there are an eight-handed dancing Śiva, an eight-handed standing Ardhanārīśvara, a seated devotee and a seated four-handed Gaṇapati.

The pillars of the outer porch of the mahādvāra are Dravidian in style with cubical and eight-sided mouldings. The capitals of these pillars have the imitation ribbed ornamentation. The pillars of the cloistered prākāra are all plain having each a cubical base, an eight-sided shaft and another cubical moulding resembling the base. It is not known when the cloistered prākāra was constructed. Possibly the mahādvāra and the prākāra were both built during the 14th century.

The tall pillar in front of the temple and the four-pillared Nandi pavilion are perhaps the contributions of the Vijayanagar period. Similarly the low-roofed plain structure enshrining a rude image of Pārvatī may have also been the contribution of the Vijayanagar or even later period.

The main temple which consists, as already stated, of a garbhagṛiha, a double vestibule and a navaraṅga has been raised on a basement consisting of five cornices as follows:—

Description of main temple.

- (1) A cornice bearing the lotus ornamentation.
- (2) A square cornice.
- (3) An octagonal cornice with an inner cornice, above and below, bearing the lotus design.
- (4) Square with an inner cornice of plain pilasters below and above.
- (5) Square with lotus ornamentation below.

These cornices run uniformly all round the temple.

The outer walls (Pl. II, 4) are relieved by right-angled, eight-sided and turret-bearing round pilasters. The round pilasters issue out of kalaśas. There are also on the outer walls broad and empty niches bearing turrets. These turrets are boat-shaped and surmount an eaves-shaped cornice moulding relieved at intervals by kīrtimukhas and bearing a frieze of sea-horses above it. In the middle of each boat-shaped turret is a kīrtimukha arch having under it sometimes a seated lion (south-east, south), a dancing figure (north-east, north), a seated figure with folded hands (north) and mostly the figure of seated Gaṇēśa. The figure of Gaṇēśa appears also on the turrets borne by the round pilasters issuing out of kalaśas. All the pilasters are decorated above their shafts with the loaf- and biscuit-shaped mouldings and are surmounted by capitals having plantain bud hangings as at Kaivāra and elsewhere in the mediæval eastern school of Mysore sculpture. The cornices, the pilasters, the turrets and the capitals together with the vertical designs appearing here and there on the square base of the pilasters and on either side of the kalāśas heighten the effect of light and shade forming the main feature of the ornamentation of this temple.

The navaraṅga has two niches on its eastern outer wall and three on its southern and northern outer walls. The sukhanāsi has one niche on the south outer wall and another on its northern outer wall. The garbhagṛiha has a niche on its south wall, another on its north wall and a third on its west wall.

The eaves are sharp and boat-shaped and run uniformly all round the temple. They are relieved at intervals by kīrtimukha ornamentation embellished on either side with variegated creeper and scroll work and enshrining figures of human heads mostly and sometimes those of differently shaped lotuses, of swans, Gaṇeśa, līṅga, Nandi, turreted small niches, Yōgā-Narasimha, kalāśa, etc.

Above the eaves runs all round the temple a frieze of sea-horses. The temple has no parapet. The tower which is of brick and mortar does not appear to be very late in date, though it is difficult to believe that it is of the same date as the temple. Tentatively we may assign it to the fifteenth century. It consists of a tier of boat-shaped and square-shaped turrets on which rises an eaves-shaped cornice surmounted by a large square-shaped and high necked āmalaka with the figures of Yakshas (resembling Atlantes) and seated images of Śiva (south), Narasimha (west), Brahma (north) and Śiva (? east) on the facades. The cornice above the first tier has at the corners seated figures of bulls.

The jambs of the navaraṅga doorway have vertical bands ornamented with lotus, scroll and creeper. These bands are carried over the lintel also. In the middle of the lintel is the representation of a kīrtimukha. The navaraṅga hall is large, being about 25 ft. square. The ceilings consist of plain slabs and are divided by beams, as at the Sōmēśvara temple, Kurudumale, into four compartments only, being arranged svastikawise round the central ankaṇa. Thus the east and south-east ankaṇas have one ceiling, the south and south-west have another, the west and north-west have a third and the north and the north-east have a fourth. The central ceiling is deep and large and raised on two sets of corner stones having, like the central slab of the ceiling, relievo carvings of lotuses inset in squares on their undersurfaces.

The navaraṅga pillars and pilasters are all Dravidian in type as at Kurudumale and elsewhere and have the cubical, the eight-sided and the sixteen-fluted mouldings on the shafts. Their capitals are provided with plantain bud hangings. On the cubical mouldings of the pillars appear the relievo figures of the following :—

Liṅgas with lady worshippers; Mārkaṇḍēya and the liṅga; Bēḍar Kaṇṇappa and the liṅga; Umamahēśvara, Viṣṇu, Nandi, cow and liṅga, a sage, wheeling acrobats, seated lion, four-handed Gaṇēśa standing, ridden horse, ridden elephant, dancing figures, marching lion, wrestlers (north-west pillar), dancing Gaṇēśa, seated Lakṣmī, Śaṇmukha riding a peacock but having only one head, Vālī and Sugrīva fighting, Śrīnivāsa, etc.

The cubical mouldings of the pillars on either side of the outer open vestibule are carved with the figures of Gaṇēśa, Vēṇugōpāla, Mahishāsuramardinī (in the Chōḷa style), an elephant attacked by a lion, etc.

The doorway of the inner vestibule has the creeper and floral ornamentation on the jambs and an eaves-shaped cornice above the lintel. The ceiling of the inner vestibule has the representation of a padma inset in a circle. The doorway of the garbhagṛiha has pilasters on either side whose eight-sided shafts rise on cubical bases ornamented with scroll work as in the case of the pilasters on the outer walls of the temple. The ceiling of the garbhagṛiha is raised on two sets of corner stones and has the carving of a padma in the centre. The main liṅga of the temple is about 2 feet high.

In the outer vestibule of the temple are kept the stone images of Bhairava, and Dakṣiṇāmūrti. Both these images show a vigorous attitude though they are carved of hard granite. They are both relievo figures and belong, in all probability, to some older temple. They appear to hail from the Chōḷa times. In the navaraṅga are kept the following images :—

Images.

1. A lady devotee standing with folded hands.
2. Another lady devotee ornamented with rudrāksha necklace and armlets and wristlets. She is seated in padmāsana and in the attitude of dhyāna holding a rudrāksha garland in her hands.
3. A good standing figure of a chief looking very much like the image of Iḷavaṅgi Vāsudēva Rāya at Kuruḍumale and Āvaṇi. He is bearded and has his hands folded. Perhaps it is another image of Vāsudēva Rāya himself. His wife and daughter are said in the inscriptions to have endowed the temple with grants.
4. A seated male figure with rudrāksha garlands like No. 2 above.
5. Image of a two-handed and standing lady with her right hand in the abhaya-mudrā and her left hand placed on her kaṭi. She wears her loin cloth like a dattī and on the garment the folds are boldly shown. Her breasts are bare. She wears necklaces, armlets and wristlets as also ear-pendants. The figure is in high relief and about $1\frac{1}{2}$ feet in height. It appears to have been brought from elsewhere and looks very much older than the temple. It is not known whom it represents.

6. Dancing figure of a two-handed lady. There is a male figure to her right and a boar-faced anthropoid figure to her left. On either side below her are the figures of the sun (right) and boar (left). Perhaps it is a figure of dancing Durgā (?). This image too seems to have been brought from elsewhere and looks older than the temple.

7. A seated Gaṇēsa—rude.

The tall pillar in front of the temple is about 40 feet high and tapering. Its eight-sided shaft rises on a cubical base. Above the shaft

Pillar in front of temple. is an octagonal ribbed band surmounted by the vase and wheel mouldings. The abacus has floral ornamentation on its undersurface.

PĀRVATĪ TEMPLE.

The Pārvatī temple stands to the north of the northern kaisāle of the Svayambhuvēśvara temple. It is a structure of very late times containing what appears to be a late Vijayanagar period image of Pārvatī, about $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet high, in the main cell. She holds abhaya, padma, padma and dāna. The temple consist of a garbhagṛiha, a vestibule and a navaraṅga. In the central ankaṇa of the navaraṅga the four pillars are Draviḍian having the usual cubical and eight-sided mouldings.

KUMĀRA SHRINE.

The shrine of Kumāra stands to the south of the Pārvatī temple. It is also a structure of very late times and consists of a garbhagṛiha and a vestibule only. The main image is a rude relieve figure, about 2' high. It is four-handed and holds abhaya, dagger or Śakti, mṛiga and kaṭi. It rides a peacock.

OUTER PRĀKĀRA.

The area comprising the main temple, its prākāra and mahādvāra, the Pārvatī and other temples as also the pillar in front of the main temple has been enclosed in a large outer prākāra which is now in ruins. In the north-east corner of this area is a pond provided with stone steps.

GANGAMMĀ SHRINE.

To the north-east of the Īśvara temple is a small late structure enshrining a yantrakallu called Gangammā by the villagers. Above the shrine is built, in brick and mortar, a tower which, in its appearance, resembles a North Indian tower.

Ramasagara.

VENKAṬARAMANA TEMPLE.

Rāmasāgara is a village situated about five miles to the south-east of Bētamaṅgala. The name of the Venkaṭaramana temple at the place is wrongly given as that of Chennakēśava in the Epigraphia Carnatica, Kolar District, while editing the inscription No. Bowringpet 12.

The outer walls of the garbhagṛiha and vestibule seem structurally to have been constructed in two different periods. Up to half of their present height their character suggests that they were put up some time during the 14th century. The rest of these compartments as also the navaraṅga appear to have been constructed during the 15th century. The original outer walls are relieved by right-angled and eight-sided pilasters having cubical bases.

The main image in the garbhagṛiha is that of the god Śrīnivāsa holding abhaya, chakra, śankha and kaṭi. There is no prabhāvali. Though the face of the image has good features, the drapery and other ornamentation are not so well worked as in the sculptures of the Hoysaḷa period. Nor are the images of the consorts of the god well executed. There appears to be however some attempt to copy Hoysaḷa models in the workmanship of the images. Hence it is possible to assign the original temple and its images to the 14th century. There is a Tamil inscription at the north-western corner of the temple which has been ascribed to the 14th century.

VĪRABHADRA TEMPLE.

The Vīrabhadra temple at Rāmasāgara is a structure belonging to the late Vijayanagar period. It consists of a garbhagṛiha enshrining a rude image of Vīrabhadra, about 4' high, a closed vestibule, a navaraṅga with thick Dravidian pillars and a one-ankana porch. The outer walls are raised on a basement consisting of two plain cornices and are rid of all ornamentation except for an obscene group appearing on the east outer wall of the navaraṅga. The tower above the garbhagṛiha is of brick and mortar and belongs to the Pāllegār period.

ĪŚVARA TEMPLE.

The villagers call the god of this temple as Sōmēśvara. But in the Epigraphia Carnatica he is called Virūpāksha. In construction the temple is exactly like the Virabhadra temple. The porch here is borne on Draviḍian pillars.

The navaraṅga pillars are typically of the Vijayanagar period, having the cubical, the eight-sided and sixteen-fluted mouldings and capitals provided with plantain bud hangings. On the cubical mouldings of the pillars appear the relievo figures Navaranga. of Kaumārī, Sūrya, Durgā, an elephant pulling out a man, a figure in the attitude of cutting something with his dagger, a sage riding on a matsya, Gaṇēśa, seated lion, purushamṛiga, Tāṇḍavēśvara, Bālakṛishṇa, Kṛishṇa and the Gōpīs (naked), Vēṇugōpāla, a man worshipping the linga, Kāliya-mardana, long-trunked yāli, Durgā, a hunch-backed person standing with a staff (elsewhere identified as Sugaṭūr Tamme Gauda), Īśvara on Nandi, Chaṇḍikēśa, rearing lion, Virabhadra, dancing Yakshas, Bēḍar Kaṇṇappa, Yaksha musicians, a lady archer, dancing ladies, etc.

The ceilings of the navaraṅga are plain. Among the images kept in the navaraṅga the following may be mentioned: Gaṇēśa, Durgā, Bhairava, Brāhmī, Vārāhī, Māhēśvari, Indrāṇī and Vaishṇavī. The respective vehicles of the goddesses are carved on the pedestals. Vārāhī has the buffalo for her vehicle.

In the inner vestibule is the image of a standing Pārvatī, about 2½' high. The linga in the main cell is also about 2½' high. A Nandi of hard stone but well worked is placed in the front porch of the temple facing the linga.

Main cell.

OTHER MONUMENTS.

To the north-west of the Virabhadra temple is a small shrine consisting of two chambers of which the inner one enshrines a small image of Bhadrakālī, about 2½' high including its pedestal. The image is four-handed and holds trident, paraśu, damaru and kapāla. Since it is mutilated, it is not worshipped.

Bhadrakali.

A tall pillar, about 24' high, stands on a plain platform at a distance of about 50 yards to the east of the Virabhadra temple. At some distance to the north-east of the pillar is an uyyāle-kamba.

Pillars.

Nearby is a small pillar, about 5' high, which terminates in the form of a lotus bud. The people worship it as Mārammā. On the east face of the shaft of the pillar is the representation of a human head wearing a tiara.

To the east of the temples is a large tank called Bukka-sāgara. It is mentioned in the inscription No. Bowringpet 13 and belongs to the time of the Vijayanagar king Dēvarāya. May it be that the tank was constructed during the time of Bukka?

PĀTĀLAMMĀ TEMPLE.

This is a rude structure of plain pillars and mud walls and consists of just one cell with a maṇṭapa in front. In the cell is enshrined a seated image of Pātālamṃā on a horse pedestal. The horse is fully caparisoned. The goddess holds abbaya, trident, lotus and kapāla. Above her tiara is the representation of a five-hooded cobra. The image appears to hail from about the fourteenth century.

The image.

TIRUPATI GANGAMMĀ TEMPLE.

This is a recent structure and enshrines a very rude image of no artistic merit. The temple consists of a single cell. The goddess is called Tirupati Gangammā by the villagers.

Hunkundapatna.

Hunkundapaṭṇa is a roadside village on the Kōlār-Bētamaṅgala road. It is situated at a distance of about 8 miles to the north-west of Bētamaṅgala and about 11 miles south-east of Kōlār. The surroundings present the view of a very craggy country full of huge rocky boulders lying here and there and particularly in the west, south-west and south directions.

Situation.

About half a mile directly to the south of the village lies conspicuously a tor with a smaller boulder perched upon it (Pl. VII, 3). The tor is locally called the Sita-guḍḍa and the legend goes that during the southern wanderings of the hero of the Rāmāyaṇa Sītā used to take her seat on this boulder.

Legend.

At the time of the Sankrānti festival a jātra is held here every year and is said to be well attended by people. A story is told that during the time of Pūrṇiah a certain Āli was residing here and that he was engaged in several battles with one Sōmappa. It is also said that this Āli was giving great trouble particularly to the young girls of the neighbourhood.

Tradition.

To the west and north-west of Sīta-guḍḍa there is a wide strip of land, now under cultivation, which abounds in varied ancient pottery (Pl. VII, 4). In the south-west direction of the tor there are the remains of a stone and mud fort wall which appears to belong to the late Vijayanagar period. Beyond the fort wall and in the south-west and north-west directions the fields are bounded by rocky boulders. These fields mark the site of an ancient town which appears to have been existing in the early centuries of the Christian era as can be judged from the different types of potsherds collected during an overground survey. The painted potsherds collected on the site are of the following description :—

1. Red and polished outside ;
2. Red and polished outside and black and polished inside ;
3. Red and black on the outside and plain inside ;
4. Do with polished black inside ;
5. Tan-coloured and polished on the outside and plain on the inside ;
6. Do with polished black on the inside ;
7. Incised ornamentation on the outer surface consisting of several linear and wedge-shaped designs ;
8. Rope designs in relief on the outside.

Besides the potsherds of the above description, there were collected a large number of black spouts, plenty of iron slag pieces, shell bangle pieces, pottery spindle whorls, etc. Brick fragments are also to be found here and there on the site. Among the varied pottery collected there was none which had geometrical designs painted on it in light white as on the specimens found both at Chandravalli and Brambagiri. It is possible to compare the site with the Śātavāhana layers at Chandravalli.

The remains of the fort wall consist of bastions, walls and parapets. Inside the area of the fort there are many stone foundations of houses.

Among other antiquities noticed on the site may be mentioned a hard stone image of Nandi and a mutilated figure of a standing four-handed Sūrya. The latter appears to date from about the 12th century.

There is also reason to believe that the surroundings of Hunkundapaṭṇa may contain vestiges even preceding the Śātavāhana period.

Prehistoric antiquity.

To the west of Sīta-guḍḍa there are several cave shelters which, besides yielding potsherds of the Śātavāhana period, seem to have been the dwelling places of prehistoric man. About ten yards in front of the Sīta-guḍḍa cave was picked up a somewhat broken but highly polished neolith. Near the find spot of the neolith there is a boulder with about half a dozen cuplike depressions on its upper surface. Each depression is about 5" deep and more than a foot in diameter.

VĒṆUGŌPĀLA TEMPLE.

The Vēṇugōpāla temple inside the village is a structure barely appearing to be a century old. It faces west and consists of brick and mortar outer walls and square pillars in the navaraṅga. The old image of Vēṇugōpāla is not worshipped now but is kept in the navaraṅga. The present image in worship is said to have been sculptured at Āvaṇi about 25 years ago. The temple does not call for any special remark.

Hungunda.

The village of Hungunda is situated about two miles to the south-west of Hunkundapaṭṇa. It appears to be a place of great antiquity. About half a mile to the north of the village there is a wide strip of land, mostly under cultivation now, which is full of prehistoric cromlechs similar to those discovered near the Kolar Gold Fields (Pl. III, 2). Many of these cromlechs have been deprived of their rings of stones on the surface by the ignorant villagers. There are still several which are remaining intact. Their average diameter is about 15 to 20 feet. The boulders forming the rings on the surface are even larger here than those met with near the Kolar Gold Fields. The occurrence of these cromlechs coupled with the fact that in the neighbourhood are to be found traces of ancient gold mining, suggests that the authors of the cromlechs were perhaps prehistoric miners. This fact is supported by the name the village bears. In the Tamil inscriptions near the Sōmēśvara temple the name Poṛkundaṁ is mentioned. Poṛkundaṁ means golden hill and is perhaps the Tamil rendering of the Kannaḍa word Honkunda. In several parts of the ancient site large quantities of what are called gold husks are said to be found even now.

During the historical period also Hungunda seems to have been an important place. Its situation in a valley surrounded by rocky boulders afforded the place a natural means of defence. We learn from the inscriptions that various battles were fought near the place during the ninth and tenth centuries. There are many viṛagals of the Nolamba period to the south-east of the village.

Near the place where the inscriptions are found is a mound called Dimāladigge which is very ashy. The mound is extensive and indicates perhaps the site where in olden days gold was extracted. Nearby is to be traced an ancient site bestrewn with potsherds similar in character to those found near Hunkundapaṭṇa. On the surface we can see old painted and polished pots sticking out of the earth.

Among the inscriptions there is a peculiar Sidigallu on which are represented the figure of Gaja-Lakṣmī, several symbols like the chatra, dīpa, sun, crescent, etc., a figure of Durgā, a horse with a tōraṇa behind, the severed head of a person above the horse, a person with drawn sword, etc.

SŌMEŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Sŏmēśvara temple is situated on the hill to the west of the ancient site of the Dimāla-dippe at Hungunda. The structure seems to hail from about the Chōla period, though the earliest inscription mentioning the temple is dated in 1280 A.D.

It consists of a garbhagṛiha, a vestibule and a navaraṅga in whose central ankaṇa there are four cylindrical pillars rising on square bases.

Description.

The navaraṅga has a doorway on the south and another on the north. Structurally the navaraṅga seems to be a later addition or an after-thought since its outer basement cornices do not correspond with those of the garbhagṛiha and vestibule and since its outer walls are of brick and mortar while those of the garbhagṛiha and vestibule are of stone. But the four central pillars of the navaraṅga are unmistakably of the Chōla type as also the Nandi. Perhaps, as at Hale-Ālūr in the Mysore District, there was here a Nandi pavilion originally open in front of the temple and subsequently the present navaraṅga was built so as to include this pavilion.

The outer walls of the garbhagṛiha and vestibule which are relieved by thin right-angled pilasters are raised on a basement consisting of two cornices of which one is octagonal and the other square. The caves have a sharp curve and are ornamented with kīrtimukhas at intervals on their front face.

In the navaraṅga are kept the figures of Nandi, Gaṇeśa, Vīrabhadra and Sūrya-Nārāyaṇa. The images of Nandi and Gaṇeśa are of course of the Chōla period.

The central ceiling of the navaraṅga has the figure of a padma in relief.

The doorway of the vestibule has its jambs ornamented with creeper, scroll and bead work. This ornamentation is carried over the lintel also. On either side of the doorway there is in the wall a creeper-bearing kalaśa as at the Aruṇāchalēśvara temple at Nandi. Inside the vestibule is kept a beautiful relieve figure of a seated Bhairava (or Dakṣiṇāmūrti?) (pl. IV, 4). It is a very forceful figure in bold relief with dishevelled hair and canine teeth. Seated in padmāsana the figure holds in its four hands the following attributes: abhaya, ḍamaru, snake and kapāla. There is sarpa coiling round the figure like the yajñōpavīta and the image wears nāgābharana.

The liṅga in the main cell is about 3' in height including the pedestal and is round-topped. It is worked of hard black stone.

That the temple belongs to the Chōla period is gathered by the circumstance that a Chōla copper coin was picked up near it during the time of inspection.

To the north-west of the temple are several natural caves which are worthy of detailed examination for any prehistoric remains that they may contain.

CHAUDĒŚVARĪ TEMPLE.

The temple of Chaudēśvarī is situated about a hundred and fifty yards to the east of the village. The structure seems to be of the Pāllegār period and to have been renovated in recent times. It consists of a garbhagṛiha and a front maṇṭapa only which are both in very ruinous condition.

Inside the garbhagṛiha there are independent images of the Saptamātrikas attended by Vīrabhadra and Gaṇēśa which are all very Old images. probably of the Chōḷa times. They are all in bold relief and in the seated posture on a long pedestal of recent times. They are as under :—

1. Viṇādhārī Vīrabhadra facing north with a two-handed lady attendant seated beside him.
2. Brāhmī facing east.
3. Kaumārī do
4. Vaishṇavī do
5. Vārāhī do
6. Indrāṇī do
7. Chāmuṇḍā called Chaudēśvari facing east.
8. Gaṇēśa facing south (rather small in size).

No. 7 Chāmuṇḍā is the principal deity worshipped in the temple. It is larger in size than any other image in the group. It is about Chaudesvari. 3' high and is eight-handed holding trident, dagger, sword, ḍamaru, ankuśa, bow, buckler and kapāla. She wears a garland of skulls and a skull-headed kirīṭa. She has canine teeth and flames are represented as darting from behind her head. The demon Mahisha whom she spears has fallen prostrate on the ground. The drapery of the goddess is well worked and the features of the body have a general forceful expression.

MĀRKAṆḌĒYA TEMPLE.

(Pl. VI, 2).

About two miles to the south-east of Vakkalēri, a village in the Kōlār Taluk, there is a hill known as Mārkaṇḍēśvara Beṭṭa which is noted for Situation. the large temple of Mārkaṇḍēya that has been built on its summit (Pl. VIII, 2). The structure is typically Dravidian in style and has almost all the appurtenant compartments of a South Indian temple except a huge gōpura above the mahādvāra.

It is a pity that there is no lithic record or other evidence to indicate the date of its construction, though the temple is large. We have therefore to depend primarily on architectural evidence to deduce its history by stages. The conclusions suggested here are thus tentative only and stand to be corroborated by some future discovery of inscriptional or other evidence.

Structurally the garbhagṛiha and vestibule form a distinct group and seem to have been constructed during the 14th century as indicated by the outer basement cornices which correspond to those met with at the Vidyā Śankara temple at Śrīngēri. The navaraṅga with its different basement cornices and outer walls forms the second group and may have been built during the 15th century. The third group which may have been added during the latter part of the 15th century consists of the mukhamanṭapa, the wide porch of the temple with its long flowing 'S'-shaped eaves, the kalyāṇamanṭapa to the north-east of the temple, the Vīrabhadra shrine to the south of the mukhamanṭapa with its surrounding pillared verandah and its front porch with pillars as at the porch at Kaivāra, the Nandimanṭapa, the Bali-pīṭha and the Vasanta-manṭapa. The fourth stage of addition which seems to have been made during the early part of the 16th century appears to consist of the mālādvāra and the lamp pillar only; while the fifth stage which perhaps is to be dated in the latter part of the 16th century seems to consist of the prākāra with its pillared verandah on the inside, the pillared verandah round the garbhagṛiha, vestibule and navaraṅga and the Saptamātṛika and Gaṇeśa shrines to the south and south-west of the main temple. The shrines of Kumāra (west), of Pārvatī (north-west), of Chaṇḍikēśa and Viṣṇu, called Venkaṭaramaṇa (north) and of Kālābhairava (north-east) belong to the last group and are attributable to the early part of the 17th century, while the walling up of the opening in the north-west of the mukhamanṭapa and the provision of doors and windows here and there in the temple are of recent days. The brick and mortar tower above the garbhagṛiha and the Gaṇapati shrine may belong to the 17th century.

The basement cornices of the garbhagṛiha and vestibule have the following mouldings: (1) lotus; (2) rope band as at Śrīngēri;

General description.

(3) square; and (4) square with lotus. The outer walls are relieved by dwarfish, right-angled pilasters, pilaster-bearing kalaśas with creepers and turreted niches. The turrets are boat-shaped and are surmounted by a row of finials and rise on eaves-shaped cornices. Inside the niches there are the relievo figures of:—

Garbhagṛiha and vestibule.

- South*.—(1) dancing four-handed Gaṇapati;
(2) four-handed Brahma;

West.—(3) Janārdana with abhaya, chakra, śankha and gadā;

North.—(4) Śiva; and (5) Sūrya.

Below the eaves there is a frieze of lotus moulding. The eaves are sharp and are relieved by kīrtimukha ornamentation at intervals on their surface. The brick and mortar tower is unimportant. The līṅga inside the garbhagriha is of black stone. The ceilings of the garbhagriha and vestibule are plain.

Like the garbhagriha, the navaraṅga is square in plan. The outer walls are plain and consist of oblong stone slabs which are well dressed Navaranga. and set on edges. The basement consists of three cornices as follows:— (1) square, (2) sixteen-fluted and (3) eaves-shaped with leaf ornamentation and kīrtimukha arches and seated lions at intervals.

The mukhamanṭapa which appears to have been built in imitation of the navaraṅga so far as its basement, walls and pilasters are concerned, has a doorway on the east and another on the south. On either side of each doorway there are vertical panels of figure sculptures among which may be mentioned the figure of a two-handed person (identified by the late R. Narasimhachar elsewhere as that of Sugatūr Tamme Gauḍa—M.A.R. 1919, p. 5) leaning on staff and wearing cloak to the right side of the south doorway. On either side of the doorways appear the beaded and scroll ornamentation and on the lintels are carved the figures of Gōpālakṛishṇa.

The mukhamanṭapa is an oblong hall consisting of 18 aṅkaṇas and appears originally to have had a passage in the north-western corner. The ceilings are all flat excepting only the central one which bears a padma relievō inset in a square. The pillars of the hall are Draviḍian in style with cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-sided mouldings. Their capitals have the plantain bud hangings. Above the pillars of the central square the beams have on their inner faces interesting sculptures of dancing Yakshas, moving two-handed figures, two swans with their necks inter-locked and floral work. On the cubical mouldings of the pillars appear the relievō figures of gods, etc., among which may be mentioned Ganapati, Śiva, Brahma, dancing figures, Yōgānarasimha, Vīrabhadra, rearing and seated lions, anthropoid Gaṇḍabhērūḍa, Ugra-Narasimha, Kṛishṇa and the Gōpīs, Gajāsura-mardana, a royal couple, a Siddha (with the legend Bāla-Siddhaya-Dēva), ladies engaged in kōlāṭa, etc.

That the mukhamanṭapa is a later addition or at least an after-thought is indicated by the pilasters set up against the east wall of the navaraṅga.

jambes are carved vertical panels of figure sculpture. There are also to be found the usual beaded and scroll work on the jamb and lintel. A figure of Gaja-Lakshmī decorates the lintel. The ceilings of the navaraṅga are all flat excepting for the construction of a ventilator in the central square. The pillars are like those of the mukhamantapa with figure sculptures appearing on their cubical mouldings. Among these figures appear Gaṇḍabhērūṇḍa, a lady with parrot, monkey and cobra, Bhairava, Viṣṇu, scenes of Kṛishṇa-līla, bearded drummer, huntress, a vigorous elephant, a dancer with dishevelled hair, Hanumān, a two-handed figure with something in his hands, Vidyādhari, etc.

The basement cornices of the third group of structures consisting of the wide porch in front of the temple, the kalyāṇamantapa, etc., have a uniformity of design and consist of a square cornice, a plain pilastered inner cornice and an eaves-shaped cornice ornamented with leaf designs and kīrtimukhas alternating. The pillars of the porch are all Draviḍian in style and have figure-bearing cubical mouldings alternated by eight-sided mouldings and are surmounted by capitals provided with plantain bud hangings. Among the figures appearing on the cubical mouldings are to be found those of a linga, a huntress, Kālinga-mardana, Yōgānarasimha, monkey, Kōḍaṇḍa-Rāma, Śiva, elephant, and a two-handed person wearing a cloak (identified as Sugatūr Tamme Gaṇḍa).

Each of the two rows of pillars of the kalyāṇamantapa consists of four pillars having the usual figure-bearing cubical mouldings in addition to the eight-sided mouldings. The figures appearing on the cubical mouldings are as usual and are similar to those appearing on other pillars at the temple. The Gaṇḍabhērūṇḍa appears here also. Among the pillars of the vasantamantapa those on the north side are composite. The smaller pillars are borne on seated lions and the larger ones have square bases and thirty-two-fluted shafts with circular ribbed bands and vase mouldings surmounted by leaf-shaped mouldings. On the cubical mouldings of the larger pillars appear, as on other pillars, relief figures of gods, devotees, etc. The capitals are provided with plantain bud hangings. The eaves of the vasantamantapa are similar to those of the porch. They are long and 'S'-shaped with deep flutes on the undersurface.

The outer walls of the Virabhadra shrine are relieved by plain right-angled pilasters bearing oblong brackets. Some of them have the imitation ribbed ornamentation appearing on their brackets. The eaves are sharp with mouldings suggestive of the kīrtimukha appearing at intervals on their front face. The doorway of the shrine is designed like that of the mukhamantapa with the floral, the bead and medallion ornamentation. On the lintel is a relief padma with another padma appearing on the undersurface of the lintel. The cell containing the Vīrabhadra image is oblong measuring 18' by 9'. In the middle of the shrine there is a beam poised on capitals having the plantain bud hangings issuing from the side walls. The image of Virabhadra, about 4' high, stands on a pedestal about $1\frac{3}{4}$ ' in height (pl. V, 3). The pedestal, the image and its tōraṇa are all carved of hard black stone. The god is four-handed holding sword, arrow, bow and shield. A small goat-headed attendant stands beside the god to the right with folded hands. The pedestal and the tōraṇa have been ornamented with padmas. The god stands under a kīrtimukha wearing kirīṭa on his head and moderate ornamentation on the body. He has canine teeth and his countenance is rather ferocious. The limbs are slim and the muscles are distinctly visible. The folds on the abdomen are boldly shown. On the whole the general appearance of the image leaves a good impression and suggests the influence of Hoysaḷa sculptures on the one hand and that of the Draviḍian on the other.

The pillars of the porch (Pl. V, 1 and 2) in front of the Vīrabhadra shrine generally resemble those in the front porch of the Amaranārāyaṇa temple at Kaiṇāra in the Chintāmaṇi Taluk of the Kōlār District. But unlike those pillars these are carved of hard greyish granite with a wealth of minute details of ornamentation and of figure sculpture displaying a pleasing combination of varied designs and mouldings, smaller pilasters, niches and turrets, floriated arches, kīrtimukhas and gracefully hanging creepers, Yakshas, lions and elephants, kalaśas and parrots and the figures of gods and devotees. Each pillar is differently wrought and is highly impressive in all its different compartments. All the pillars are provided with capitals of plantain bud hangings and remind us of the pillars in the kalyāṇamaṇḍapas at the Sōmēśvara temple, Kōlār, and the Bhōganandiśvara temple at Nandi. The ceiling of the porch is square and divided into nine panels with Umāmahēśvara riding on Nandi in the central panel and the figures of the Dikpālakas in the outer panels.

The mahādvāra of the temple is on the east side. It is about 20' high and raised on a basement consisting of two cornices, of which the upper one only is ornamented with the leaf, kīrtimukha and medallion designs. The walls are plain. The gateway which is about 15' high is furnished with two doorways, one on the outer side and the other on the inner side. The jambs of these doorways are well sculptured with figures of dvārapālas on the outer side and those of 'Madonna' on the inner side. Above these figures rises on the jambs an ornamental creeper scroll in the convolutions of which are carved the figures of dancing damsels, drummers, Kāliṅgamardana, peacock, Vidyādhari, Nandi, Bhaktas, sages, vigorous elephants, yālis, etc. The scroll work is carried on the lintel also. Gaja-Lakṣmī decorates the lintels of both the doorways. In addition to the scroll design, the jambs have the bead and medallion ornamentation. On the right jamb of the inner doorway is sculptured a rearing lion on a rearing elephant. On the left jamb of the same doorway is sculptured an elephant-bodied and tiger-headed monster from whose floral tail issues a creeper scroll in the convolutions of which are carved the figures of a liṅga and an archer.

The outer prākāra with its long verandah on the inner side, the pillared verandah round the garbhagṛiha, vestibule and navaraṅga of the main temple, and the Saptamātrika and Gaṇeśa shrines which all seem to belong structurally to one group, have been raised on a basement consisting of two cornice mouldings, one of which is eaves-shaped and ornamented with the leaf and kīrtimukha designs. The pillars of these structures are shorter and Dravidian in style with the usual cubical and eight-sided mouldings. They are further slightly tapering. On the cubical mouldings appear the relievo figures of gods, animals and devotees as on the other pillars of the temple. But the workmanship of these pillars is definitely inferior to that of the earlier pillars. Their capitals too are provided with plantain bud hangings, but these are rudely worked.

The Saptamātrika shrine consists of an oblong cell with a porch of four pillars in front facing the main temple. In the cell are enshrined the rude images of the Seven Holy Mothers with Viṇādhāri Vīrabhadra to their right and Gaṇeśa to their left. They are all seated in a row on a platform.

The Gaṇeśa shrine faces east and is constructed to the south-west of the main temple. It consists of a square garbhagṛiha and a front open porch of four pillars. The image of Gaṇeśa is a well worked one and carved out of black stone. Including its pedestal, it is about 2' in height. The pedestal and the image are both carved with a good taste and belong, in style, to the period when the Vīrabhadra image was carved. But the cell containing Gaṇeśa is later.

The Shanmukha shrine consists of a square garbhagṛiha and has plain basement cornices and outer walls. The two pillars of its front porch have rearing lions on elephants. The image of Shanmukha in the cell rides on a peacock. The god has twelve hands and six heads. The images of his consorts stand on separate pedestals. In their workmanship these images seem to belong to the Vīrabhadra and Gaṇeśa group. It appears that these images were enshrined in this cell at a later date.

The Pārvatī shrine consists of a small square garbhagṛiha, a small square vestibule and a front porch of four figure-bearing Dravidian pillars. The image stands on a padma pedestal and is about 3' high. In her four hands the goddess holds abhaya, padma, padma and dāna. There is no tōraṇa. In workmanship the image seems to belong to the latter part of the 16th century. The outer walls of the shrine are like those of the Shanmukha shrine.

The Chaṇḍikēśa shrine which faces south consists of one cell with an image about a foot in height including the pedestal. The image is very rudely carved. The shrine is situated to the north-west of the main temple. The Vishṇu shrine consists of a small square cell and a porch borne on four figure-bearing Draviḍian pillars. The outer walls of the shrine are plain. The god is called Venkaṭaramaṇa and is four-handed holding abhaya, chakra, śankha and dāna. The image is about 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ ' high including the pedestal. It has no prabhāvali. In workmanship it is much inferior to the images of Vīrabhadra and Gaṇēśa. The shrine of Kāla-Bhairava is designed like that of Vishṇu with a pillared porch in front and contains in its main cell an image of Bhairava, about 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ' high.

SŌMĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

Sivārapaṭṇa is a place of great antiquity situated at a distance of about 5 miles to the south-west of Vakkalēri.

The Sōmēśvara temple at the place is an old structure dating perhaps from the Chōḷa times and consisting of a garbhagṛiha, a closed vestibule and a navaraṅga with three additional open ankaṇas in front. The outer walls which are of brick and mortar and of modern date are dilapidated in several places and call for no special remark. The līṅga inside the garbhagṛiha is round-topped and thick, being about a foot or a little more in diameter. It is of black stone and is set up on a square pāṇipīṭha consisting of three cornices of which the middle one is octagonal. The līṅga and the pāṇipīṭha are about 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ ' high together.

The ceiling of the vestibule has a padma relievo inset in the middle. It is raised on two sets of corner stones with a lotus in the centre. The navaraṅga doorway has floral ornamentation on the jambs. In the central ankaṇa of the navaraṅga is a small couchant buli. It appears to be old though rather rude in workmanship. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga has a padma in relief. The four pillars of the central ankaṇa are peculiarly shaped with a low square base and an octagonal shaft superimposed by an octagonal vase moulding and an octagonal loaf-shaped moulding. The capital bears plain brackets. The two pillars of the ardhamanṭapa have also the same mouldings but have no vase. Their mouldings too are rudely worked.

The inscription standing to the north-east of the temple is dated in 753 A.D.—the 28th year of the Ganga King Śrīpurusha. Though there is no reference to the temple in the inscription, it is not impossible that the līṅga inside the garbhagṛiha hails from the Gaṅga times. The bull and the navaranga pillars appear also to belong to the same period as the līṅga. The pillars are worked of greyish granite while the līṅga and the bull are of black stone.

The images of Gaṇapati and Pārvatī are the contribution of the present-day sculptors at the village.

VARADARĀJA TEMPLE.

The Varadarāja temple which is to the east of the village is an old structure appearing to date from about the 13th century. It consists of a square garbhagriha, a square vestibule and a square navaranga. The outer walls of the garbhagriha are raised on a basement consisting of two cornices which are plain. The walls are relieved by right-angled pilasters ornamented with beaded hangings, ribbed band and vase and loaf-shaped mouldings. There are also niches on the outer walls. The eaves are sharp and have the kirtimukha designs at intervals. An inscription dated in Saumya samvatsara was discovered on the basement cornice mouldings. The characters appear to belong to the 13th century.

It is possible that the navaranga had once its outer walls built of brick and mortar as at the Sōmēśvara temple. The appearance of the navaranga is now like an open maṇṭapa. The hall is provided with a doorway on the south. The four central pillars of the navaranga are noteworthy. Each of them has a low square base superimposed by an octagonal moulding, the corner panels of the octagon having a wedge-shaped petal-like relievo figure. The shaft which rises above this moulding is sixteen-fluted with an octagonal band in the middle. This octagonal band consists of panels ornamented with scroll work. Above it at the top of the shaft is a triple ribbed band provided with floral hangings below. Above this band appears a vase-shaped moulding which is also sixteen-fluted. The navaranga ceiling has a padma inset in a square.

The doorway of the vestibule has been carved with floral ornamentation on the jambs. The garbhagriha is empty.

About ten yards to the west of the temple is a stone oil mill. To the south-west of the temple is another temple enshrining an image of Āñjanēya which appears to be of the Vijayanagar period.

town during the Hoysala period. It contains a Viṣṇu temple dedicated to the god Rāmanātha to the north-east of which the Kaṇvēśvara temple is situated. The latter is built in the Draviḍian style and consists of two garbhagrihas of which the main one only has a tower of brick and mortar. The two cells open out into a common navaraṅga of square shape.

The outer walls of the temple are raised on a basement consisting of three cornice mouldings of which the first from the bottom is octagonal, the second square and the third square with a frieze of lotus petals below. The outer walls are relieved Outer view. by right-angled pilasters with beaded hangings and biscuit-shaped mouldings. There are also, at intervals, turret-bearing niches on the outer walls. The turrets are horse-shoe-shaped. The eaves are sharp and bear kīrtimukha ornamentation here and there. The tower consists of a single turret only and is square-shaped. On the four faces of the tower are pilastered niches enshrining mutilated stucco figures of a seated four-handed Brahma (?) on the south, a seated four-handed Nara-simha on the west, a seated Śiva (?) on the north and an empty niche on the east.

The navaraṅga has a doorway on the south and a perforated window underneath a pilastered niche on the east. In front of the temple is a porch with two pillars having the cubical and eight-sided mouldings.

The pillars of the navaraṅga are similar to those of the porch in their design.

Navaranga. The ceilings are all oblong. On the second ceiling from the east there is the figure of a padma in relief. The northern cell and the north-east ankapa of the navaraṅga have been walled up recently and serve as a store room and granary. In the hall are placed the images of two Nandis, a small Gaṇeśa and a Bhairava. These images are rudely carved.

The west wall of the navaraṅga shows that the garbhagriha and the vestibule formed originally a distinct group and that perhaps when the northern cell was constructed, the navaraṅga was also built along with it. The temple abounds in inscriptions of the twelfth and the thirteenth centuries and it is highly probable that the garbhagriha and the vestibule were both constructed during the twelfth century, while the navaraṅga and the northern cell were put up some time during the early part of the 13th century. The later additions to the temple have been made in imitation of the early structure.

To the north-west of the temple is a 17th century structure built for enshrining the goddess Pārvatī. It consists of a plain characterless main

Parvati shrine. cell with a brick and mortar tower above it and a maṇṭapa in front borne on four Draviḍian pillars. The outer walls of the maṇṭapa are built of rubbles, brick and mud. The doorway is on the south. The image of Pārvatī in the cell is about 2½' high with a tōraṇa behind. The image and its tōraṇa are carved of the same stone. In workmanship the image is unmistakably of the late Vijayanagar period though the tōraṇa is present and the Vijayanagar period images do not usually have the tōraṇa.

In the south-western corner of the temple area there is a mono-celled Gaṇapati shrine which also hails from the late Vijayanagar period.

The mahādvāra is to the west of the temple area. It is dilapidated and characterless and seems to be a structure of the 17th century.

RĀMANĀTHA TEMPLE.

The Rāmanātha temple is situated at about a hundred yards to the south-west of the Kaṇvēśvara temple. The earliest inscription which History and description. mentions the god is dated in 1153 A.D. [Kōlār 100 (a) Ep. Car. X]. The god is called Venṇaikkāmayaruḷiyav-Emberumān in the inscription. The structure appears to belong to the 12th century and consists of a square garbhagṛiha, a vestibule and a navaraṅga. The last has a doorway on the east. Another doorway which was on the south has now been walled up. There is a porch in front of the southern doorway. To the east of the eastern doorway there is the mahādvāra of the temple which seems to belong to the late Vijayanagar period.

The outer walls of the temple are raised on a basement consisting of three Outer view. cornices of which the one at the bottom is octagonal, the second square and the third square with a frieze of padma petals below. The walls are relieved by right-angled pilasters with beaded hangings and loaf-shaped mouldings. There are also pilastered niches on the outer walls. Above the garbhagṛiha there is a brick and mortar tower which appears to belong to about the 17th century. The eaves are straight-sided and are relieved at intervals by kīrtimukhas.

The eastern doorway of the navaraṅga has the floral and beaded ornamentation Navaraṅga. on the pedestal, jambs and lintel. In the centre of the hall there are four well-worked bell-shaped slender pillars surrounded by an outer row of plain slender pillars with cubical bases and octagonal shafts. The four pillars in the central ankaṇa have all the mouldings of a typical Hoysaḷa pillar. The eastern pair are sixteen-fluted and the western pair are eight-sided. Considering that these pillars are carved of granite, their workmanship is remarkable inasmuch as the bell mouldings are well ornamented with gracefully hanging beads and flowers. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga has a relieve padma.

The vestibule doorway is guarded by stucco dvārapālas of the late Vijayanagar period. The main god of the temple called Veṅṇaikkāmayaruḷiyav-Emberumān in an inscription of 1153 A.D. and Vālavandār in another inscription of the time of Rāmānātha, is now missing. It is said that the present image was brought from Daḷasanūr in Śrīnivāsapur Taluk. It appears to belong to about the 14th century. Though it is called Varadarāja by the people, the god is Śrīnivāsa in form. In its four hands are held the following attributes : abhaya, chakra, śankha and kaṭi. On either side of the god stand rude smaller images of his consorts on their own pedestals. The tōraṇa and the main image are of the same stone.

Hoskote.

VIṬHŌBA TEMPLE.

The Viṭhōba temple at Hoskōṭe was built in c. 1740 A.D. The sannads belonging to the temple have been examined by the late R. Narasimhachar and noticed in the Annual Report of the Archæological Department for 1919. Built in the Marāṭha period the temple consists of a row of three cells facing east with a front maṇṭapa having tall Draviḍian type pillars. The navaraṅga doorway is flanked by a pair of elephants. The jambs of the doorway of the main cell have floral ornamentation.

In the main cell the image of Viṭhōba, carved out of black stone, stands with the hands akimbo, with the images of his consorts standing on either side. In the north cell is enshrined Hanumān with folded hands. In the south cell are the images of Garuḍa and Gaṇapati.

VARADARĀJA TEMPLE.

The temple of Varadarāja is situated at a distance of about 100 yards to the east of the Avimuktēśvara temple. It faces west with a garbhagriha, a double vestibule and a mukhamāṇṭapa. The structure seems to belong to the sixteenth century.

The god stands with his consorts in samabhaṅga holding abhaya, chakra śankha and gadā. The drapery with its conventional folds and the general features and ornamentation of the image indicate similarity with the well-known Vijayanagar period sculptures. The image wears the characteristic archaic smile and has wide nostrils. To the south of the main cell there is another cell with its own vestibule. In this cell is enshrined a 17th century image of Śrīnivāsa holding abhaya, chakra, śankha and kaṭi.

The pillars of the mukhamanṭapa are all typically Dravidian in style with the usual cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-fluted mouldings.

Pillars in mukhaman- On the cubical mouldings appear the relievo figures of

The ceiling of the mukhamanṭapa is raised on three sets of corner stones while that of the garbhagriha has been raised on two sets only. The vestibule doorway is guarded by Vaishṇava dvārapālas.

The outer walls of the mukhamanṭapa are built of brick and mud. The outer stone walls of the garbhagriha and vestibule are plain and characterless. The basement on which the outer walls are raised consists of two plain cornices. The eaves which are sharp have the imitation kīrtimukha arch designs on them. On the south basement cornice of the temple is the relief figure of a lizard. On the south outer wall is another relief figure representing peacock with creeper in its beak. There is a sōma-sūtra on the south of the garbhagriha, which is shaped like a hanging plantain bud issuing out of the mouth of a makara.

In front of the mukhamanṭapa there is a jagali on either side borne on pillars similar to those of the mukhamanṭapa. Among the relievo figures appearing on the cubical mouldings of these pillars are those of dancing ladies, loving couples, lady Vīṇā-player, Matsyāvatāra, Kōdaṇḍa-Rāma, Vāmana, Kūrmāvatāra, Narasimha, Varāha. Balarāma, Kalki and Kamba-Narasimha. The last is shown as issuing out of a pillar.

Nandagudi.

MALLĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

Nandagudi is a village about ten miles to the north-east of Hoskote. Regarding the name of the place, etc. (please see M. A. R. 1919, pp. 7-8). To the west of the village is a laterite hill called Aḍḍabetṭa at the foot of which stands on a height the temple of Mallikārjuna facing east. It was constructed in about 1550 A.D. by the Sugatūr chief Timmappa Gauḍa in the reign of the Vijayanagar king Sadāśiva Rāya,

The temple appears to have had a prākāra originally, of which only a plain mahādvāra now remains. The main building consists of a General description. garbhagriha, an open vestibule, a navaranga of nine squares and a small mukhamanṭapa or porch of one square only.

The outer walls are composed of large and heavy slabs which are all well dressed and set one on another without using mortar. The pillars are all short ones of the usual Vijayanagar type with the cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-sided mouldings. On the cubical mouldings are carved the relievo figures of Ganēśa, etc. On the lintel of the navaraṅga doorway is carved a Gaja-Lakshmī group. In front of the porch there is a balipīṭha.

To the north-west of the temple there is a small Pārvatī shrine.

SHIMOGA DISTRICT.

Anandapura.

The older name of the place is Anantapuram. About three miles to the south-east of the village there is an insignificant hamlet called Village Andhasura. Andhāsura which appears to have been an important place during the 8th century A.D. and an agrahāra town during the late Chālukya times. (See M.A.R. 1911, p. 41).

About two miles to the north-east of Ānandapura is a large pond (256' × 226') which is said to belong to the Mahanti Matha. A story is narrated that this pond was built by Śivappa Nāyaka of the Keḷadi dynasty for purposes of his recreation and that his concubine lived here. But the situation of the pond in front of a gaddige and the existence of a Basava shrine on an island in the middle of the pond suggest that a certain Vīraśaiva saint lived here during the 17th century. The pond is said to have been till recently fed by a tank situated about a mile and half to the north. The channel which is said to have conveyed the water from the tank is reported to have now become silted up. To the north of the pond there is a bull carved out of stone with its mouth open and it is said that water used to flow through the mouth of this bull into the pond. To the south of the pond is a sluice through which water is said to have been conveyed by means of a channel to irrigate the wet lands of Mallandūr.

The island in the middle of the pond is connected with the western bank of the pond by a stone-built causeway. Facing the Basava shrine stand on the western bank of the pond two huge stone elephants which are well carved and caparisoned.

The Basava shrine on the island consists of a single square shrine whose outer walls are built of brick and mortar on a stone-built basement. The shrine faces west and its doorway is designed like a Moslem arch with brick and mortar scroll work on either side. The figures of parrot are freely used for purposes of ornamentation. The cell is surmounted by a stepped pyramidal tower consisting of three tiers with indented corners. A rudely shaped lotus bud terminates the tower. On the northern basement of the temple there is a sōmasūtra shaped like a hanging plantain bud. The bull inside the shrine is rudely carved of stone.

The island on which the shrine is built rises in three tiers and is built of large blocks of jambitṭige or laterite which is found in large quantities in the locality. The sides of the pond are also built of such blocks while stone steps are used sparingly.

OTHER TEMPLES IN THE VILLAGE.

Inside the village of Ānandapura there are three modern temples built for enshrining the rude images of a līṅga, Hanumān, and Raṅganātha. The god Raṅganātha is actually Kōdaṇḍa-Rāma. It is a very rude image belonging to about the 17th century. It is four-handed holding arrow, chakra, śaukha and bow. The limbs of the images are out of all proportion and the god wears whiskers like Bēṭerāya. In the compound of the Raṅganātha temple there are smaller relievo images of Garuḍa, Kōdaṇḍa-Rāma, a two-handed goddess attended by cows, and Vīrañjanēya. The last image wears a long śikhā standing on end and terminating in a loop. The temples are all architecturally unimportant.

Hosagunda.

Hosagunda is a village situated amidst thick jungle at a distance of about eight miles to the north-west of Ānandapura. During the 12th and 13th centuries, the place was the capital of the Śāntara chiefs and must have been a prosperous town with a fort all round and several temples inside. Of these temples two at least are known: one of them is the soap-stone temple of Īśvara and the other is an insignificant temple of Kañchi-Kālamā.

ĪŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Īśvara temple is a good monument built in the Nāḍkalasi style (Pl. VIII, 1).

It consists of a garbhagriha surrounded by an inner pradakṣhiṇā and of a large and well-worked mukhamanṭapa with stone benches and railings on the east, south and north sides.

Outside view.

The structure is raised on a basement consisting of four cornices running uniformly all round. These cornices are all plain. The outer walls are built of plain slabs placed edgewise one on another. A plain cornice runs in the middle of the walls. The eaves which are 'S'-shaped ran originally all round the temple. The under-surface of the eaves is worked in imitation of wooden rafters. It is not known if there had been originally a tower above the garbhagriha.

The best part of the temple is its mukhamanṭapa which is entered by flights of steps on the east, south and north. The railings of the stone benches have been carved with turret-bearing pilasters and a frieze of sculptures in the panels between double columns. Among the sculptures many are obscene. On the northern panels are found the figures of the Ashta-Dikpālakas. On the south-western panels occur the figures of dancing Gaṇeśa, a yati riding on makara and holding a disc in his right hand, a two-handed figure with a masked face also holding a disc in his right hand, Lakshmaṇa (?) holding a woman's (? Śūrpanakhī's) tuft and in the attitude of striking, Kōdaṇḍa-Rāma with Sītā, etc.

Inside the mukhamanṭapa the pillars on the benches are mostly sixteen-fluted, the flutes being boldly carved. The north-east and south-east pillars, however, are cylindrical. In the centre of the mukhamanṭapa there are six pillars which are bell-shaped and lathe-turned and well ornamented with the chain, the rope, medallion, scroll and other designs. These pillars are set up on an oblong platform. Among the ceilings of the mukhamanṭapa there are ten in the outer row and two in the middle. The ceilings of the outer row are mostly of one type carved in the middle with a large padma inset in an ornamental square band. Each of the two central ceilings is divided into nine panels in each of which is carved a padma with a pendant in the middle panel.

The doorway leading to the inner pradakṣhiṇā bears a well-carved lintel and has perforated screens on either side. Against the southern wall of the pradakṣhiṇā is set up a Saptamātrika panel. The doorway of the main cell has on its lintel the figure of Sarasvatī holding in her four hands rosary, ankusa, pāśa and book.

The main cell is empty. Part of a pedestal is kept against the west wall of the cell. The west wall has a middle cornice band. The ceilings of the inner pradakṣhiṇā are all plain.

Immediately to the north-east of the Īśvara temple is a smaller shrine with a stone-stepped pyramidal tower above it. The outer walls of the shrine are plain, and inside the shrine there is no image.

Mallandur.

Near the Dēvarakere tank belonging to Mallandūr, a village about 2 miles on the way from Ānandapura to Gauja, there are found a few māstikals of which one contains the large figure of a mahāsati with her right hand raised up and her left holding what appears to be a kamaṇḍalu. In the right field of the sculpture is inscribed an inscription in Kannaḍa characters of about the 10th century A.D. A little distance to the south-south-west of the sati stone is a mon-ocelled shrine built of laterite blocks dedicated to a god locally called Rāmanāthadēvar but containing a liṅga about 2½' high including the pedestal on which it is set up. In front of the temple there are a fragmentary Saptamātrikā panel and two vīragals of which one is published in the Epigraphia Carnatica, Shimoga District, as Sagar No. 119. In the neighbourhood of the sati stone mentioned above are also found several vīragals and more sati stones bearing characters of about the 13th century A.D. Among them there is also an inscription of the Rāshtrakūṭa period.

Gauja.

The village of Gauja is situated at a distance of about five miles to the north-east of Ānandapura. It appears to have been an ancient agrahāra town, though it is now an insignificant place. Very near the village there are several temples of later days.

The Durgā temple is a modern structure in an open field and contains in its main cell the head of a wooden image which is worshipped as Mārammā. In another open field to the east of the Durgā temple is a māsṭikal with illegible characters of the 14th century. The Nāgara temple nearby is also a modern structure built of laterite blocks and containing a soap-stone relievo figure of a five-headed serpent. At a little distance to the east of this temple there are four vīragals containing inscriptions (see M.A.R. 1930, pp. 228 ff.). To the north of the vīragals is a dilapidated structure of laterite blocks containing a small relievo figure, about 2½' high, of a four-handed Janārdana on a Garuḍa pedestal. The image is very rude and may belong to about the 18th century. About 20 yards to the north of the Janārdana temple is a mono-celled temple, also built of laterite blocks, enshrining an image of Vīrabhadra, about 2½' high, holding in its four hands sword, arrow, bow and shield. The image is very ugly and is perhaps of the 18th century. Above the cell there is a stepped pyramidal tower.

At a distance of about 50 yards to the north-west of the Vīrabhadra temple is situated a tiled structure of recent times dedicated to the goddess Banaśankarī. In the principal cell of this structure are seated three colossal stucco images of female deities painted over in different colours. The first goddess from the left is two-handed, the right being in abhaya with chin-mudrā and the left disposed palm upwards with the fingers closed. The middle deity is also two-handed with abhaya and dāna. But the third goddess is four-handed holding a sword, (blank), ankuśa and bowl. This deity only has canine teeth. All the three images are said to be very old, though the structure is of recent days. We may ascribe the images to about the 17th century and compare them with the stucco image in Settigere (see M.A.R. 1936, pp. 18-19) near Bēlūr. Each of these images is about 6' high. To the right of the platform on which the images are seated is a soap-stone image of Gaṇeśa which appears to be of the 14th century. In the compound of the temple are two māsti stones of about the 14th century.

GAUTAMĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

About half a mile to the east of the Banāśaṅkarī temple, we come across a large pond, about 100' by 150', with steps built of laterite blocks.

Rashtrakuta structure. To the north of the pond is situated the Gautamēśvara temple which appears to be a very old structure of the Rāshtrakūṭa period judging from the plan of the temple, the huge līṅga in the cell, the two vigorous elephants at some distance to the east of the temple and the several inscriptions to the south-east of the temple.

As it is, the temple consists of the main cell only which is built of laterite blocks in an apsidal plan. The beams inside the cell are also disposed like an apse. Originally the temple seems to have contained a pradakṣiṇā around the garbhagṛiha and a mukhamanṭapa in front as can be seen from the basement that is still existing of these compartments. To the east of the mukhamanṭapa there is a flight of dark stone steps supported on either side by elephants (Pl. VIII, 2). The features of these elephants remind us of those met with at Ellōra. Though these elephants are in a broken condition now, the contour of their limbs is clearly marked, their ears are very well worked and the folds on the trunks are boldly carved.

One of the inscriptions to the south-east of the temple mentions the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kannara (Kṛishṇa) and the god Gautamēśvara to whom donations are said to have been made. The līṅga in the cell is huge and is about 3½ feet high including the pedestal. Its top is shaped like a cone. The chandra-śīla in front of the doorway is well carved with floral, scroll and padma designs (Pl. VIII, 3).

SŪRYA SHRINE.

On the east bank of the pond is situated the Sūrya shrine facing west. It contains a very good image of a four-handed Sūryanārāyaṇa standing about 4 feet high excluding the pedestal (Pl. IX, 1). On the pedestal are carved the seven horses driven by the charioteer Aruṇa. On either side of the god are found the usual female attendants and figures of Chhāyā in the attitude of shooting arrows. The tōraṇa is shaped like a horse-shoe and carved with the figures of rearing lions, makaras and the Aṣṭa-Dikpālakas on their several vehicles. In his hind hands the god holds prayōga-chakra and śankha. His fore hands are placed on his hip, the right one with the palm turned to front and the left with the palm turned backwards. Under each arm pit a lotus is shown as issuing upwards. The drapery and the ornaments of the god are carved with a pleasing taste. The god wears yajñōpavīta in addition to the usual ornaments like the makarakuṇḍala, etc. It is possible that the image is of the same period as the Gautamēśvara temple and belonged originally to the Śivapanchāyatana group of images at the temple. The facial features of the image, however, are not very expressive.

At the north-western corner of the pond is a fragmentary Saptamātrikā panel.

Shikarpur.

HUCCHARĀYA TEMPLE.

Shikārpur is the headquarters of a taluk in the Shimoga District. The most popular temple at the place is the Huccharāya temple.

Tradition. It enshrines an image of Vīrāñjanēya in its main cell and a story is narrated explaining how the god came to be called Huccharāya. It is said that the place was known in olden times as Malenahalli and that a certain Lingāyat saint by name Huccharāya came over here once and worshipped an image of the god Hanumantarāya. This image, they say, is the one now enshrined in a cell in the kaisāle of the temple. It is said that this image was broken and became useless for worship during the troublous period in the days of Tippu Sultan. The Lingāyat saint mentioned above is said to have come again to the place at this juncture and to have consecrated the present image of Āñjanēya in the main cell. He is said to have given the idol his own name. Whatever the truth be regarding the story, it is probable that the temple belongs to the days of Kanthīrava Narasārāja Voḍeyar since the older image in the kaisāle of the temple has a silver kirīṭa bearing his inscription.

The original temple seems to have consisted of the garbhagrīha and vestibule only. It is raised on a basement consisting of two plain cornices. The outer walls are relieved by Dravidian pilasters on whose mouldings appear the following figures: a ṛishi riding on matsya, a seated yāli, another seated ṛishi but without the matsya, Ugranarasimha, etc. On the outer walls are carved the relievo figures of a tiger, a liṅga carried by a two-handed person (Bhīma?) and worshipped by Puruṣamṛiga on the one side and Hanumān on the other, Hanumān attended by chauri-bearers, a rudra-vīṇa player, a Gaṇḍabhērūṇḍa, Vāli and Sugrīva fighting, and a story concerning an elephant, a peacock and a crocodile. The eaves of the original temple are straight-sided and the tower is of brick and mortar. The latter has been renovated recently. The vestibule has a doorway on the east and another doorway on the south. The southern doorway is the main one and is guarded by two Vaishṇava dvārapālas. The pilasters on this side are indented in imitation of Hoysaḷa workmanship. On the lintel is carved a Gajalakshmi group. On the lintel of the garbhagriha doorway the image of Gaṇapati is carved. He is supported by elephants and cobras.

The image of Vīrañjanēya in the cell is in the striking attitude. In front of the temple is a large hall with tiled roofing. It is of recent times. In a compartment of the hall are installed the stone images of Kōḍaṇḍa-Rāma, Lakshmaṇa and Sītā which are all of modern workmanship.

On the right jugali of the temple is a Hoysaḷa soap-stone image of the goddess Sarasvatī evidently brought from elsewhere. On the left jugali is a recent ugly image which is locally called Sītā.

The Kēdārēśvara and Tripurāntakeśvara temples at Belgāmi are described in detail in the Annual Report of the Archæological Survey for the year 1931, pp. 58-65. Here in Plates IX, X, XII and XIV, some further illustrations are included to give an idea of the high standard of the art and architecture of the periods in which these temples were built. A detailed survey of the site of the old town was also made at the time of inspection this year and the following points of interest were noted.

The beams of the central ceiling of the mukhamanṭapa at the Tripurāntakeśvara temple are carved with friezes of sculpture as in page 79.

In the kapa or hittalu belonging to Gurupāda Gauḍa there are lying some good images of which one is a fine group of a Nāga couple.

About 150 yards to the north-east of the Tripurāntakēśvara temple lie the ruins

esvara. of the Brahmēśvara temple. The walls, pillars, etc., of the original temple have all disappeared now; but, here and there, appear certain bricks suggesting that the walls had been built of bricks. The ancient Brahmēśvara līṅga is about 3½' high and is carved on each of its four faces with a head wearing makara-kunḍalas and phālākṣha (Pl. XI, 2).

Among the jaṭāmakuṭas over the heads, that on the head on the north side is better carved than the others. The pedestal of the liṅga is broken; a part of it only is now lying near the liṅga. In front of the liṅga there is a broken image of Nandi which must have been a very good piece originally, as suggested by the well-carved hump and the clearly marked folds behind the left hind leg.

At a distance of about 50 yards to the south-east of the Brahṁēśvara temple, there is the mound of another Śiva temple with only the original liṅga existing now. The liṅga is round-topped and is about 2½' high including the pedestal. To the south of the mound are the ruins of yet another Śiva temple with the liṅga and Nandi only existing now. This liṅga is flat-headed. In the neighbourhood of this mound, there are several more mounds which evidently mark the sites on which stood other temples of ancient Belgāmi. The ancient town site must have stretched in a triangle between the road leading from Belgāmi to Tālagunda on the west and that leading from Belgāmi to Yeḍavatti-Koppa on the south.

About a hundred yards to the south of the Brahṁēśvara temple stood originally a Jaina temple. Directly to the west of the temple site is now lying the broken image of the Tīrthankara which had been enshrined in the temple. The people call it Bhētāḷa. Nearby lies the mutilated image of his attendant. A little distance to the north of the site is another Jaina temple mound. These ruins indicate that this part of the ancient town was the Jaina quarters. On the site of the second Jaina temple is found the image of a Jaina attendant with two hands holding chāmara and phala. This image shows good workmanship. On the sites were picked up tile pieces of the Hoysala period. On another Jaina temple mound to the north of the Yeḍavatti-Koppa road is lying the mutilated image of Pārsvanātha whose head has now disappeared.

A little distance to the south-west of the Sōmēśvara temple in the village and on the south bund of a pond is found a Jaina inscription of 1077 A.D. (see E. C. Shimoga, Sk. 124) in the vicinity of which are lying a late stone relievo of Mahishāsura-mardini and a broken image of a seated Jaina in dhyānāsana. The latter image is very well executed.

The Virabhadra temple inside the village of Belgāmi is a Chālukyan structure whose outer wall slabs have fallen, though the interior is intact. The temple consists of a garbhagṛiha, a closed vestibule, a navaraṅga and a modern maṭṭapa or verandah. In the last compartment are set up two bell-shaped pillars similar in character to the pillar near the Nīlakaṇṭhēśvara temple. A standing Pārvatī-Paramēśvara group is also set up by the side of the steps leading to the verandah. This group is said to have been brought from the Pañchalīṅgēśvara temple. The central pillars of the navaraṅga are bell-shaped and lathe-turned. The central ceiling is raised on two sets of corner stones with a padma in the centre. In the navaraṅga are placed the following images: Nandi facing Vīrabhadra, Gaṇeśa, six-headed Kumāra on peacock, Saptamātrikā panel and a Nāga stone. The doorway of the vestibule has perforated screens on either side. A Gaja-Lakshmī group is carved on the lintel. The image of Vīrabhadra inside the garbhagṛiha is rudely worked and appears to be a sculpture of the Pālḷēgār period.

The Sōmēśvara temple mentioned above is a structure of the Chālukya period and was constructed in about 994 A.D. It consists of a garbhagṛiha, a closed vestibule and a navaraṅga. The outer walls are raised on a basement consisting of five plain cornices, the last of which has dentil mouldings. The garbhagṛiha and the navaraṅga are both square in plan. The walls are plain except for a middle cornice band running uniformly all round the temple. This cornice is carved with a frieze of rhomboidal rosettes. The eaves are short and ornamented with dentil mouldings. The temple has no tower. The navaraṅga doorway is approached by a flight of steps supported by ridden elephants. In front of the navaraṅga there is a narrow verandah. On the lintel of the navaraṅga doorway is carved a Gaja-Lakshmī group. On either side of the doorway there are perforated screens. Among the ceilings of the navaraṅga only the central one has a padma in its centre. The other ceilings are all plain. Two pillars in the central ankaṇa of the navaraṅga are bell-shaped and the other two have the cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-fluted mouldings. The doorway of the vestibule has perforated screens on either side and a perforated upper antel in the middle of which is carved a liṅga. On either side of the vestibule doorway is a niche containing images of Gaṇeśa. The image in the southern niche is an old piece. The jambs of the vestibule doorway have fluted pilasters and vertical bands of medallions. The ceiling of the vestibule is raised on two sets of corner stones with a fine padma in the centre. Inside the vestibule is kept a Nandi of later times. A Gaja-Lakshmī group is carved on the lintel of the garbhagṛiha doorway. The ceiling of the garbhagṛiha is similar in design to the vestibule ceiling. The Sōmēśvara liṅga inside the garbhagṛiha is flat-headed and about 3' high including the pedestal. In the middle of the west and north side walls of the garbhagṛiha runs a cornice band.

In front of the temple there are a mutilated image of Sarasvatī and a broken Saptamātrikā panel. There are also several vīragal inscriptions. To the north-east of the temple there are the images of a Durgā and a Lakshmīnārāyaṇa group. Three new inscriptions were discovered in the mango grove in front of the temple.

In a field immediately to the south-west of the Bhērūṇḍēśvara pillar is lying the inscription stone No SK. 152 on which, besides the inscription, is carved an interesting panel of sculpture depicting the self-sacrifice of a person (Pl. XIII, 1). The stone is pointed out as Śūla-Brahma by the villagers.

A little distance to the north of the Bhērūṇḍēśvara pillar and on the south-west bund of Jiddikere is a seated image of Trimūrtis (Pl. XI, 1).

Trimurti image.

The god is seated in dhyānāsana. His central face is that of Śiva. The image is well ornamented with jaṭā-makuṭa over the central head and kirīṭa-makuṭas over the other two. The god wears makara-kunḍalas, necklets, bracelets, armlets and anklets and also the yajñōpavīta. His two fore hands are placed palm on palm in the dhyāna attitude. Of the two hind hands the right one is broken and the left one holds padma. The pedestal of the image is plain.

About ten yards to the south of the Trimūrti image mentioned above and in the south-west corner of the Jiddikere tank is a dilapidated pavilion enshrining a līṅga, about 3' high including its pedestal. On the west bund of the tank lies a mutilated image of Ugra-Narasimha which is very boldly carved (Pl. XI, 3). The image was consecrated and a temple was built for it in about 1070 A.D. (see E.C. Shimoga, Sk. 130).

A little to the north of the Narasimha image stands the temple of Kālikādēvī.

Kalikadevi temple.

It is a 16th century structure according to the inscription inscribed on the lintel of the garbhagṛiha doorway. It consists of a garbhagṛiha and a front maṇṭapa only. The four pillars in the middle ankaṇa of the maṇṭapa have the cubical, sixteen-sided, cylindrical and eight-sided mouldings. The roof of the hall is low and the central ceiling only is a little deep, being raised on two sets of corner stones. Inside the garbhagṛiha the image of Kālikādēvī is in relief. The goddess is two-handed holding an uplifted sword in the right hand and a buckler in the left. Her right knee is folded up. Below her is an elephant whose head is severed and a human figure if shown as issuing forth therefrom. To the left of the goddess the elephant god Gaṇēśa is seated. To her right are three severed human heads. On either side of the goddess are two chāmara-holding male attendants.

The outer walls of the Kālikādēvī temple are plain. But the outer walls of the garbhagṛiha have in the middle a horizontal cornice band. The stone tower above the garbhagṛiha is square and rises in three tiers. The corners of the tower are indented.

On the south bund of the Jiddikere tank is situated a dilapidated stone temple dedicated to Nīlakaṇṭhēśvara. It appears to be a Chālukyan structure similar to the Tripurāntakēśvara temple in several features. One of its pillars (Pl. XII, 1 and 2), lying by the side of the road is similar to those in the navaraṅga of the Tripurāntaka temple. On the basement of the pillar are graceful towered canopies with turretbearing corner pilasters. Under the canopies beautiful figures of Bhairava and so on are standing. The shaft of the pillar has the disc, bell, vase and wheel mouldings, many of the discs being minutely carved with miniature scroll work interspersed by kirtimukhas, small figures of Yakshas, etc., appearing in the convolutions. On other discs appear graceful figures of medallions. On the bell moulding are carved beaded garland hangings and beautiful banded designs. On the four faces of the highly ornamented vase moulding occur flying figures of Yakshas.

The basement of the temple is high and consists of five cornices of which the fourth from the bottom has dentil mouldings at intervals. The outer walls of the temple are plain. The navaraṅga of the temple has completely disappeared. The doorway of the vestibule is well ornamented with vertical ornamental bands on the jambs. These bands consist of rosettes, scroll work with dancing figures in the convolutions, a pilaster whose shaft is shaped like a series of vases placed one upon another, rearing lions interspersed by scroll and a rope design with medallions at intervals. Underneath each vertical band is a panel containing some figure sculpture. The extreme panels on either side have dancing figures of Śaiva dvārapālas and the other panels have female figures standing in different attitudes. On the lintel of the doorway is carved the figure of Gaja-Lakshmī. The garbhagṛiha doorway also has a Gaja-Lakshmī group but the jambs are plain. The līṅga inside the garbhagṛiha is about 2' high including the pedestal.

Full notes on the Pañchaliṅga temple are published in M. A. R. 1931. In the navaraṅga of this temple are kept the following beautiful

1. Sūryanārāyaṇa (Pl. IX, 2).
2. Umāmahēśvara (Pl. I, Frontispiece).
3. Kumāra (ordinary sculpture).
4. Intertwining Nāgas.
5. Couchant Nandī.
6. Mahishāsura-mardīnī.
7. A Saptamātṛikā panel.

To the north of the Pañchaliṅga temple is a dilapidated līṅga shrine and to its north is the Anantapadmanābha temple. In the latter temple the god Anantapadmanābha sleeps on a seven-hooded serpent, with the ten avatārs appearing on the prabhāvaḷi.

A goddess is massaging the god's right foot and another goddess is seated by the side of the god's head. From the navel of the god issues forth a lotus on which Brahma is seated. On the south pillar of the mukhamanṭapa is a Kalachurya inscription recording that the temple was built in the fourth year of Bijjala (1165 A.D.).

The open ground to the east of the temple is full of mounds containing the vestiges of old temples. Several līṅgas are to be found here and there.

Another Virabhadra temple stands about 200 yards to the west of the Jiḍḍikere tank. It consists of a garbhagriha with a rude image of Virabhadra which appears to belong to the 16th century. But the indented pilasters on either side of the maṇṭapa are of the Hoysala period.

Virabhadra temple,

A few yards to the north-east of this temple is a broken image of Tārā (Pl. XI, 4) which is very beautifully carved. By its side is the image of a male god which also is beautiful. It sits in sukhāsana and wears the yajñōpavīta. Its head is unfortunately missing.

An image of Mahishāsuramardīnī is lying by the side of the road leading to Ānavattī. To the left of the road is the Kallēśvara temple which contains a garbhagriha and a front maṇṭapa.

About a hundred yards to the north of the Kallēśvara temple is a mound which marks the site of an ancient temple dedicated to Kālī. The image only is now existing. It is ten-handed and holds snake, flame (?), indistinct, sword and triśūla in the right hands and mace, ḍamaru, indistinct, broken and human head in the left hands. The goddess wears a jaṭāmakuṭa and moustaches. Besides the usual ornaments a yajñōpavīta and a garland of skulls are also worn by her. On either side of her are the dancing figures of attendants. The breast of the goddess is bare. The limbs are slim and the general features impressive. The image might be assigned to about the 11th century.

At a distance of about 50 yards to the west of the Kālamāmā temple mound is situated another ancient temple which is locally called Onake-hondada Basavanna temple. The structure is very much dilapidated, the slabs of the outer walls and tower having collapsed completely. The temple was perhaps built during the 9th century A.D. The inscription E.C. VII, Sk. 154 of 685 A.D. stands to the left of the doorway. It records some grant but does not mention the temple. The structure, as it now stands, contains only the garbhagriha whose doorway is well carved with the following vertical bands on its jambs: (1) medallions; (2) scroll work with figures appearing in its several convolutions; (3) rearing lions; (4) fluted pilaster with ornamental bands and kalasa; and (5) a rope design secured at intervals by padma medallions. On the lintel of the doorway is carved the relievo figure of Gaja-Lakshmi. Inside the garbhagriha on a broad pāṇipīṭha is set up the broken liṅga which is about 3' high including the pedestal. To the south-east of the temple is an Umamahēśvara group which has an inscription on its pedestal recording that it was consecrated by one Goppa or Roppaganna. The characters seem to belong to about the 11th century A.D. The image is extraordinarily beautiful and is a typical example of Chālukya sculpture. The god sits with his right leg placed on Nandī. Pārvatī is seated on the god's left lap. In the four hands of the god are held the following attributes : broken, trisūla, ḍamaru and round Pārvatī. The god wears yajñōpavita and a graceful jaṭāmakuṭa. His ears are however ornamented with makarakuṇḍalas. The smile on the face of the god is clearly visible and renders the image highly attractive. The image of the goddess is even more attractive. Her slim waist and her well-dressed hair are very impressive. On her forehead are arranged beautiful curls. Behind her head the hair is gracefully tied up into a beautiful knot and secured by an ornament. The left leg of the goddess is placed on a lotus underneath which are carved the figures of a crocodile and a Bhṛīṅgi goblin. The group is attended by Gaṇeśa on the right and by Kumāra on the left. The tōraṇa is carved with creeper scroli and rearing lions. A few yards away in front of the temple is a pavilion enshrining the image of a couchant Nandi.

Talagunda.

The Praṇavēśvara temple at Tālagunda has been described in M.A.R. 1932, pp. 56-57. Inside the village there is a temple of Gaṅgā-dharēśvara containing a liṅga and a Basava of later times. To the north of the village and near a hoṇḍa, there is a Hanumān temple containing a Vīrañjanēya image of the early Vijayanagar period. In front of the temple there is a tōraṇa gateway with its lintel piece carved with the figures of lion heads on either side of a padma. To the left of the padma stands a two-handed figure holding a kamaṇḍalu and a staff and wearing a garland of rudrāksha.

A few yards to the west of the Hanumān temple is the Vīrabhadra temple which appears to be a Chālukyan structure of about the 11th century A.D. The view of the outer walls is hidden by the recently put up mud walls all round the temple. The wide verandah of wooden pillars in front of the temple is of the 19th century. It was put up in 1814 A.D. according to an inscription that is found on one of the wooden pillars. The old temple consisted of just a garbhagriha with an open maṇṭapa in front. The latter has now been walled in on the east and west and a middle wall has been put up east to west and provided with a wooden doorway which, in design, follows the Hoysala model and is perhaps the work of the 14th century. In the scroll convolutions of the jambs appear parrots. The wooden door is a good piece well ornamented with bands on the jambs. The stone pillars of the front row in the maṇṭapa have each a cubical base and a cylindrical shaft surmounted by the wheel moulding and imitation ribbed brackets. The stone doorway of the garbhagriha is Chālukyan in style and is ornamented with the usual floral, scroll and other vertical bands on the jambs. The lintel bears a Gaja-Lakṣmī group. The image of Virabhadra in the garbhagriha is carved in imitation of Hoysala sculptures and appears to be a 14th century image. The god is in the pose of marching to left holding in his four hands sword, arrow, bow and shield. He wears a garland of skulls and has moustaches. The original Chālukyan image of Vīrabhadra is now found half buried in the open verandah behind the temple. It is a good image.

To the north-east of the Vīrabhadra temple are found certain māsṭikals and vīragals. Among them is a māsṭikal looking like a pillar, about 10' high, with the hand of the mahā-sati raised up on the east side.

In the open fields further west of the Vīrabhadra temple appear on the ground several mounds which evidently mark the sites of the buildings of the old town of Tālagunda. Bricks resembling those of the Śātavāhana period and measuring $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8'' \times 3''$ are found in several places. The ancient site appears to have been extensive. The villagers say that occasionally gold fanams of small size are found on the site. These fanams might be of the Hoysala period. On the hill called Maṭhada-guḍḍa to the south-east of the Praṇavēśvara temple are the ruins of a Narasimha temple. A highly mutilated figure of a god who cannot be identified, is lying on the temple site. Some 50' to the south-east of this site there is to be found an ancient watch tower called hode by the local people. It is round in plan and about 30' in diameter. It is said that there are two more of such mounds in the neighbourhood of Tālagunda: one behind the Vīrabhadra temple, about 250 yards from this place, and the other inside the present village of Tālagunda. To the south of the Praṇavēśvara temple also there are traces of the old town.

For the description of the Praṇavēśvara temple see M.A.R. 1932. The garbhagriha doorway jambs are carved out of Kadamba inscription stones. The workmanship of the doorway is of a later period, perhaps of the 11th century. But the pillars behind the garbhagriha doorway look much older. The southern pillar has a square base, a sixteen-fluted shaft with an eight-sided band in the middle, then a cubical moulding and finally the vase and wheel mouldings. The northern pillar has also a square base; but its shaft is eight-sided with octagonal bands and a cubical moulding surmounted by a vase and a wheel. The temple seems to have consisted originally of the garbhagriha only. But some time later, that is, perhaps during the Chālukya period, it seems to have been restored and the front maṭṭapa and doorway seem to have been provided.

Bandalike.

Bandalike was last visited during the year 1932 and an account of some of the temples at the place was published in the annual report of the Archæological Department for that year. In this report is given an account of the other temples at the place.

OLD BASTI.

At the north end of the tank is situated the old basti. The inscription Sk. 219 of 912 A.D. which stands at the entrance to the basti History. mentions a certain basadi and says that it was endowed by Jākiyable. But this is not the basti referred to in the inscription since it seems to be definitely of a later period structurally. However, it must have been constructed, at any rate, long before 1200 A.D. since, as mentioned on one of the pillars in the mukhamanṭapa, it was renovated in about 1200 A.D.

The upper portion of the outer walls of the garbhagriha does not correspond to the basement which is square and indented in plan and consists of three cornices of which the lower two have the uncarved dentil and other mouldings. The plan and construction of the basement appear to be similar to those met with in the Pārśvanātha Basti at Halebid, the Kēśava temple at Dinḍagūr, etc. These and other architectural features of the temple, like the pillars, etc., definitely suggest that the basti is not of so early a date as 912 A.D. The original wali appears to have been ornamented with rows of pilasters. The basement cornices end at the south-west and north-west corners of the navaraṅga. The corner pilasters at the south-west and north-west of the outer walls have each a square base with hooded corners at the top. The shaft of each pilaster has been carved with the figure of an indented smaller pilaster issuing out of a horse-shoe design and ending in leafy hangings on either side. At the neck of the pilaster is a horizontal plain moulding with hooded corners. Above this moulding and between the hooded designs is carved a horse-shoe-shaped canopy with the figure of a padma medallion in its centre. The outer walls of the garbhagriha and navaraṅga, as they now stand, are plain and were in all probability constructed when the temple was repaired in 1200 A.D. The caves, parapets and tower of the temple are all missing.

The mukhamanṭapa is cruciform in plan and its basement consists of four cornices of which the third and the fourth from the bottom have dentil mouldings. Above the basement is worked a stone railing all along the outer edge of the manṭapa. The railing is divided into several panels by double columns which have cubical and eight-sided mouldings. In the panels appear flowers, dancing and obscene figures and figures of musicians resembling those on the old railing in the mukhamanṭapa of the Pārśvanātha Basti at Halebid. Above these sculptured panels the railing has a scroll frieze at the top.

The eastern flight of steps of the mukhamanṭapa is supported on either side by well-carved figures of dvārapālas just in front of the projecting bases meant for elephants or lions. Originally a stone bench ran all round the mukhamanṭapa on the inner side. The pillars standing on the bench have octagonal bases and sixteen-fluted shafts. The central four pillars of the mukhamanṭapa stand on stylobates carved with dentil mouldings. The bases are square and the shafts have the following mouldings in order from below : (1) short and sixteen-fluted, (2) eight-sided, (3) sixteen-fluted, (4) eight-sided band carved with floral design, (5) sixteen-fluted, (6) eight-sided, (7) cubical and plain, and (8) drum and wheel. The bases of these pillars as also those of the pillars standing in the outer row of the central ankapa suggest that at the time of the renovation of the temple the roof of the mukhamanṭapa was raised. The central ceiling of the mukhamanṭapa is divided into thirty panels with no figures in any of them. The south-west and north-west pillars of the mukhamanṭapa form a group by themselves. Their shafts are square and indented, each indented face being divided by three cornice bands into nine panels. In these panels are carved floral designs as follows : The middle panel at the bottom of each face has a lotus with stalk. The side panels at the top have leafy representations. Above these panels the four faces of the shaft have graceful horse-shoe-shaped canopies on either side of which the corners of the shaft have hooded mouldings. Above the canopies the drum mouldings appear surmounted by a square and indented abacus. The brackets above the abacus are ribbed in the Chōḷa pattern.

The east outer wall of the navaraṅga has a middle cornice band ornamented with single flowers between single columns. The navaraṅga doorway is a well-carved soap-stone piece ornamented with jambs each of which has a base with a group of Rati and Manmatha and a seated Yaksha carved on it. Above the base there are five vertical bands as follows : (1) floral, (2) rope design secured at intervals by square padma medallions, (3) a pilaster shaped like a plantain tree with its shaft gracefully intertwined by a creeper and with figures of Yakshas carved on it, (4) a square pilaster whose front face is carved with low relief figures of horse-shoe-shaped canopies and creeper and floral designs, and (5) a vertical scroll band having in its convolutions seated figures of Yakshas. This scroll ornamentation is carried over the lintel of the doorway. Above the doorway the eaves have a row of geese below them and horse-shoe-shaped arches on their front face. Each of the jambs of the doorway has the carving of a chakrabandha with an inscription inscribed in it.

The navaraṅga is a hall of nine ankapas whose central pillars are fully developed specimens of the lathe-turned bell shape with leaf moulding as at the Kēdārēśvara temple in Halebidu. These pillars and the doorway above described indicate that the Hoysalas closely followed the architectural traditions of the Chālukyas. The beams are ornamented with dentil mouldings and their undersurfaces have the carvings of padmas in good relief. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga is flat and divided into nine panels which have no figures in them.

2. LINGA KALESVARA TEMPLE, BHARANGI (p. 101).

4. VASTIRULE DOORWAY, OLD EAST, BANDALIKE (p. 89).

In the south-west corner of the navaraṅga is a very good image of a Yaksha seated under a tree whose large leaves remind us of those met with at Ellōra (Pl. XIII, 3). On the branches of the tree are perching monkeys. The corresponding Yaksha on the opposite side is missing. The Yaksha is two-handed holding lotus in his right hand. His left hand is broken. His ornaments consisting of the kirita, padma ear-rings, necklaces, etc., are all boldly carved in high relief and the Yaksha wears also a yajñōpavīta. The curls of his hair add charm to the facial expression and there is a pleasing smile depicted on his lips. The chin and the brows are clearly marked.

On either side of the vestibule doorway there are perforated screens whose bands are carved with padma medallions (Pl. XIV, 4). On the jaubs appear indented pillars. In the two side aukanas on either side of the doorway there are turreted niches which originally enshrined images. The towers of these niches have the usual dentil and other mouldings which are mostly uncarved. On the upper lintel of the vestibule doorway appears under a graceful makara-tōraṇa and serpentine arch the image of a seated Jina under a kīrtimukha. The image is very probably Śāntinātha mentioned in the inscription of 1200 A.D. mentioned above. Above the head of the image is a mukkoḍe and on either side are the usual chāmara-bearers and standing Jinas. The ceiling of the vestibule is now damaged. It originally consisted of nine panels with the carving of a padma in the centre.

The garbhagriha doorway is also well-carved like that of the vestibule. Above the lintel is a row of turrets of varied designs. Two of the turrets are curvilinear as at Puri and Jagannāth. The occurrence of such turrets is interesting. The inside walls of the garbhagriha have a middle cornice band. The ceiling of the garbhagriha has a well-carved padma in its centre. The beams, like those of the navaraṅga and the vestibule, have been carved with dentil mouldings. The garbhagriha is now empty.

VĪRABHADRA TEMPLE.

About 50 yards to the north-east of the basti stands the temple of Virabhadra which appears to have been built in the 14th century.

Main image. The image of Virabhadra is well executed with a serpentine and creeper tōraṇa. The god is in the pose of marching to the left holding in his four hands sword, arrow, bow and shield. He wears moustaches and ruṇḍa-māla.

The outer walls of the temple as also those of the front maṇḍapa have been constructed in recent days. To the west of the temple is a mound on which is standing an image of Mahishāsura-mardini whose eight hands are disposed as follows:

spearing demon, holding sword, holding chakra, holding arrow, holding śankha, holding bow, holding buckler and placed on demon's head. On the tōraṇa of the image appears a creeper design. The image is perhaps one of the Śivapañchāyatana group.

To the north-west of the temple is lying a mutilated image of a four-handed god, perhaps of Viṣṇu, which also appears to have belonged to the Śivapañchāyatana group. In front of the temple is lying a lathic-turned bell-shaped pillar of the Chālukya times.

About 20 feet away to the north of the temple can be traced the mud fort wall of the old town of Bandalike. A few feet further north is set up a pillar, about 2' high, on a plain pedestal. On each of its four corners at the top is carved the head of a god wearing a ribbed tiara. The god represented is perhaps Chaturmukha Brahma.

SŌMĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

In the north-east corner of the old Chālukyan town site is situated the Sōmēśvara temple. It is called the Ānekal Sōmayya temple and was constructed in 1274 A.D. by a certain Boppa Setṭi (E. C. VII, Sk. 236). The structure is homogeneous and consists of three cells arranged on the three sides of a raṅgamaṇṭapa whose doorway is facing east. The main cell only has a closed vestibule in front. The other two cells exist on the north and south sides of the navaraṅga hall. The outer walls of the temple are raised on a basement consisting of three cornices of which the third from the bottom has been ornamented with dentil mouldings. The main cell, its vestibule and the navaraṅga are all square in plan with indentations here and there. The outer walls are plain except for a middle cornice band all round. This band bears a frieze of rhomboidal padmas. In the north-east and south-east of the temple these padmas bear in their centre dancing and indecent figures. The eaves are short and plain. In front of the temple the architrave bears a row of single flowers between single Dravidian columns. There appear to have been existing originally two elephants in front of the temple. These are now mutilated; but they show good workmanship.

There was perhaps a narrow porch in front of the navaraṅga formerly as at the Sōmēśvara temple at Belgāmi. In the two outside ankaṇas of this porch are two beautifully sculptured perforated screens. Their square perforations are divided by circular small panels bearing relief figures of gods, Yakshas, swans, lions, etc. Between the rows of perforations are broader bands or friezes depicting the episodes of the Rāmāyaṇa on the south and of the Mahābhārata on the north:—

Śiva seated in state. Below him are Gaṇeśa, Nandi and Kumāra. To the right are a female attendant, Brahma and Sarasvatī. To the left are Vishṇu and Mahishāsuramardini.

The navaraṅga doorway is well carved with ornamental vertical bands on the jambs and figures of dvārapālas, Rati and Manmatha on either side. The vertical bands are as follows: floral, creeper, indented pilaster, scroll and floral with square and round medallions. On the lintel is the figure of Gaja-Lakṣmī. The eaves above the doorway are indented and ornamented with garland and leaf designs and dentil mouldings.

Navaranga.

The navaraṅga is a hall of nine ankanas with six turreted niches in the side walls. In the central square of the hall there are four lathe-turned bell-shaped pillars whose mouldings bear the rope, padma, leaf and garland ornamentations. On some of the leafy designs are carved minute figures of bull, elephant, lion and peacock. The wheel moulding has an ornamental band secured at intervals by padma medallions. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga is divided into nine panels in each of which is an ornamental padma.

The doorway of the south cell is guarded by Śaiva dvārapālas. The north cell doorway has kalaśas on either side and the figure of Gaja-Lakṣmī on the lintel. Both the cells are empty.

The doorway of the vestibule is a very good piece guarded by lady attendants on the jambs and having perforated screens on either side. The Main vestibule and cell. Gaja-Lakshmi lintel has peeled off. On the upper lintel is carved a highly floriated serpentine arch issuing out of the mouths of makaras. Under the arch in the middle is the figure of Tāṇḍavēśvara dancing with figures of attendants and drummers. To the right of the group stand Brahma and Gaṇēśa, while to the left are Viṣṇu and Vaiṣṇavī.

The ceiling of the vestibule is raised on two sets of corner stones with a boldly carved padma in the centre. The doorway of the main cell has the figure of Gaja-Lakshmi on the lintel. The jambs of the doorway are plain. The inner walls of the cell have a cornice in the middle. The main liṅga of the temple, called the Sōmēśvara liṅga, is about 2½' high including its pedestal. It is flat-headed.

TRIMŪRTI TEMPLE.

The Trimūrti temple is a triple celled structure of the Chālukyan period (Pl. XIII, 2). It stands at a distance of about 10 yards to General description. the north-west of the Sōmēśvara temple. It consists of three cells all of which had originally stone towers above them. The western tower has now collapsed; but the other two are existing.

In plan the structure resembles the Chaṭṭēśvara temple at Chaṭṭaṭṭhaḷḷi (see M.A.R. 1934 pl. XX, 2). The cells are square in plan and Outer view. the walls have been built with several indentations. The basement consists of three cornices of which the middle one has the uncarved dentil and other mouldings. The outer walls are relieved by square-shaped and cruciform pilasters, and turret-bearing niches and pilasters. Some of the turrets have serpentine kīrtimukha arches above them.

Each of the towers rises in three tiers of turrets and each turret has several cornices of which the mouldings are mostly uncarved. The corners of the tiers have square-shaped turrets, while their sides have the boat-shaped ones. The latter bear kīrtimukha arches under which images like Lakshmi-Narasimha, Bhairava, etc., stand or are seated. There are projections in front of all the three towers. The projection over the western vestibule had originally a Tāṇḍavēśvara group under a sinhalalāṭa.

There is no mukhamanṭapa now in front of the navaranga. A mutilated bull sits in the open. The navaranga doorway is absent. The Navaranga. navaranga hall has in its central ankaṇa well developed specimens of the Chālukyan lathe-turned bell-shaped pillars. On the bell appears leafy and other designs in low relief. The ceilings of the navaranga are flat and have padma carvings of varied design. The central ceiling which is also flat is divided into nine panels, each panel having a padma. The architraves have dentil and rhomboidal floral ornamentations. The inner walls of the hall have six turreted niches of which one enshrines a Saptanātrika panel and another a broken Gaṇapati. The doorways of the cells are well worked with indented bell-shaped pilasters on the jambs and perforated screens on the sides. On the lintels appears the Gaja-Lakshmī group. On the upper lintel of the southern doorway and under a serpentine tōraṇa stands Śiva attended by Gaṇapāti and Brahma (?) and Viṣṇu and Mahishāsura-mardini. On the upper lintel of the western doorway stands a similar group of Śiva attended by similar attendant figures. The upper lintel of the northern cell has Kēśava attended by Gaṇapati, two lady attendants and kneeling Garuḍa on the right and another kneeling figure, two chāmara bearers and Mahishāsura-mardini on the left. The makaras from whose fangs issue the serpentine tōraṇas are all ridden ones.

The western and southern cells enshrine flat-headed lingas ; but the northern cell has a good figure of standing Viṣṇu of whose four hands three are broken and the existing one holds chakra. The image is about 5½' high including the tōraṇa. The ten avatārs are carved on the tōraṇa. On either side of the god stand lady attendants. The image stands in samabhaṅga and is well decked with the usual ornaments.

Cells.

Chikkamagaḍi.

Chikkamāgaḍi is a village situated at a distance of about four miles to the north of Bandalike. Among the ancient monuments at the place two at least deserve mention. One is a Jain Basti now called the Basavaṇṇa temple and the other is the Kallēśvara temple.

JAIN BASTI.

The basti is now converted into the Basavaṇṇa temple. It consists of a garbhagṛiha, a closed vestibule, and a navaraṅga with no porch. On either side of the flight of steps leading up to the navaraṅga doorway there are projections on which, perhaps, were formerly existing elephants. The garbhagṛiha and navaraṅga are square in plan and are indented. The basement consists of three cornices of which the third from the bottom has dentil mouldings. The outer walls are plain and have, like the outer walls of the Sōmēśvara temple at Bandalike, a middle cornice ornamented with rhomboidal flowers. Above the walls there are three cornice mouldings of which the two that are below have uncarved dentil and other mouldings. The eaves are sharp and relieved at intervals by kīrtimukhas. The tower is a stepped pyramid consisting of seven tiers of cornice mouldings decorated with dentil designs. In front of the tower there is a projection over the vestibule the front face of which has been carved with a pleasing simhalalāṭa under which is the figure of a standing Jina.

The navaraṅga doorway is plain except for the cruciform pilasters appearing on either side. The four central pillars of the hall have each two large cubical mouldings between which appear circular and sixteen-sided mouldings. On the faces of the base of each pillar are carved relievo figures of kalaśas. The ceilings of the navaraṅga bear good figures of padmas resembling jewellery work. The central ceiling has been divided into nine panels in each of which is carved a padma. The beams are ornamented with padmas and dentil designs. In the western wall of the hall there are two niches which are both empty.

The vestibule doorway is plain having screens on either side without perforations. The garbhagriha doorway is also plain. Inside the garbhagriha is installed in recent times a bull on a pīṭha.

KALLĒŚVARA TEMPLE.

The Kallēśvara temple is a dilapidated structure. Its outer wall slabs have all disappeared. The original doorway of the temple appears to have been on the east side. The temple seems to have been a triple-celled structure and similar in type to the three-celled Chālukyan structures found in the Davangere Taluk (see M.A.R. 1939).

The four central pillars of the navaraṅga have the usual cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-fluted mouldings. The roof of the structure is low and the ceiling of the central anaka of the navaraṅga hall is raised on two sets of corner stones with padma in the centre.

The western and southern cells have līngas inside them, while the north cell enshrines an image of Kēśava which is about 5½' high including its pedestal. This image is well-carved with the ten avatārs of Vishṇu appearing on the prabhāvali. The ceiling of this cell has the design of a padma in its centre.

All the vestibules are open and have a common navaraṅga. To the left of the main cell is a three-headed and eight-handed image of Śiva holding the following attributes: abhaya, trident, skull-headed mace, an arrow, drum, broken, broken, and broken. The god is seated in padmāsana. All the three heads wear jaṭāmakutas. The tōraṇa is carved of the same stone.

The outer walls of the main cell are built of bricks measuring 12" X 6" X 2". The bricks are possibly of the Vijayanagar period.

Malavalli.

Malavalli is an insignificant village situated at a distance of about 5 miles to the east of Narasāpura near Bandalike. The only interesting monument at the place is an eight-sided pillar bearing the famous Malavalli inscriptions (E.C. VII, Sk. 263, 264).

The pillar is of soap-stone and on it are engraved two important inscriptions :

Pillar inscription.

one of the time of Vinhukaḍḍa-Chuṭukulaṇanda-Śātakarṇi and the other of the time of Kādamba Rāja (? Mayūra Śarma). The inscriptions mention the god Maṭṭapaṭṭi-dēva whose temple is no longer in existence. The temple of this god was probably standing a little distance to the west of the pillar.

Kallesvara temple.

To the north of the pillar is standing a temple dedicated to Kallēśvara with an old black stone liṅga in its garbhagriha. The pāṇipīṭha of the liṅga is turned to the north though the cell has its doorway facing south.

To the right of the temple there is a potstone image of Bhairava which seems to belong to the Chālukya period.

Stray images.

At a distance of about 20 feet to the south of the pillar there is a liṅga whose shaft has its four faces carved with figures of heads like the Chaturmukha-Brahmēśvara at Bandalike.

A mud and rubble bastion, about 25' high, belonging to a fort wall of the Pāllegār period is situated at a distance of about 30 yards to the south of the pillar. The bastion is provided with musket holes.

The fort.

To the north-east of the bastion is a modern temple of Hanumān containing in its main cell a small relieve figure of Āṇjanēya in the striking attitude. The image seems to be of the Pāllegār period and the existence of the bastion nearby suggests that it is Kōṭe-Āṇjanēya. The gateway of the fort probably existed beside this temple.

At a distance of about two furlongs to the east of the village and to the north of the tank called the Tāmraḥaṭṭe there is a field called Haḷḷa-kalu which is full of varied pottery consisting of red ware, blackware, etc. But polished specimens are not found. It is reported, however, that large-size bricks are found here and there in the fields.

Kubatūr.

The village of Kubatūr was last visited during 1931 and an account of the Kaitabhēśvara temple at the place was published in the Annual Report of the department for that year. During the year under report a survey of the other temples standing on the ancient site of the village was made and it is found that the ancient town was indeed a very extensive one and contained several temples some of which appear to be very important owing to the fact that they seem to have existed from even the Rāshtrakūṭa times.

At a distance of about a hundred yards to the west of the Kaiṭabhēśvara temple is a modern structure built for the goddess Kālī. The site perhaps marks the spot of an older temple that existed. In front of the temple is lying the head of an image which appears to have been brought from elsewhere and kept here. It wears moustaches and a small kirīṭa. The villagers point it out as the head of Duṣṭabuddhi.

Kali shrine.

About 50 yards to the west of the Kālī temple there is a maṇṭapa borne on four stone pillars of the Gaṅga or Rāshtrakūṭa type. Each of the pillars rises on a square base and has a shaft consisting of a small eight-sided moulding at first and then a cylindrical moulding overlaid by two cylindrical bands of which the lower is larger than the upper. Above the cylindrical moulding there is a drum. A few feet to the north of the pillar stands a vīraḡaḡa.

Old mantapa.

Proceeding westwards we pass through a hamlet to the west of which there is a large tank which seems to be very old as can be seen from the old pillars of the sluice. On the western bund of the tank is a dilapidated maṇṭapa inside which is an image of a four-handed Durgā holding sword, trident, drum and bowl. The image is rudely executed. The two pillars in front of the image are of the flattened bell-shape type with relievō carvings of horse-shoe-shaped arches, triangular designs and hooded corners and bearing ribbed brackets in the Chōḡa style. In front of the temple there are several vīraḡaḡas and inscriptions of the Chāḡukya period.

Durga shrine.

At some distance to the north of the tank is a modern structure enshrining a 17th century image of Gaṇēśa. In the north-east corner of the temple is set up a vīraḡaḡa inscription, possibly of the Rāshtrakūṭa period, with the representation of the figure of an elephant at the top (Pl. XV, 1). A similar inscription stone is set up on the platform of a peepul tree a little distance further north. Beside the latter inscription there are several vīraḡaḡas among which there is one on which is carved a well-represented vimāna surmounting horse shoe-shaped arches.

Under a neem tree standing at some distance further north there is an inscription of the Chāḡukya period. By the side of the inscription there is an image representing Pārvaṭī-Paramēśvara. Behind Paramēśvara a bull is standing. The god is two-handed. In his right hand is held a lasso and in his left a severed head. The image is about a foot high.

A little distance to the north is a temple dedicated to the god called Mailāra. In front of the temple, that is, to its south-east there is set up another inscription of the Rāshtrakūṭa times and on it are carved relievō figures of an elephant on the obverse and a kalaśa on the reverse.

Immediately to the north of the village there is an old basti dedicated to Pārśvanātha. The basti was constructed in 1077 A.D. but in later times its outer walls were built of laterite blocks. The structure has now become dilapidated and in its present state consists of a garbhagriha with a front long maṇṭapa and an ardhamanṭapa. The basti seems to have had a large mukhamanṭapa in front. The four pillars in the long maṇṭapa are of the lathe-turned bell-shape type of the Chālukya period. The ceiling of the maṇṭapa has been raised on two sets of corner stones with a well-carved padma in the centre. The two pillars of the ankaṇa in front of the garbhagriha form a good pair and consist each of a cubical base and an eight-sided shaft whose corners have pairs of symmetrical leafy or hooded reliefs on either side of an indented drum design. Above the eight-sided moulding rises another cubical moulding surmounted by an indented vase moulding and an indented wheel-shaped moulding. In front of the garbhagriha are found the following images :— (1) a seated Nāginī (left), (2) a standing soap-stone Pārśvanātha under a seven-hooded serpent and mukkoḍe and (3) a standing Chandranātha under mukkoḍe. The main image of seated Pārśvanātha in the cell is of very good workmanship. The image sits in dhyānāsana under a mukkoḍe and a seven-hooded serpent. On the two sides of the image there are the images of the attendant chauri-bearers wearing kirita and other ornaments. The tōraṇa behind the main image has a scroll ornamentation. The image sits on a lion pedestal which is cruciform in plan and indented bearing the relievo figures of lions seated on their haunches. The doorway of the garbhagriha has its jambs carved with the following vertical bands : rosettes, creeper, pilasters, rope design with square medallions, and floral. On the lintel of the doorway is depicted the figure of Pārśvanātha seated like the main image.

At a distance of about 50 yards to the north of the basti is situated the Rāmēśvara temple which from the outside looks more like a modern house. Really, however, it appears to be one of the oldest monuments in the village and almost intact inside. The outer walls have all been rebuilt, in recent times, in mud and the temple is provided with an ordinary tiled-roofing. In inscription No. Sorab 269 of 1065 A.D. the temple is mentioned as having been restored (Pl. XV, 2). Thus the original structure may be assigned to C. 900 A.D. and may be taken as a typical Rāshtrakūṭa monument judging from the pillars and the central ceiling in the navaraṅga. The navaraṅga doorway is of hard trapstone like the other architectural members of the temple. On the jambs of the doorway appear the following vertical bands : rosettes, scroll and a rope designed pilaster issuing out of a kalaśa-like creeper and ornamented with transverse beaded ornamentation, scroll work and square medallions on the shaft. On the lintel of the doorway appears a Gaja-Lakshmī group. The goddess is seated below a horse-shoe-shaped arch which is hidden from view. On either side of the doorway was a railing ornamented with lion faces. The southern railing only is existing.

The temple consists of a garbhagriha with an inner pradakṣhiṇā and of a front rangamaṇṭapa. The four central pillars of the maṇṭapa are modelled like those of the Nandi maṇṭapa standing in front of the temple. Each of them rises on a cubical base and has a cylindrical shaft overlaid by cylindrical bands as in the maṇṭapa to the west of the Kālī shrine behind the Kaiṭabhēśvara temple. Above the cylindrical moulding rises the bell-shaped moulding. It appears that from such bell-shaped moulding the later Chālukyan form developed. Above the bell-shaped moulding appears the wheel-shaped moulding surmounted by the ribbed brackets. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga is exquisitely worked like the ceiling at the Kallēśvara temple in Aralaguppe. It is divided into nine panels each of which is boldly carved with figure sculpture. The figure of Tāṇḍavēśvara is carved in the central panel and those of the Asṭadikpālakas are carved in the outer panels. Among the figures of the Asṭadikpālakas those of Agni and Kubēra are wrongly transposed. The central panel is marked off from the rest by bands ornamented with scroll work and padma medallions, the convolutions of the scroll being carved with figures of Yakshas some of whom are dancing, some playing on musical instruments and others flying with garlands. In the central panel Śiva dances on the demon Andhakāśura in a vigorous pose. He wears a long flowing ruṇḍamālā and jaṭāmakuṭa among other usual ornaments. To the left of Andhakāśura is seated Nandi above whom is the figure of Pārvatī. To the right of the prostrate Andhakāśura there are two drummers of whom one beats on a double drum and another on a single drum. Above the drummers is a cymbalist behind whom is the representation of a lotus. Above the cymbalist is a two-handed figure seated with folded arms. Further above is Gaṇapati and at the left corner is Kumāra with a two-handed seated figure of a goddess below. Śiva is eight-handed holding the following attributes: svargahasta, chitṭe-tāla, cobra and rosary, trident, drum, cobra, chitṭe-tāla, and stretching gracefully towards the right hip. The figure of Śiva is slim and boldly outlined with vigorous expressive face and limbs. The outer panels are carved with figures of the Dikpālakas in the following order proceeding from the east clockwise: Indra on elephant, Kubēra on horse (mistake of the artist—there ought to have been Agni), Yama on buffalo, Niruti on man, Varuṇa on makara, Vāyu on deer, Agni on ram (mistake for Kubēra), and Īśāna on bull. Each one of these figures is boldly carved with graceful figures of attendant musicians and Yakshas several of whom are in the pose of flying among the clouds. The musicians consist of drummers, cymbalists and gong-players. Even the vehicles of the Dikpālakas show life and movement.

The ceilings to the east and west of the central ceiling have good figures of padmas. In the navaraṅga are placed a large Saptamātrika panel and a very good figure of Mahishāsuramardinī (Pl. XIII. 4). In the latter group the demon is shown as issuing from the body of a buffalo and as being speared by the eight-handed goddess to whose right is her vehicle, the lion. The image is very forceful, though carved of hard trap stone.

The doorway of the garbhagriha is also well carved like the navaraṅga doorway. Inside the garbhagriha the Rāmēśvara līṅga is set up on a pāṇibaṭṭu and is about 2½' high. In front of the garbhagriha doorway is a chandra-śīla which resembles the one at Gauja.

In front of the temple there is a Nandimaṇṭapa whose walls have, in recent days, been built of mud. The roof is tiled. But the pillars of the maṇṭapa are ornamented like those of the navaraṅga. They have cubical bases and cylindrical shafts containing the following mouldings in order from below : eight-sided, eight-sided and short, a cylindrical bell-band, and a wheel band. The shaft is surmounted by a wheel moulding above which the brackets are simple. The stone used for the carving of these pillars is hard trap stone. The bull in the maṇṭapa is very well carved with ornaments, jingles and bells. Its two horns are broken. The snout is projecting a little upwards. Viewed from one side it looks very natural.

To the south-east of the temple are placed several nāga stones of which one represents a figure standing under a five-hooded nāga.

At a distance of about 200 yards to the west of the village is situated the Chintāmaṇi Narsimha temple. It seems that such temples of Chintāmaṇi Narsimha are peculiar to the Shimoga District. There is a Chintāmaṇi Narsimha temple at Kūḍli and another at Kuppagaḍḍe. The area between the village of Kubatūr and the Chintāmaṇi Narsimha temple is full of mounds of old houses. It is probable that the old town site extended to this part also. Ruins of ancient mud fort walls can be traced in several places.

The image of Narsimha in the garbhagriha of the temple is a two-handed figure sitting with the right knee folded up and the left disposed in padmāsana. The image wears the face of a natural lion as the one at Kūḍli.

A few yards to the south-west of the Narsimha temple is standing a four-handed image of Viṣṇu holding gadā, śankha, chakra and padma. It is called Satyanārāyaṇa by the people. It is a relieve figure belonging, perhaps, to the Vijayanagar period.

Bharangi.

The village of Bhārangi is an insignificant place situated at a distance of about 8 miles to the east of Ānavatṭi. But it contains several old temples and a basti of the Chalukya period.

The basti consists of a garbhagriha, a closed vestibule, a navaraṅga and a porch. It appears to date from about the Chālukya period. The outer walls are plain and rise on a basement consisting of four plain and flat cornices. The parapet on the east has the figure of a Jina standing under a mukkoḍe. The navaraṅga doorway is designed like the usual Chālukyan doorways. The four central pillars of the navaraṅga have cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-fluted mouldings. The central ceiling is raised on two sets of corner stones. On either side of the vestibule doorway there are perforated screens. The present image in the garbhagriha is of marble and evidently of the modern days. It appears very much like the Buddha images without ushniṣha. The old image of Pārśvanātha is missing. Some of the broken parts of this image are lying in the compound of the temple.

Near the tank of the village is situated the Kallēśvara temple. Like the temples in the Dāvāngere taluk this structure consists of three cells arranged on the three sides of a common navaraṅga. The liṅga is in the main cell, Sūrya in the east cell and Viṣṇu in the west cell. The roof of the temple is low. The main cell has a closed vestibule in front. The pillars of the navaraṅga are short, bell-shaped and lathe-turned. Inside the navaraṅga there are the following images: (1) Viṣṇu holding padma, chakra, śankha and gadā with the ten avatārs on the prabhāvali; (2) Sūrya; (3) a Saptamāṭṛika panel; (4) three bhakta figures seated in a row with folded hands; (5) Mahishāsuramardinī, and (6) Kumāra. The ceiling of the navaraṅga is raised on two sets of corner stones with a padma in the centre. The doorway of the vestibule has scroll ornamentation on the jambs and is guarded by male dvārapāla figures on either side attended by female chauri-bearers. There are also perforated screens on either side of the doorway. The lintel has a Gaja-Lakṣmī group under a serpentine tōraṇa issuing from the fangs of makaras. To the right of Lakṣmī stands Brahma and to her left Viṣṇu holding abhaya with padma, chakra, sankha and gadā. In the vestibule is a couchant Nandi much damaged. The garbhagriha doorway is plain with Gaja-Lakṣmī on the lintel. Inside the garbhagriha the main liṅga is human-faced with phālāksha brows, eyes and moustaches (Pl. XIV, 2).

Near the waste-weir of the tank of the village stand three dilapidated structures of the Chālukya period. Of these one is dedicated to Nārāyaṇa and contains at present only one cell. The image is Janārdana in form with the ten avatārs carved on the tōraṇa. The workmanship of the image is rude and it is very probable that the image hails from about the 14th century. At the entrance to the temple are lying two mutilated Chālukya images. One of them which is headless is possibly Brahma judging from the kamaṇḍalu that appears in the left lower hand of the image. The other image is that of Sūrya.

The Mallikārjuna temple standing at a little distance from the Nārāyaṇa temple is also much ruined. In its navaraṅga the four central pillars are short with cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-fluted mouldings. The liṅga in the main cell is missing. The temple was built in 1178 A.D. according to the inscriptions.

The third temple in the group is the Banasankarī temple. It is also of the Chālukyan period and is mostly dilapidated. In its Banasankari temple. navaraṅga or front maṇṭapa the two front pillars have the usual cubical, eight-sided and sixteen-fluted mouldings. The other two pillars, however, have cylindrical shafts rising on cubical bases. The ceiling is raised on two sets of corner stones with a padma in the centre. The garbhagṛiha is divided into compartments by two pillars whose shafts have hooded mouldings at the corners and are rectangular in section with three indentations at the corners and with hour-glass-shaped mouldings on the faces. In the middle of the shafts and at the top appear three cornice bands. The bases of the pillars are cubical.

Images.

1. A two-handed lady attendant—Hands broken. Appears to hold padma in the right hand. It may be Pārvatī.
2. Four-handed Śiva standing with Pārvatī under a serpentine tōraṇa (Pl. XVI, 1). He holds lasso, a trident, an arrow and a bow. On either side of Pārvatī there are lady attendants. To the right of Śiva there are a boar and two dogs with the figure of Arjuna doing penance. The loin cloth of Śiva is hanging. The god wears rudrāksha and his hair is disposed in curls. There is no kirīṭa on his head.
3. Two-handed Śiva, (Pl. XVI, 2) with lasso in the right hand and arrow and bow in the left. The figure wears kirīṭa.
4. Two-handed goddess seated holding phala (?) in the right hand and kalaśa in the left hand. The image possibly represents Annapūrṇā (Śākambharī). The contour of the limbs, the muscles, the folds on the belly and other features are all very well shown. In workmanship this image happens to be the best of the lot.
5. Four-handed Bhairavī (Pl. XV, 3) seated with a dog on the pedestal, and with goblins and naked female figures dancing in the right field. The dog licks the blood from a severed human head. The goddess wears ruṇḍamālā and has phālāksha and canine teeth. On her head is a jatāmakuṭa. Her grin is terrible, though the other facial features are beautiful. In her four hands are held sword, trident, drum and bowl.
6. Four-handed Chāmuṇḍā (Pl. XV, 4) holding rosary with abhaya, chakra, śankha and phala. On her left lap is the figure of Skanda represented as a baby. On the pedestal is depicted the figure of Garuḍa.

A note on the temples at Kuppagaḍḍe is published in M.A.R. 1931. In the

Vēṇugōpāla temple which is a modern tile roofed structure the image of Vēṇugōpāla in the main cell is an exquisitely carved piece with minute delicacy of details (Pl. XVII, 1).

Including the pedestal and the tōraṇa, the image is about 5' high. On the pedestal is carved a frieze of cows which are all full of life and movement and in the attitude of listening to the heavenly music of Lord Kṛiṣṇa. The god stands under a latā-tōraṇa the carving of which is indeed of a very high order. Among the creepers of the tōraṇa are carved the figures of monkeys, birds, etc. On either side of the god are carved the figures of sages in dhyānāsana. On the tōraṇa are further carved the ten avatārs of Viṣṇu. The god himself is about 3' high and two-handed. He stands with his right leg crossed against the left and in the attitude of playing on the flute the right end of which is ornamented with gracefully hanging bunches. Among the innumerable ornaments worn by the god are large padma earrings, necklaces, garlands, anklets, etc. Each of these ornaments is minutely carved with good taste. The image is better carved than that at Beḷlūr in the Nāgamangala taluk.

To the west of the Vēṇugōpāla temple stands an Īśvara temple. In the inscriptions the god is called Ālēśvara. The temple was built in 1033 A.D. The navaraṅga and the mukha-maṇṭapa have both disappeared. The main cell which is standing at present is square in plan and is built of laterite blocks. In front of the temple there is a narrow verandah with two niches on either side of the doorway. The right niche has a good figure of Gaṇeśa and the left one has a figure of Mahi-shāsuramardinī. The other images belonging to the Śivapañchāyatana group have disappeared. It is said that the image of Sūrya belonging to the temple was taken away to Shimoga about 20 years ago.

The jambs of the garbhagṛiha doorway are plain. But the pilasters on either side are worked in a pleasing manner with the relieve figures of dvārapālas on their square bases. Their shafts are eight-sided and sixteen-fluted. The sides and flutes are ornamented with petal and rosette designs. At the neck of the pillar is a square panel carved with the figure of a kalāśa. Above the kalāśa appear the fluted vase and wheel mouldings.

On the lintel of the doorway a Gaja-Lakṣmī group is carved. Inside the garbhagṛiha the līṅga is broken. It was about 3½' high when it was intact.

Chintamani Narasimha temple.

The structure is modern and tile-roofed. The doorway of the main cell is Chālukyan in style and ornamented with pilasters bearing the kalāśa and leafy designs as at the Ālēśvara temple. The image of Narasimha is about a foot in height excluding the pedestal. The face is rudely carved though it looks like a natural lion. The god is two-handed like the images at Kūḍli and Kubaṭūr. Behind the god is a sculpture representing Anantapadmanābha which seems to have been brought from elsewhere. This image, though mutilated, shows good workmanship. In a niche in the north wall of the front maṇṭapa of the temple is placed an image of Bhairava with the figure of a scorpion on its pedestal. The tōraṇa has a serpentine arch and a simhalalāṭa. The image is four-handed with sword, trident, drum and bowl. Along with the bowl is held also the severed head of a victim. To the right of the god are depicted goblins. To the left are a dog and more goblins. The dog is shown as licking the blood oozing out of the severed head. The image is a good specimen of the Chālukya or Hoysaḷa times.

Udri.

Udri is a village situated about 7 miles to the north-east of Sorab. A note on the principal temples of the place has appeared in the Annual Report of the department for the year 1930.

To the north and west of the village can be traced the old fort walls of the Pālḷegār period. By the side of the fort wall to the north of the village is a mono-celled structure containing a stone image of Banasankarī which is a four-handed image wearing a jaṭāmakuṭa. The goddess holds in her hands sword, trident, ḍamaru and bowl. In the bowl is the head of a goat. On the pedestal of the image is the figure of a prostrate person to whose right is a goblin and to the left a dog licking blood. The goddess has canine teeth and phālāksha and wears rudrāksha garland. On the tōraṇa are carved the figures of goblins and scrolls. The image appears to belong to pre-Hoysaḷa times. An inscription in Kannaḍa characters of c. 1000 A.D. was discovered on the pedestal of the image.

To the east of the village is situated the Vīrabhadra temple which is a structure of recent times enshrining an image of the Pālḷegār period. At the entrance to the temple are set up two life-size images of Śaiva dvārapālas (Pl. XVI, 3) which are both well executed with stout bodies and limbs and exaggerated curls of hair behind their heads. The images wear jaṭāmakuṭas, the usual ornaments, ruṇḍamālās and yajñōpavīta. In their workmanship the images might be assigned to about 1000 A.D. They appear to be dvārapāla figures of an old Śiva temple, presumably the one that is standing in a dilapidated state a few yards to the north-west of the Vīrabhadra temple.

The latter temple now consists of the main cell only, the other compartments having disappeared completely. Among the innumerable pillars and other architectural members lying about the area there are several which indicate a high standard of art. Many of the pillars are of the lathe-turned and bell-shaped type ornamented with scroll and beaded hangings on the bell. There are also flattened and indented pilasters and pillars with rhomboidal floral ornamentation and leaf designs among the ruins. The doorway of the garbhagriha has, besides the rhomboidal vertical band of flowers, a pilaster on each side rising on a low square base and having an indented flattened square shaft ornamented in eight compartments with leafy designs against a background of six flutes appearing on the pilaster. The lintel of the doorway is carved with a Gaja-Lakṣmī group. The pedestal of the liṅga inside the garbhagriha is absent. When intact the temple must have been an elegant structure. Its outer walls have all collapsed, including many of the slabs belonging to the tower. But there appear here and there portions of square pilasters, cornices with uncarved dentil and other mouldings and kīrtimukha designs. The tower seems to have risen in two tiers of boat-shaped and square-shaped turrets.

To the west of the village is situated the ancient Jain basti. This structure consists of a garbhagriha, a closed vestibule and a navaraṅga. In plan the structure is square with indentations and flattened sides. The basement consists of two cornices of which the upper one is eaves-shaped. The outer walls are plain except for a middle cornice band carved with a frieze of rhomboidal and four-petalled flowers interspersed, here and there, by more ornate ones having many petals or by flowers bearing obscene or other figures in their middle. The eaves are a little straight-sided with upward dentil mouldings at the indentations. The parapet consists of two cornices of which the lower has dentil and cross-shaped mouldings. The tower is in the form of a stepped pyramid consisting of nine steps of cornices each of which has the dentil and uncarved cross-shaped mouldings. At the top the tower has a stone kalāśa. In front of the tower there is a projection over the vestibule whose front face has a well-carved śubhalakṣa with graceful creepers. Under the arch is the figure of a Jina seated under an umbrella and attended by chāmara-bearers.

The navaraṅga doorway and lintel are later additions. On either side of the doorway there are perforated screens. The jambs have a vertical band of rhomboidal and four-petalled flowers. The pilasters are cruciform and indented bearing leaf designs and bell mouldings. The four central pillars of the hall are bell-shaped and lathe-turned. The architraves have dentil mouldings superimposed by a row of rhomboidal and four-petalled flowers. The central ceiling of the navaraṅga is finely worked and consists of a large padma with five rows of sharp petals. A low but graceful pendant hangs in the middle. The other ceilings are flat.

On either side of the vestibule doorway there are turreted niches. In the south niche is an image of Śaṇmukha which has been brought from elsewhere. In front of Śaṇmukha are a liṅga and a Basava. Against the north wall of the navaraṅga is a beautiful Yakshī seated under a creeper. The vestibule doorway has perforated screens on either side and well-worked jambs consisting of the usual ornamental vertical bands of flowers and creepers. On the lintel is the figure of a seated Jina attended by chāmara-bearers. Above the lintel is an eaves-shaped cornice. On the upper lintel stand five Jina figures under a serpentine tōraṇa. The garbhagriha doorway is also well worked like the vestibule doorway; but its lintel is uncarved. Inside the garbhagriha there is set up a Gaṇeśa image which does not belong to this temple.

About a hundred yards to the east of the basti stands a towerless Śiva temple of the Chālukya period. In design and workmanship it looks like a Hoysala square-shaped structure with indentations. There is no middle cornice on the outer walls as on the Chālukya structures. The front maṇṭapa has collapsed. Only the garbhagriha and the vestibule are existing now. The outer walls are raised on a basement consisting of six cornices of which the fourth and fifth from the bottom have the cross-shaped and dentil mouldings which have been left uncarved. The outer walls are relieved at the indentations by pilasters which are right-angled, thin and plain. On the south, west and north outer walls, there are turret-bearing niches, the turrets being designed like the fully developed Draviḍian gōpurams. The eaves and the tower are absent. The vestibule doorway is plain with perforated screens at the sides. The lower lintel has the figure of a Gaja-Lakshmī in the middle and a seated two-handed Yaksha at either end. The upper lintel has a row of figures standing under a serpentine arch issuing from the fangs of makaras. These figures are Brahma, Śiva, and Viṣṇu. The doorway of the garbhagriha is well carved with the usual vertical bands on the jambs and with the figure of Gaja-Lakshmī on the lintel. The līṅga inside the cell is about 2½' high including the pedestal. At the entrance to the temple are the images of a Mahishāsura-mardīnī and a two-handed goddess standing in tribhaṅga.

At a distance of about a hundred yards to the south-east of the Īśvara temple stands the Lakshmīnārāyaṇa temple enshrining a good image of Lakshmīnārāyaṇa (Pl. XVII, 2). The front maṇṭapa has disappeared and the structure now consists of the garbhagriha and vestibule only. The basement of the temple consists of four cornices and the outer walls have a middle cornice band bearing the rhomboidal and four-petalled flowers. The pilasters on either side of the garbhagriha are bell-shaped and indented and decorated with leaf and petal designs. The image of Lakshmīnārāyaṇa in the main cell is about 3½' high and is seated on a padma pedestal. The group shows exquisite workmanship and minute details of carving. On the tōraṇa appear the ten avatārs of Viṣṇu in the convolutions of a scroll band. Below the scroll is a serpentine arch and in the middle of the tōraṇa is a simhalalāṭa. The god sits with his face turned towards his consort who sits on his lap and is turned towards him. The god is four-handed holding śankha, padma, gadā and chakra. The goddess has scanty ornamentation but well-carved limbs, high breasts and thin waist. Her hair is tied up into a graceful broad knot behind her head. To the right of the god is the figure of a kneeling Garuḍa.

Mavali.

In the village of Māvali which is situated at a distance of about six miles to the east of Sorab there are several inscriptions of the Rāshtrakūṭa period. Of these, those illustrated in Inscriptions. Pl. XVIII, 1 and 3 are important. The one illustrated in Pl. XVIII, 1 is particularly interesting, because it is of C. 797 A.D. and contains boat-shaped and square-shaped turrets which look very much like those met with at Māmallapuram. A pillar in front of this inscription (Pl. XVIII, 2) resembles the navaraṅga pillars at the Rāmēśvara Temple in Kubatūr.

Chandragutti.

Full notes on the monuments at Chandragutti are published in the Annual Report of this department for 1931, pp. 55 ff. Some of the monuments, sculptures and views are illustrated in this Report—please see Pl. XVI, 4, Pl. XVIII, 4, and Pl. XIX.

PART IV—NUMISMATICS.

COINS OF THE EASTERN CHĀLUKYAS (615-1070 A.D.).

(Pl. XX, 2).

Obverse :—In triple border of two lines with intervening dotted line, large maned lion to right with open mouth, and left forepaw and tail uplifted; in front of it, floral creepers. Above, legend in early Chālukya characters :

Reverse :—A hooked rod, perhaps, a sceptre.

Hultzsch describes similar coins found by Thurston near Yelamanchili in the Vizagapatam District. But his statement that they are punch-marked, may not be correct. These coins appear to be a development of the Lion and Conch type described elsewhere under the Pallavas.

The i of the first letter shows a form which contrasts with the i of the fourth letter. A period of change is indicated also by the form of ma. The second letter is cha instead of sha and indicates Tamil influence. The last letter is clearly dha and not dhi which is the way in which it is found in the inscriptions.

Bhuvanaikamalla (?)2. Similar to 1, but the legend is Ba va ne

It is doubtful if Kubjavishṇuvardhana had also the title Bhuvanēkamalla. The correct Sanskrit form of the word ought to be Bhuvanaikamalla. But very often the incorrect spelling with e instead of ai is found. The first letter on the coin is actually Ba and not Bu.

Śaktivarman (1000-1012 A.D.).TYPE—Boar and Punch marks—(Varaha).3. Al. 14; wt. 66.5; large and thin.

Obverse :—Seven punch marks: in the centre is a boar to right with a lamp-stand on each side; on top a goad and an umbrella supported by two chāmaras or flywhisks and below neck the Telugu-Kannada letter Ra. Around near edge, seven punch marks with one Telugu-Kannada letter in each punch:

Śrī Chā lu kya cha(n) dra Sa 1

The overhead line of Sa is peculiarly placed.

4. Al. 1·2; wt. 66·2 From Cheduba.

Similar to above with Ra (or 4) below boar and below Sa also Sa, 4.

Śaktivarman, the East Chālukya king, had the title Chālukya-chandra.* The old method of punch-marking and stamping in repousse is noteworthy. Why the latter was done has to be explained.

Some of the great East Chālukya coins come from the Burman coast indicating that they had an overseas province there perhaps north of the province owned by the Chōlas in Arakan. They have been found also in the Kistna District near Muslipatam. There can be little doubt that they were issued in India.†

Rāja Rāja (1022–1063 A.D.).

TYPE A.—Boar and Punch marks.

5. Al. 1·4; wt. 66·5; large and thin.

Obverse:—Seven punch marks; in the centre is a boar to right; with a lamp-stand on each side; a goad and an umbrella supported by two flywhisks or chāmaras on top and below neck the Telugu-Kannada letter Ra. Around, near edge, six punch marks with one Telugu-Kannada letter in each punch.

Śrī Rā ja rā ja Sa(m rat) 3 (figure 3, perhaps regnal year).

Round each punch is a bordering circle of dots far apart from each other.

Reverse:—The obverse marks indented on the thin plate.

The provenance of this coin is uncertain. The date would perhaps be 1025 A.D.

Hultzeh and Fleet describe other specimens with regnal years: 3, 4, 34, 35 and 37.

6. Al. 1·3; wt. 66·8.

Obverse:—Similar to 4, but with the letter ri below boar and figure Sa 35.

Reverse:—Similar to 5.

Rapson (Indian Coins) reads the figure as 35.‡ This specimen was found at Cheduba Island near the Burma coast.

7. Al. 1·35; wt. 66·6. From Cheduba.

Similar to 4 and 5, but letter vi and figure Sa 4.

* R.I.C. p. 37.

Rājendra or Kulōttunga Chōla (as East Chālukya).TYPE—Tiger and Punch marks.

8. Al. wt. $61\frac{1}{2}$ grains. From I. A. 1896, p. 321.

Obverse:—Similar to 3, but instead of boar, tiger standing to right with sun and moon above; below head Telugu numeral 6. Near margin legend reading:—

Śrī Chō la nā rā ya na

Madras collection.

9. Al. wt. $61\frac{1}{2}$ grains.

Similar to 7, but tiger to left.

Assigned to Kulōttunga Chōla (by Hultzsch) as he had the title 'Rāja Nārāyaṇa.' Kulōttunga appears to have retained punch-marking at Veṅgi though die-striking was common in the Chōla country. The reduction of the weight from the East Chālukya standard is also noteworthy. The weight is a little less than that of the coins of Rāja Rāja Chōlā.

East Chālukya—Uncertain.

10. Al. 3; wt. 6·7.

Similar to 7. Figure on reverse.

11. Similar to 10; wt. 7·7.

12. Al. 25; wt. 6·2.

Obverse:—Similar to 10, but ruder; and goad more like a spear.

Reverse:—Similar to 10.

Types A and B are varahas and type C is fanam of 1/10 the value. Die-striking was well known as seen from the smaller coins. Perhaps the smaller dies were used as punches on the varahas. But punching is very well done as the punches are correctly placed. How the incuse on the reverse was caused has to be explained.

13. Al. Round. wt. 1·1 grs.

Obverse:—Lion and pillar with Sun and Moon.

Reverse:—Figure of lion to right; only the front portion is clear. Front paw raised up. The denomination of this specimen may probably be about quarter fanam. It is highly interesting to note the existence of such minute gold coins during the Chālukya period.

2. Silver Half Varaha (Svāmi Pagōḍa).

The edge has rope milling.

Obverse:—In central circle a five-pointed star above and thirty stars around : in the field a nine-storeyed gōpura or tower with three kalaśas. Around outer circle English legend 'Half pagoda' and Persian legend in continuation.

Reverse:—In outer circle Tamil legend : XI 'Arappu varaham' : in Telugu : V 'Arpu Varahāni.' In inner field surrounded by five circles of dots stands a rudely shown deity with dotted representation of a chakra and a śankha.

3. Quarter Svāmi Pagoda (15 specimens).

Obverse:—Similar to above ; but smaller.

4. One-eighth Rupee (3 specimens).

Obverse:—1182 followed by Persian legend.

Reverse:—Rose mint mark with Persian legend.

5. Copper Quarter Anna.

Has the representation of a balance. It is usually called Takaḍi kāsū. Bears the date 1833 on the obverse.

6. Similar to above but with legend 'one quarter anna' instead of balance.

7. Silver One anna (146 specimens).

PART V—MANUSCRIPTS.

LETTER OF VĪRA RĀJENDRA WODEYAR, RĀJA OF COORG.*

(C. 1799 A.D.).

(Pl. XX, A).

The document consists of an interesting long paper roll containing a letter written by Veer Rajunder Warriar (Vīra Rājendra Wodeyar) of Coorg in about 1799 A.D. to the British and was discovered among the papers transferred from the Residency of Bangalore to the custody of the Record Office of the Mysore Secretariat. It is a roll about fifteen feet long composed of about twenty slips of paper, each eighteen inches in length and six inches in breadth. The lines on both pages extend to a length of 26.2". The paper is blue hand made foolscap and contains the water mark of a prancing horse with the English capitals 'A' 'G' below it. The letter is in Kannaḍa with about 422 lines on the first page and 311 lines on the second page, total 733 lines. At the end of the Kannaḍa writing appears a signature in English "Veer Rajunder Warriar." The rest of the second page contains some accounts in Mahratti Modi, Kannaḍa and Urdu, which are no doubt a later addition. At the end of the second page are found the Kannaḍa words meaning 'the Coorg Raja's Kaifiath' with the figure '7'. The document is thus the authentic original copy of a memorial submitted to the English Government by the Coorg Rāja.

This document was prepared to furnish the reply and explanation of the Coorgs to a letter† from the British addressed to them and complaining that an officer of

The following account is contained about the Coorg Rāja Vīra Rājendra Wodeyar in the 'Narrative Sketches of the conquest of the Mysore,' London, page 18, footnote :—

"This friendly chief, when a boy was by the course of family feuds, a prisoner with Hyder Ally, who compelled him to become a Mussalman, with all the shameful ceremonies of initiation : he was enrolled among the Chaylas, or slave troops, and continued so under Tippoo Sultaun, till he made his escape in 1785. into his own dominions, where he instantly offered his service to the English : it was accepted, and he proved a most useful ally.—A British fugitive (who had also been lucky enough to effect his escape from Seringapatam) saw this Rajah in 1793. at his residence at Neekual, and describes him as a young man bukishly dressed in nankeen pantaloons. European boots, and a shirt made in the English fashion. In a short conversation, which turned upon the then recent dismemberment of Tippoo's dominions, he remarked, that 'the English had cut off the monster's right hand and feet, and he hoped to see them cut off his left ones too.' The prophetic chief has seen his hopes more than realized!—At the treaty of Seringapatam, in 1792, Marquis Cornwallis generously stipulated for the security of the gallant Rājah. Tippoo Sultan was irritated at the demand, and broke off the actual negotiation with our General, who thereupon began to renew hostilities : but Tippoo finding a reluctance in his troops to defend the capital was compelled to accept the dictated terms."

† This letter is perhaps the one written by Col. Close, the Resident of Seringapatam, with whom the Coorg Rāja was required to put himself in correspondence after the withdrawal of Capt.

LETTER OF VIRARAJENDRA WODEYAR, RAJA OF COORG. (p. 114).

Coorg named Īsvaraiya plundered seventeen villages of the Mahārājanadurga taluk (in the Mysore territories) five days after the capture of Seringapatam by the British and carried away women, children, cattle, grain, silver and gold, bronze and copper vessels, etc., of the villages in the taluk. The letter from the British gave a list of the articles carried off by the Coorgs and required them to return these immediately without delay. Word was also sent through Captain Mahoney who had been Resident at Coorg to the same effect.* The Coorg Government sent this answer to that letter through an agent Karaṇika Subbaiya.†

The answer of the Coorgs may be divided into two parts, (1) that relating to the assistance rendered by the Coorg Government to the British in the conquest of Mahoney from Coorg. Col. Close does not 'seem to have ingratiated himself with the Rāja.' The letter is dated 16th November 1799 and was addressed from Seringapatam. It ran as follows:—

" FROM

" Colonel Barry Close.

" To

" The Rāja of Coorg.

" Lord Mornington has transferred me to Seringapatam as Commissioner of Mysore, of which you may be aware. A report reaches me from the Manjarabad frontier, that five days after the fall of Seringapatam your people made a predatory incursion into the Maharajadurga district, and plundered 17 villages, of women and children, cows and calves, gold and silver, rice and seed grain, and carried the spoil beyond the frontier. I enclose a list of the plundered articles. From the day of the capture of the capital Mysore belongs to the Company, but Maharajadurga belongs to Mysore; there is therefore no difference between Mysore and the Company. But you are an ally of the Company. You are therefore requested, without delay, to return every article contained in the list.

" I am told you wish to see Seringapatam: as the army will return to this town within a few days, you should inform me of your resolution.

" List of articles plundered by Coorgs in the Maharajadurga district:—67 women, 34 men, 11 boys, 10 girls, 1383 cows, 574 buffaloes, 834 oxen, 121 calves: 729 Kanthirai pagodas, 82 silver ornaments, 36 silver bracelets, 27 coral necklaces, 63 silver girdles, 54 pairs of golden earrings, 215 brass plates, 93 copper vessels, 67 guns, 6 horses, 155 sheep, 95 knives, 96 sickles, 90 axes, 5 brass pans, 7 iron chains, 72 bundles of clothes.

" This affair seems not to have been settled without considerable difficulties, in which the Rāja implored the good services of his personal friends amongst the English"—Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, LEWIS RICE, pp. 127-128.

* " Captain Mahoney who had been appointed Resident with Vira Rāja a short time previous to the commencement of the last war with Tippu, communicated to the Rāja the Earl of Mornington's proclamation of the war, dated Fort St. George the 22nd February 1799, and asked him in the name of the Company's Government to exert himself to the utmost of his power, as he would necessarily share the fate of the English if Tippu were victorious."—Cp. Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, LEWIS RICE, p. 124.

† That Subbaiya was in the employ of the Coorg Rāja is gathered also from Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, LEWIS RICE, page 125. He and Bopu are said to have been sent on an expedition into the Tulu country when Seringapatam was besieged by the British.

Tippu's territories as per tahnama treaty entered into by the Coorgs with the British East India Company; (2) that relating to the explanation rendered by the Coorg Government for their alleged plunder of the Mysore territories against which the people of Manjarābād taluk had complained as represented by Dewau Purniah's men.*

The first part gives details of the part played by the Coorg Government in assisting the British army in the conquest of Tippu's territories.

It begins with a reference to the letter sent by the Governor-General of India, Lord Mornington, to the Coorg Rāja at the commencement of hostilities between the British and Tippu Sultan. No date is given for the letter. It states that as war was about to break out between the English and Tipu, the Bombay Governor, General Stuart (called in the manuscript Ishtol Sahab), was passing with his army through Coorg and that the Coorg Government should give him all help that he might require and that they should also be ready to fight to the utmost possible extent when asked by him to do so and that Captain Mahoney (called Mavini Sahab in the manuscript) would be appointed and sent as wakil or envoy of the English Government to Coorg and that the Coorg Rāja should assist the English Government as instructed by him. The Bombay Governor had also sent a letter to the same effect and both General Stuart and General Hartley arrived in Coorg with their armies. Captain Mahoney also arrived (as Resident) at Coorg to receive help from the Coorg Government. The Coorg Government rendered every service to the East India Company in accordance with the instructions given by these three.†

* Purniah and the Coorg Raja do not seem to have been on good terms from the beginning. In one of the letters addressed by the Coorg Raja to James Stevens he states as follows: "As to Purnaiya, he is and remains a Brahmin. His caste and mine dislike each other. In the time of Tippu he blackened my name and persecuted me, and now he is the master in the country; therefore he distributes the offices in the districts amongst his friends and relations, calumniates me through his district officers and other caste fellows with the English Government, and even submits a complaint against me, with a list of booty which my people are accused of having carried away in the north. Upon this Col. Close wrote to me, enclosing the list, and demanding that I should pay the compensation accordingly."

The letter continues as follows: "This Col. Close has never seen me, and does not know my history, nor does he understand Canarese. Thus he wrote me a letter through a Brahmin as if addressed to a slave. I enclose the letter of Col. Close and a copy of the list of booty. Upon the perusal of these papers you will understand all. . . . Purniah lodges a complaint against me as if I had offended against the Company. Being thus dishonoured, I have no wish to live any longer. You know all my acts. I write to you with deep sorrow that all my services have been requited with such dishonour from the Company."—Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, LEWIS RICE, p. 128.

† About the service rendered by him to the British he says in a letter addressed to James Stevens thus: "Convinced in my mind that all the enemies of the English would succumb and that the English Government would be victorious and that the British flag would float triumphantly in

The manuscript next gives details of the war with Tipu carried on by the Bombay army and of the kind of co-operation rendered by the Coorg Government.

The first event mentioned is the battle which Tipu Sultan waged with the British at Siddhēśvarana-gaddige or Selasir on Wednesday, the first lunar day of the bright fortnight of Phālguna in the year Kālayukti. The Bombay army took up its ground between Ahmostenar and Siddhēśvar on the 2nd of March 1799 for the protection and augmentation of the large supplies which were then collecting at Virarājendrapet* under the friendly and assiduous co-operation of the Coorg Rāja and from this position General Stuart intended, on its approach, to form a junction with the army of Madras. Tipu Sultan “determined to strike a sudden and deadly blow, by attacking the army of Bombay, whilst yet outside the confines of his own territory and in the dominions of a British ally, the Coorg Raja; and for this purpose, taking with him the flower of his troops, amounting to a considerable force and attended by three of his sons and Meer Kummeruddeen Khan, he marched from his camp near Senapatam on the 28th of February, and moving rapidly in the direction of Periapatan arrived there on the 5th March. . . .” (Narrative Sketches of the Conquest of Mysore, London, pp. 18-20).† The authority above quoted also states that at Siddhēśvar, about 7 miles distant from Periāpatna, General Stuart with the help of Major General Hartley defeated, on the 6th March, Tipu who retreated precipitately all the four quarters of the world, I served the Company from the beginning of the war in the hope to have to deal with friends like you and to be treated honourably.”—Ibid.

A depot had been formed at Virarajendrapet and measure had been taken to accumulate whatever his little State could afford—Ibid 123.

† “Tippu moved with a large force towards the frontier of Coorg, to oppose the Bombay army. He encamped near Periyapatna. The battle of Siddheswara ensued when three native battalions under Colonel Montresor and Major Disney, held their ground against the whole army of Tippu from 9 A.M. until 2 P.M., when the two flank companies of His Majesty’s 75th and the whole of the 77th under Lieut.-Colonel Dunlop, led by General Stuart to their assistance, broke Tippu’s line within half an hour and obtained a complete victory with a comparatively small loss. That of Tippu was severe, numbering amongst the slain the famous Benki Nabal, or Fire-prince, one of his best generals.

“The Raja of Coorg personally accompanied General Stuart, and witnessed for the first time the conduct of European troops in the presence of an enemy. There was a chivalrous air in all that proceeded from this extraordinary man, and some passages of his letter to the Governor-General giving an account of the operations of this day are tinged with his peculiar character.

“‘General Stuart,’ he writes, ‘marched with two regiments of Europeans, keeping the remainder of the army in the plain of Karidigodu: on approaching he ordered the two regiments to attack the enemy. A severe action ensued, in which I was present. To describe the battle which General Stuart fought with these two regiments of Europeans: the discipline, valour, and strength and magnanimity of the troops; the courageous attack upon the army of Tippu: surpasses all example in this world. In our shastras and puranas, the battles fought by Allaret and Maharut have been much celebrated, but they are unequal to this battle: it exceeds my ability to describe this action at length to your Lordship.’”—Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III. Lewis Rice, pp. 124-5 to his camp at Periāpaṭṇa after this signal defeat and remained there until the 11th of March and afterwards retired into Seringapatam where he arrived on the 14th. (The date given in this manuscript, namely, Kālayukti Phālguna śu. 1 Wednesday corresponds to 6th March* 1799, but on that day Māgha bahula amāvasya tithi lasted till evening according to Svami Kannu Pillay's Ephemeris. However the local pañchāṅgams (calendars) may have given the tithi as Phālguna śu. 1).†

With the above description of the war in the words of the Coorg Rāja we may compare the account of the war given by Mir Hussein Ali Khan Kirmani:—

"At this time news arrived that a body of English troops from Bombay commanded by General Stuart, bringing a very large convoy of stores and provisions' was advancing by the route of Coorg straight towards Seringaputtun. The Sultan, therefore, immediately with the whole of his troops and artillery, leaving some of his chief officers to make head against the enemy (General Harris) marched off to attack that body, (Battle of Sedaseer) and in one day and two nights arrived in front of them and gave orders for the attack. The faithful Syud Ghuffar, who in bravery and loyalty had no equal, grappled with the enemy on one flank, while Hussein Ali Khan, the son of Nawab Kotbuddin Khan carried death and destruction among them on the other, raising the flames of war to the skies—the other Mir Miran. (General officers) also, in charging and defeating the enemy used their most strenuous endeavours, and with their swords, musketry, and artillery, put the infidels to flight:—and they giving way to the necessities of the time, and having no power to withstand the shock of the Sultan's blood-drinking lions, leaving part of their baggage behind them, slunk into the jungle, and occupying its outlets remained there. The troops of the Sultan, however, still followed them, and vigorously attacking them again, strained every nerve to rout and destroy them:—at this critical period Muhammad Ruza, Mir Miran, having by much entreaty obtained from the presence leave to charge proceeded with his division like a raging lion towards the enemy, and stretching forth the arm of valour, it went near that the whole of the enemy's army was cut up and destroyed. The ambush of fate, however, having girded their loins to accomplish the defeat of the Mussulmans, a musket shot from the enemy accidentally struck the head of Muhammad Ruza, and he fell mortally wounded. His victorious soldiers took up his corpse and carried it to the Sultan, who directed it to be forwarded to the capital, while he occupied himself in the defeat and dispersion of this force:—when spies brought intelligence that the Bombay army had retired from further opposition, and had marched by the route of the Jungul to Kalicote."—Translated by Col. W. MILLS, p. 259.

The date of the battle fought at Siddhesvara is also given as the 6th March 1799 A.D. in a letter of the Coorg Raja to James Stevens.—Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, LEWIS RICE, p. 129.

† "The first impression on the Sultan's mind, was to renew the attack on the ensuing day, with augmented numbers, but in the meanwhile General Stuart had changed all his dispositions. The chief object for which this advanced post had been occupied, must necessarily cease to exist, during the presence in its front of the Sultan's main army; and the security of the abundant depot of provisions in the rear, accessible by other routes, rendered necessary a new and more concentrated disposition of the troops: and the evacuation of the post of Sedaseer, afforded to the Sultan the faint colour of describing as a victory what every officer in his army felt to be an ignominious repulse. 'Having (in the language of the Raja of Coorg) brought disgrace upon himself, he employed all his art and knowledge to recover his lost reputation: and having in this manner considered for five days, but not having taken up resolution to attack the Bombay army again, he marched on the 6th (the 11th of March) to Seringapatam: and thence, with no favourable anticipations to oppose the progress from the east, of the more formidable army of General Harris.'"—WILKS' History of Mysore, Vol. II, pp. 347-8.

We next learn of the negotiations between the above British officers and the Coorg agents. The British officers stated at Siddhēśvar that war had begun between them and Tipu Sultan and in order to harass him it was necessary that the Coorg troops also should attack his army. But the Coorg chiefs stated that the English had guarded the road from Seringapatam to Coorg through Sidāpur, but there were other roads to Coorg and Tipu might harass them in various ways if they went to war against him. They also had to perform heavy duties to assist the English by guarding their boundaries against attacks by the enemy, provide supplies to the Bombay army at their camp and provide camp bazaars therein, bring grain from below the ghauts on two to three thousand bullocks, provide fodder for the military cattle, erect thatched huts for the preservation of the supplies of grain, look after the cattle, guard against the rumoured attack of the Kōṭe chief (Kōṭe Arasu) as an ally of Tipu* invading through Calicut and of the Manjarābād chief Kṛishṇappa Nāyak. Thus saying, the Coorgs declined to take part in a direct campaign against Tipu.

But in a few days a Brāhman named Sūrayya (who later became Amil of Arkalgūd) who wanted to win the good graces of Tippu is stated (in the manuscript) to have attacked the villages belonging to Coorg named Toremur, Hebale and Sirangala with the help of the men from Arkalgūd, Basavāpaṭṇa and Koṇanūr in Tipu's territories and plundered the villages, burnt the houses, killed the ryots by tying their hands and feet and throwing them into the river Kāveri, and carried away women and children. The Coorg chief complained of this to the English officers, General Stuart, Hartley, Baden, and Captain Mahoney, the English Agent. The English retorted by saying that as war had actually broken out with Tipu and the Coorgs refused to go to war with and harass Tipu they had to suffer therefor and that they should at least strive to harass him thereafter. The Coorgs reluctantly had to agree to these words coming from three English officers and after providing for the garrisoning of the territory and helping the English with supplies of grain, etc., they sent a part of their army under Karaṇika Subbaiya to attack Sadri Mir Muhammad Khan, an officer commanding Kodevāla Taluk and another division under Īśvaraiya to attack Heggadādēvankōṭe Taluk. Of these Īśvaraiya's troops lost some men and met the English troops at Karaḍigode and told them that they got no booty as the villagers had run away with their cattle, etc., after hearing of the battle of Siddhēśvar.

* "Instigated by Tippu, and incited by the prospect of plunder, a body of Nairs was to invade Coorg as soon as the army proceeded to the eastward. To repel such an attack, and to secure the rear, especially the hospital which was erected at Virarajendrapet for the sick of the Bombay army whom General Stuart left in Coorg when he marched against Seringapatam, Vira Raja, who had offered to accompany the English army into Mysore, was politely requested to stay behind with his Coorgs, who were rather troublesome auxiliaries to a regular army."—Mysore and Coorg. Vol. III, p. 124.

In the meanwhile General Lvayin Saheb(?) went to Periyāpaṭṭaṇa and Tipu's troops cut off the contact of English troops from Bombay with those of General Lvayin at Periyāpaṭṭaṇa. The Coorg troops were with great difficulty rescued and taken to the camp of the Bombay army. General Stuart felt glad to find that the Coorgs were saved and ordered them to transport the camp equipage of the English with the guns to Alabattapaṭṭaṇa (?). The Coorgs accordingly transferred all the guns from Keraḍigode to Sidēśvarana-gadige. But General Stuart however said there was no need for these guns, etc., in their army and ordered that they should be taken back to Siddāpur and carefully guarded until the arrival of the English troops within the next 10 or 15 days in their midst to carry away the supplies. The Coorgs obeyed this order, went to Periyāpaṭṭaṇa and after supplying a load of rice, etc., on 2,000 bullocks of theirs to the Bombay army at Periyāpaṭṭaṇa returned to their territory at Vīrarājendrapet and took charge of the sick, cattle, etc. belonging to the English army left behind and tended them carefully at Vīrarājendrapet. They also transported their guns to Siddāpur and they were collecting grain, etc., for supplies to the English troops on their return.

But the Coorgs could not live in peace.* The ryots of the villages Torenūr, Hebbale, Sirangala, etc., who had been plundered by their neighbours of Koṇanūr, Arkalgūd and Basavāpaṭṇa Taluks complained that they should be compensated for their wrongs. The Coorgs hence sent a small army division under Īśvaraiya to those villages and engaged in the collection of supplies went to Maḍakēri from Vīrarājendrapet. Īśvaraiya marched upon Arkalgūd, but the people of the Basavāpaṭṇa fort fired upon his troops and fought with them. Hence Īśvaraiya was in danger, but with some difficulty he stormed the fort of Basavāpaṭṇa and plundered the fort and carried some women and children thereof to Coorg as reprisals for similar act done by the people of that village. Later the inhabitants made a cowl or treaty with them and he did them no further damage but remained in their midst.

The other Coorg army sent under Karaṇika Subbaiya to Koḍeyāla Taluk encountered opposition from the Māpillas of Kumbala Taluk. Some looting was done. But seeing that Koḍeyāla Taluk would belong to the English ultimately the Coorg army did not give them much trouble. But the garrison of Belarikōṭe fought with the Coorgs and the fort was taken by the latter. Similarly the Coorgs encountered opposition at Koḍiyāla. They however overcame this opposition and occupied the territory up to Bārūkūr and Bāgvāḍi and garrisoned it. But at Vīragamba the Mapillas rising in rebellion under their leader Sadri surrounded the Coorgs with their men numbering three to four thousand. The Coorgs in self-defence fell on them and killed four to five hundred of the enemies; the rest of the Mapillas ran away. They took prisoner a sardar named Koshatri Kṛishṇarāv and sent him to their chief who took him to Captain Mahoney. Some plunder was obtained in this campaign. Similarly Ali Saba of Dantavara fought with the Coorgs and was defeated and some looting is said to have taken place. So also at Udyavara where the Māpillas under Sadri with the help of some Karnātakas, Mir Hamid Ali's 500 soldiers, and the Nairs of Munaru Kol, fell upon the Coorgs and taking refuge in a mosque fired shots at the Coorgs killing fifty to sixty of their people. Then the Coorgs set fire to the mosque, killed 700 to 800 of their enemy and drove away Sadri. Some looting was done here also. But elsewhere the Coorgs did no damage to the enemy's country but giving 'cowls' to the people, garrisoned all the territory with Mangalore, Koḍeyāla, Bārakūr, Bāgvāḍe and Hosangaḍi as boundaries and protected the territories against damages from Tipu's men.

* “ While Seringapatam was besieged, Vira Raja sent an expedition of Coorgs, under Subbaiya and Bopu, in to the Tulu country, the greater part of which was wrested from the Mussalmans and plundered in the Coorg style. His efforts in Mysore were not less vigorous or less successful. Baswapaṭna, Arkalgudu and other smaller towns were captured, and the Coorgs indulged themselves in the full gratification of every military appetite.”—Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, p. 125.

Meanwhile the Coorg chief remained at Madakeri. Suddenly he found that news from the English armies was not received for 8 days from Chaitra bahuḷa 30, Saturday. The people of Tipu's territories spread rumours that Tipu sent his family, treasure, etc., to Banchanakalludurga (Chitaldrug) after setting fire to the magazine of gun-powder at Seringapatam when that fort was occupied by the English and thus causing them great damage. The Coorgs felt very sad at this news. But a week later, namely, on Saturday the 7th lunar day of the bright half of Vaisākha, a letter was received from Captain Mahoney announcing the death of Tipu and the conquest of his territories by the English and the return of the English troops of the Bombay contingent from Seringapatam. The chief was asked to go immediately to Vīrarājendrapet which he did on the next Monday.

Captain Mahoney informed the Coorg chief that 10 days before, namely, on Chaitra ba 30 Saturday (4-5-1799 A.D.) the English took Seringapatam after laying siege to it and that its territories were in the occupation of the English. The chief was instructed to stop all hostilities and make over all the territory newly conquered to the Government of the East India Company. He was also informed that a British engineer named Hamilton would arrive soon and fix the boundaries of the Coorg and British territories. The chief however complained that if he suddenly removed the garrisons stationed in Tipu's territories there would be anarchy in the district and wicked people who were partisans of Tipu might cause much disturbance and harm to Coorg. To this Captain Mahoney replied that the Coorgs might retain their control over the conquered territories until the arrival of the Bombay regiments, which would take place early and that after their arrival the Coorg chief was to take instructions from the General of the Bombay army regarding the future treatment of the territories.

Accordingly the Coorg chief sent instructions to stop all fighting or plundering to Īṣvaraiya and other officers stationed at Basavāpaṭṇa, Mangalūr, Bārakūr, etc. The letters containing his instructions took 2 to 7 days to reach his garrisons and officers. Īṣvaraiya replied that beyond some damage including looting while taking the fort of Basavāpaṭṇa he did not cause any trouble to Tipu's territories and he promised to prevent any looting by his men. Similarly all the officers of Coorg reported that they did no looting after the receipt of instructions from their chief.

After this, General Stuart and Major-General Hartley came to Coorg and thanked the chief for his services in the war and they went to Cannanore. The chief helped the transport of the stores, supplies, etc., of the army from Coorg to Cannanore. He was advised regarding his garrisons in British territories, etc., to refer to Colonel Wiseman who was going shortly to Mangalore Taluk. General Stuart left for England after once again thanking the Coorg chief. General Wiseman shortly arrived in Mangalore Taluk and Karaṇika Subhaiya made over the places conquered by him to that officer and returned with his men to Coorg.

But there was some difficulty with regard to the Coorg general Īṣvaraiya. Some Brahmans who had been formerly in the employ of Tipu went to him, presented some flags which they said they had brought from the British and asked Īṣvaraiya to leave the country and go to Coorg territories as he had no business to remain in their territory and as the Taluk belonged to them (Mysore State). Īṣvaraiya complained to his chief who ordered him to leave the Mysore territories out of respect for the British flag and return to Coorg, the boundaries of which would be shortly settled by Mr. Hamilton.* Īṣvaraiya carried out the above order and returned to Coorg to look after the State lands therein.

The rest of the manuscript contains a resume of the events recited above from the time Tipu arrived in Siddhēśvarana Gaddige to the time that Captain Mahoney ordered the cessation of hostilities on Vaiśākha śu 10 Monday. The chief of Coorg pleads that the people of Coorg would only be responsible for any encroachments on their neighbour's territories or plunder in those territories after the receipt of instructions from Captain Mahoney and issue of the same to Coorg garrison officers. The Coorg people never went against the tahnāma or treaty entered into by them with General Abercrombie at Tellicherry requiring that the Coorg chief should allow the passage of British troops through his kingdom and give them every possible help. The British generals, officers, General Stuart, Captain Mahoney, etc., were all aware, says the Coorg chief, that the Coorgs never transgressed the terms of the treaty

Regarding the Mysore boundary complaints, the chief's explanation in the manuscript is to the effect that the people living in the Mysore State near the Coorg boundaries were always the enemies of the Coorg citizens even in the time of Tipu Sultan. They were always making false complaints to Tipu through Pūrṇaiya† against the Coorgs. Tipu however was afraid of the English interfering on behalf of the Coorg citizens and used to hold perfunctory inquiries into these complaints and report to the English. Now that Pūrṇaiya was the 'sarvādhikāri' of Mysore, he was causing great trouble to Coorg. He also disliked the Coorg chief for his support of the English and hostilities against Tipu. But the Coorg government relied on their faith in God (Mahadēva) and trust in the British Government dedicating to their service all their kingdom, children, servants, etc. The ryots in the neighbouring taluks of Mysore (which originally belonged to Tipu) were enemies of Coorg and had demanded compensation for the alleged wrongs done to them.

The demands made by Pūrṇaiya and his men from the Coorg chief for restitution for the losses incurred by his people from the depredations of the Coorgs were:‡ Women 67; men 34; little children 11; cows 1,383; bullocks 834; buffaloes 574; clothes 121 pieces; cash Kantiroy varahas 729; trinkets, silver and gold 82; silver bangles 36; coloured bead necklaces 23; silver chains 63; gold ear-rings 54; bronze plates for dinner 215; pots (tambige-tāli) 93; guns 67; ear ornaments called muru 6; horses 6; goats 155; swords 115; Koḍaga-gatti swords 126; battle-axes (kuradi kodli) 116; bronze plates big 5; iron chains 7; cloth bundles 72. All these were said to have been taken away by the Coorgs while looting the Mysore territories and had to be returned by the Coorg chief without delay as per list enclosed.

To this the Coorg chief's answer was as follows:—None of these things mentioned in the list sent to him had been brought by his people to him. More than

A certificate, dated the 12th October 1799 which was given by Capt. Mahoney was as follows:—

- (1) The Raja has exerted himself to the utmost in the service of the Company.
- (2) He has collected large supplies of rice and forwarded them to Seringapatam, thus saving the troops from famine.
- (3) He has furnished 1,000 coolies to the army, and 2,000 men for the conveyance of the ammunition to Seringapatam, without receiving remuneration.
- (4) He has furnished the Bombay army with more than 3,000 bullocks, 5 elephants, 3,000 sheep and 40,000 batties of rice.
- (5) For all this trouble and expense he has accepted of no payment or reward.
- (6) The Raja's conduct has afforded great satisfaction to the men and officers of the Bombay army many of whom have experienced his friendship.

the regular soldiers of Coorg who fought with their guns the people who effected greater plunder in the Mysore territories were a regular set of plunderers who had no connection with the army but who followed in its wake. They might have obtained some clothes and metallic vessels. It is not known whether they also laid hands upon some silver and gold. Any way they said that they never knew anything about 700 varahas. They only brought a few bullocks, goats and sheep which the Coorg chief made over to the English Government. Regarding the women brought to Coorg, the Coorg chief said that on his instituting inquiries among his people, it was learnt that previously Tipu Sultan had caused 64,000 Coorgs to go to Seringapatam with their families by making them false promises and had imprisoned them there. After some time, only some men escaped and went to Coorg. Tipu Sultan thereupon gave away the women and children to his own followers and killed several of the Coorgs. He also castrated the male children. Even recently a Brāhman named Sūraya of Arkalgūd had made incursions with the help of the villagers of Basavāpaṭṇa into the villages Torenūr, Hebbale, Sirangala of Coorg and plundered the property of the ryots of the villages and carried away their women and children. On seeing this, the Coorgs complained to the English and the English had told them that they might also loot in the enemy's territories and carry away what they could. Hence acting on this instruction, the Coorgs laid siege to Basavāpaṭṇa and in the fight which ensued several people died on both sides. The Coorgs who were victorious carried from there 50 to 60 women to Coorg. Of these, some had run away without the knowledge of the chief of Coorg, some were married with the chief's permission, some had died. Now the Coorgs could not send back the rest of the women as their women had been carried away by Tipu in large numbers and they had married many of these women and were living with them. The Coorgs complained that they could not now live without them. The Coorg chief could not force them to part with the women and would leave the matter to the good sense of the British who were the masters.

The Coorg Chief also stated that the Coorgs were ready to pay any sum that may be adjudged reasonably and would serve the British East India Company. Hence he pleaded that the English might take pity on the Coorgs, institute careful inquiries in the neighbouring taluks and only levy such sums from them as would be considered just and fair. The Coorgs were under great pecuniary difficulties and felt it difficult to pay up money to the English according to the demand made.* They had helped General Robert Abercrombie when he came with the Bombay army. They had also

* With this we may compare what the Raja said to James Stevens in a letter: "If I am desired to pay, the question is whence to take the money? What my ancestors and myself accumulated, was spent when I twice faithfully supported the Bombay army. What after the peace of 1792 I obtained from my country, I annually made over to the Company. If anything remained, I expended it on the assistance to General Stuart. But in case I should have to pay according to this paid the sums demanded from them to the English on the conclusion of peace with Tipu. What little money they had saved out of their earnings and their ancestor's savings they had now spent in serving General Stuart of Bombay. Hence the Coorgs could not pay anything just then. But if 4 to 5 months' time was given, they would try to pay up the amount that was considered reasonable. The Coorg chief held bonds of Bombay Government for one lakh of rupees which he had deposited with them. The Coorgs would also go to their friends in the Bombay army and explain to them their difficulties and beg them holding their cheeks (gallahididu bēḍikonḍare) for a loan of the money demanded. This amount they would repay somehow or do service under the officers and pay up out of the salaries received. Thus the Coorgs prayed for a reasonable demand in money and five months' time to pay it up.

Next, the Coorgs were asked to return six horses which they had procured (from Mysore districts). But they had never received any such horses or had any one taken such horses to them. They were not available with them. But if however the English compelled them to render accounts for the same they would have to obey, though there were no horses with them of the description given. But there were four horses with them presented by the English officers,* namely General Harris, General Stuart, General Hartley, General Robert Abercrombie. If the English required they would return these four horses and procure two horses with great difficulty and expense if time was given.

Next, the English had sent word to the Coorgs that they would gratify their desire to see Seringapatam soon after the English army would encamp at Seringapatam.† But the Coorgs replied that they were never anxious to see Seringapatam. They had desired to see the officers in the army of the English and Mysore Governments. But now that a charge had been foisted on them that they had disobeyed the orders of the English and plundered the Mysore territories, they felt no eagerness to go to Seringapatam. Since Captain Mahoney had been the Vakil of the English Government with them and knew all the acts of the Coorgs, the Coorgs would be glad to meet the English officers at Seringapatam if they were to be conducted there by Captain Mahoney from Coorg.

Lastly, the Coorgs stated that they held numerous letters from various responsible British officers, Lord Cornwallis of Bengal, Robert Abercrombie, Sir list, I must earnestly request, that as a compensation for my services, at least my honour remains intact. However, I am quite unable to pay. In Bombay I have one lakh of rupees deposited with the Company; this money I will send for and pay. If it does not suffice, I beg of you and the officers of the Bombay army to be my brothers. My honour is yours. If matters reach extremities I will come to you, and all the officers together will perhaps give me the rest of the sum and leave to me only my honour. What you do for me, I will certainly repay. If you cannot help me, I must turn elsewhere to save my honour."—Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, pp. 129-30

† Mentioned in the letter addressed by Col. Close to the Raja. See Note 1 above.

John Shore, Lord Mornington, Dunkin, General Harris, General Stuart, General Hartley, Malevar Commission Saheb (?). Also numerous letters from native rulers had been received in Coorg showing the great respect in which the Coorg chief had been held. But the letter received from the English now lacks in respect since it did not bear the signature of the officer who issued it and it was difficult to say whether it was not a mere creation of the munshi who wrote it. The great ambition of the Coorgs in serving the East India Company so long lay in their ardent desire that the Company's territories and wealth might increase daily, their flags might fly every where, the Coorgs might become friends of the English officers and hunt with them and remain under their protection, that the Coorgs might receive greater honour at the hands of the English and might live in peace and happiness on earth.* It is with this hope that the Coorgs helped the English even at the cost of their lives and they were glad to see with their eyes the defeat of their enemy and the occupation of his territories by the English. It was only natural for the Coorgs to hope that the English would treat them with great respect. It was well known to all the English officers in Hindustan how the Coorgs served the English cause to win their respect and regard. But now on account of the trouble caused by the Mysore taluk people the Coorgs did not feel happy even to live. They had sent Karañika Subbaiya to represent their cause. He would explain the matter orally and there would also be detailed account given in this paper. The Coorgs prayed that the English authorities would carefully examine all these and send a reply about the services to be rendered by the Coorgs.†

* The same hope is expressed in Note 5 above.

† "In 1804, Capt. Mahoney arrived at Mercara with a letter from the Governor-General, informing Vira Raja that six maganis of the province of Canara would be transferred to him by Mr. Ravenshaw, the Collector of Mangalore, in return for the supplies he had furnished, and the services he had rendered to the British Government during the late wars. The districts thus added to Coorg on the western frontier yielded 24,897 pagodas.

"In the same year, at the suggestion of Major Mark Wilks, then Acting Resident at the Mysore Durbar, the boundary between Coorg and Mysore on the Subrahmanya side was finally adjusted by Mr. Peile and Major Mackenzie, to the Raja's entire satisfaction: 190 stones were ordered to be erected, with the Company's mark on the top, that of Mysore on one side and that of Coorg on the other."—Mysore and Coorg, Vol. III, p. 131.

As in the usual copper plate records of Durvinîta (praise of the Ganga, Kings Kōṅgaṇivarma, Mâdhava, Harivarma, Vishṇugôpa, Mâdhava, Avinîta and Durvinîta see E. C. IX, Dodballapur 68 and Gumnareddipura Plates, M.A.R. 1912, pp. 35-36).

Lines 28—35.

By śrīmat Kōṅgaṇi Vṛiddharâja named Durvinîta, the lord of all the Pânṇâṭa and Pumâṭa, protector of the varṇas and âśramas like Vaivasvata Manu, able to defend the southern quarter, beloved of the subjects, possessed of good progeny, in the 39th victorious and prosperous regnal year in the month of Kârtika, in the bright fortnight, on an auspicious day, during the constellation of Śatabhishak :—

Be it well :—the illustrious Kōṅgaṇi Muttarasar granted to Bhûtaśarma of Kṛishṇâtrêya (gôtra) and Taittirîyaśâkhâ the village Śaliggâme, free of taxes holding the hand of the donee, after apprising Perbbâṇa Muttarasar, Siyavallavarasar, the citizens of Ṭegure, Maṇiya, Nandyâla and Śimbâla and the scholars versed in the four Vedâs of the gift. All the sâmantas and Attâṇi are witnesses (to this). The village granted is near Châṭṭûr and Permânûr.

Lines 36—41.

He who takes away land given by oneself or by others will be in terrible darkness (hell) for sixty-thousand years. The property of Brahmans is a terrible poison. Poison is no poison ; poison kills one man and the property of the Brahmans destroys children and grand-children. What is given with pouring of water, what is enjoyed by three generations, what is protected by good people, what is given by previous kings—these gifts do not cease.

Note.

This record belongs to the 39th regnal year of the Ganga king Śrīpurusha and registers the gift of the village Sâliggâṇe by him (called Kongaṇi Muttarasar in line 31) to a Brahman Bhūtaśarṇa of Kṛṣṇmâtrēya-gôtra and Taittiriya-śâkhâ. The village given is stated to be situated near Châṭṭûru and Permânûru. From the details of the boundaries stated above it is not possible to locate the village Sâliggâṇe.

The gift is said to have been made in the presence of all the sâmantas (feudatories) and Attâṇi. Also Perbbâṇa Muttarasar, Siyavallavarasar, Ṭegureyar, Maṇiyar, Nandyâlar, Śimbâlar, and the châturvaidyas are said to have been informed of the grant. Of these Attâṇi is referred to as a donor during the reign of the Bâṇa king Mahâvaḷi Bâṇarasar in a record at Hulikunda (E. C. X, Bowringpet 48). He seems to have occupied a position of importance under Śrīpurusha (E. C. X, Kolar 229, 232). See also Nandi Plates of Śrīpurusha (M. A. R. 1914, p. 34.) Perbbâṇa was evidently a Bâṇa ruler. He may have been the same as Mahâvaḷi Bâṇarasar who is associated with Attâṇi. Regarding Siyavallavarasar, a vîragal at Nekkundi tells us that the servants of Siyavallavarasa fell during a cattle raid at Mâliyûr and Mr. Narasimhachar while noticing this inscription says that he is identical with Siyagella mentioned in some vîragals at Hirigunḍagal, Tumkur Taluk, as a contemporary of Śrīpurusha and his son Śivamâra II (M. A. R. 1917, p. 38). The other witnesses referred to are Ṭegureyar, Maṇiyar, Nandyâlar and Śimbâlar. These seem to be the inhabitants of the villages Ṭegure, Maṇi, Nandyâla and Śimbâla. see Keregâlûr Plates of Mâdhava II, M. A. R. 1930, p. 120: Kodunjeruvu grant of the Ganga king Avinîta, M. A. R. 1924, p. 67, Nallâla grant of Durvinîta, ibid, p. 69, etc.). The word châturvaidya means those who are versed in the four Vedâs. It is usual to find the châturvaidyas or châturvaidyas cited as witnesses in the Ganga Plates (see the Nallâla grant cited before).

A difficulty has arisen with regard to the identification of the donor of this grant. Line 28 contains the name of Durvinîta and line 29 epithets in his praise. Then the regnal year and some details of dating are given and next in line 31 of the plate IV we find Kongaṇi Muttarasar used in the nominative case and referred to as having made the gift. According to the text cited above, Kongaṇividdharāja Durvinīta is to be interpreted as identical with Kongaṇi Muttarasar. But Kongaṇi Muttarasar or Prithvi Kongaṇi Muttarasar is a name of Śrīpurusha and not of Durvinīta according to the inscriptions published so far. Also the witness Siyavallavarasar cited points to Śrīpurusha and not Durvinīta as the donor. Hence it is to be inferred that the composer or engraver forgot to insert the genealogy of the Ganga kings from Durvinīta to Śrīpurusha in the plates and merely engraved the regnal year and the name Kongaṇi Muttarasa of Śrīpurusha after the word suprajusā in praise of Durvinīta. This position would have to be reconsidered if any definite evidence is obtained to show that Durvinīta also bore the name Muttarasa.

The details of dating given, viz., the 39th regnal year, Kārtikamāsa, Śukla-pakṣa and Satabhishak-nakṣatra do not help us to determine the date of the present record. The Ganga king Śrīpurusha has been assigned the date 788 A. D. by Jouveau Dubreuil. In case, however, Durvinīta is taken as the donor, the date would fall about 643 A. D. according to the same author. The characters of the record seem to be of a later date than the usual grants of Durvinīta. (See Gumma-redḍipura Plates, M. A. R. 1912, p. 30, and Uttanūr Plates, M. A. R. 1916, p. 36).

Translation.

Be it well. A servant of Bālāditya named Śrī Munja pierced Nīlasinda Manasijar and captured them and himself died.

Note.

This inscription is carved in old Kamaḍa characters which may belong to the end of the 8th century or the beginning of the 9th century A.D. The square form of ba is used, ra is not open but closed, la is turned round, etc.

The record refers to the heroism of a warrior named Śrī Munja, servant of Bālāditya. Nothing is known about this Bālāditya. Munja is said to have wounded and taken as prisoner Nīlasinda Manasijar. It is possible to interpret the word Nīlasinda Manasijar as Nilasinda and Manasija. Nīlasindar may be a chief of the Sinda dynasty of rulers whose kingdom Sindavāḍi included parts of Shimoga, Chitaldrug, Dharwar and Bijāpur Districts. Though the Sindas came into prominence after the 10th century some references to their earlier rule are also found (see Mysore and Coorg from the Inscriptions by RICE, p. 147). The name Nīlasinda is not met with so far.

Manasijar was an officer under the Ganga king Śrīpurusha (E. C. III, T.-Narasipur 1) as stated in a stone record at Talakāḍ. In case Manasijar of the present inscription is identical with him he would be a subordinate of Śrīpurusha. In case this identity is assumed, it is possible to take Bālāditya as a Chālukyan prince like Vikramāditya or his brother Chandrāditya. There were frequent wars between the Gangas and Chālukyas after the reign of Śrīpurusha and the present record may be an instance of such a battle in which the Sindas also took part.

The place of the battle has not been mentioned in the record. It is however probable that the fighting may have taken place at Bāgūr itself, the village in which the inscription is found. Inscriptions of the reign of Śrīpurusha and his son Śivamāra frequently refer to a battle at Bāgeūr and it is possible that this Bāgeūr may be the same as the present Bāgūr though it was provisionally identified with Bāgūr in the Channarayapaṭṇa Taluk in a previous report (M. A. R. 1939, pp. 121-125). The date of Śrīpurusha is about 788 A. D. The present record may belong therefore to the close of the 8th century A. D.

Translation.

Good fortune. Salutation to Śambhu. Be it well. On Thursday the 15th lunar day of the bright half of Vaiśākha in the year Śōbhakṛitu, 1466th year of the auspicious Śālivāhana era :—

While the illustrious mahārājādhirāja rājaparamēśvara śrī vīra-pratāpa Sadāśiva-dēvamahārāya was ruling the earth :—

His agent or envoy (saṁdhānada) Ponappa-Nāyaka's son Kṛishṇappa Nāyaka granted to Rāmayya of Rāmānyada Bombalāṭa (marionette show of the Rāmāyana story) the village Chennasamudra in Bāgura-sīme in his amara-māgaṇi, free of taxes. He who confiscates this will incur the sin of slaying his parents in Benares (Further imprecations continue, but have been omitted in the transliteration and translation).

Note.

This is an instance of the grant of a village for the enactment of a marionette show of the Rāmāyana story. The date of the grant corresponds to Thursday, 19th April 1543 A.D. and the grant was made in the reign of Sadāśiva of Vijayanagara by Kṛishṇappa Nāyaka whose title saṁdhānada indicates that he was an envoy of the king.

Note.

This inscription seems to record that one Sâtivadeyar or Sâtayavadeyar of Saganêśvarakoppa pledged the produce of all his lands in that village for some act of charity and sealed the whole heap of grain of his by covering it with leaves. But it is stated that a lady who was the wife of Śivadêva of Gôḷiyabîd brought some men from Garajî and took away from the sealed heap what she claimed to be her own portion of the paddy which had been put into the heap. The remaining hundred and thirty-two solages of paddy were measured and taken away from (the custody of) the paṭṭaṇasvâmi of Bêlûr. It was stipulated that any charitable man might receive this paddy and do the mortar-pointing work (or white-washing) in the temple. It was further laid down that there was no written charter of the king and priests (or Rāju uḍer) for this grant.

The meaning of this record is far from clear. It is not stated in what temple the mortar work (or white-washing work) should be done. But the mention of paṭṭaṇasvâmi of Bêlûr makes it probable that the temple referred to is the well-known Kêśava temple at Bêlûr. Nothing is known about this Sâti Voḍeyar.

The date of the grant is given as Svabhânu-samvatsara Sûrya-sankramaṇa. The date is not expressed in terms of the Śaka era. No particular sankramaṇa day on which the event occurred is named.

The characters seem to belong to the 15th or 16th century. In the 15th line there is an expression yidakke Rāju uḍera akkarillā. This might be interpreted as: "there is no authority (letter) of Rāju uḍer (Rāja Vaḍeyar) for this" or "there is no (necessity for) authorisation of this grant from the kings or priests." In case the former meaning is taken, the grant would go to the reign of King Rāja Vaḍeyar I of Mysore who became king of Seringapatam in 1610 A.D., but he was not the ruler of the Bêlûr kingdom in his reign and the characters also point to an earlier date.

The place Saganêsvara Koppa cannot be located. There are two villages Hire Sakuna and Chikka Sakuna in the Sorab Taluk. Whether they have anything to do with Saganêsvara Koppa cannot be determined. Śakumarâya is said to be the name of the god Anjanêya (M.A.R., 1911, p. 53). Gôḷiyabid and Garaje are villages in the Mûḍagere and Bêlûr Taluks.

Note.

This record is full of lacunæ as a portion of the inscription slab is broken and a portion to the left is lost.

It belongs to the reign of the Hoysala king Narasimha II and is dated in the year Vishu Ś 1150. . . . It states that the god Gôpâladêvaru was set up at Bêlûr in that year by Anṇamabhatta's son Dôrapa and that certain gaudas named Muddagauda of Tolalu, Chattagauda, Lôkagauda of Tagare, Bammagauda of Kaṇṇaguppe made a grant of land named Kârabayal for the god. Among the other grants for the same temple are mentioned the gift of kottage-dere (tax on cattle sheds) of Beluhûr (Bêlûr) by Râmadêva-heggaḍe, customs officer, some money grant by the nakharas (merchants) for the nûla-parvva festival (Śrâvâṇi festival): some land grant in the Tagare-nâḍ district by Sâvâsi Mâdhava-daṇṇâyaka: the gift of the village Mallavalli in Tagarenâḍ by the mahâpradhâna Maliya-daṇṇâyaka: the gift of some land by Sâvâsi Boppajja, son of Basavayya, after purchasing the same in the Baḷḷavi-nâḍ district and also the gift of some land at Emmesandi village by some daṇṇâyaka.

The Śrīvaiṣṇavas (of Bêlûr) and 108 mahâjanas (Brahmans) also of Bêlûr ? agreed to pay one hâga on each occasion of marriage in their houses for the services of the same god Gôpâla and they would thus help or protect the charity. A person named Narasinga is said to have given wet lands to the extent of one salage for the god and another person named Mâchiseṭṭi is also stated to have made some grant for the same god. The details of the grant are not clear.

The usualimprecatory stanza occurs at the end of the grant.

It is not known what became of the temple of Gôpâlasvâmi referred to here at Bêlûr. No temple of that name now exists in the town.

The dating of the grant seems to be irregular. Ś 1150 is Sarvadhârin corresponding to 1228 A.D. The nearest cyclic year Vishu is Ś 1143 equivalent to 1221 A.D. Taking the cyclic year as correct, the date is equivalent to 1221 A.D.

Translation.

Be it well. On the 10th lunar day of the bright half of Bhâdrapada in the year Bahudhânya, on Vaḍḍavâra, the illustrious mahârajâdhirâja râja-paramêśvara śrī Vîra Hariharamahârâya issued a nirûpa to Guṇḍappa-ḍaṃṇâyaka, in order that he might protect the charity made by śrī Vîra Bukkarâya through Teppada Nâgaṇṇa Voḍeyar:—

In place of the former payment by the palace of 4 varahas and 8 baṇas to the god śrī Râma, of the maṭha of Surêndratîrtha-śrîpâda at Bêlûr for food offerings to the god Śrī Râma, feeding of ascetics and illuminations, wet lands to the extent of 2 kaḍahus consisting of the portions of wet lands of Mâlegâra (garland-maker) Chaḍappa and Basappa in the rice lands adjacent to the fort at Bêlûr? including one kaḍahu in Bhaṇagilalayaḷ [meaning of the details of the lands granted not clear] were given as koḷugi for the god Śrī Râma dêvaru by Nâgarasa of Bêlûr under the nirûpa of Guṇḍappa-ḍaṃṇâyaka Voḍeyar.

Writing of Nârâṇadêva, the village accountant. Writing (signature) of Nâgarasa.

Whoever destroys this gift, whether a Brahman, Kshatriya, Vaisya or Śūdra, will incur the sin of slaying his parents in the holy Vâraṇāsi. Between making a gift and protecting it, protecting a gift is more meritorious than making the gift. By making a gift one goes to svarga, by protecting a gift one goes to a region from which there is no fall. Good fortune.

Note.

This inscription stone was lying buried in the land of Mr. Varadaiyangâr and discovered by him while making some improvements to his land. There is writing both on the front and a side of the stone. Above the writing in front are carved the figures of conch and discus and Râma holding a bow.

The inscription is stated to have been issued during the reign of the Vijayanagar king Harihara. From the references to his predecessor Bukkarâya and also to the ministers Teppada Nâgaṇṇa Voḍeyar and Guṇḍappa-dañṇâyaka, it is evident that this Harihara is Harihara II who ruled from 1377 to 1404. The object of the grant is to record the gift of some lands at Bêlûr for the expenses of the worship of the god Râma, and of the feeding of the ascetics in the matt of the ascetic Surêndra-tîrtha of Bêlûr in place of a money grant of 4 varahas and 8 haṇas made by the king Bukkarâya (Bukka I, 1356-1377) from his palace for the same object through his minister Teppada Nâgaṇṇa Voḍeyar. The order is addressed by the king Harihara II to his minister Guṇḍappa-dañṇâyaka and carried out by Nâgarasa of Bêlûr.

Of the persons named in the grant, Teppada Nâgaṇṇa Voḍeyar was a general under the Vijayanagar King Bukka I (see E. C. VI, Mudagere 25 of 1359; E. C. IX, Hoskote 93; M. A. R. 1936, p. 95, Chandâpura stone of 1360 A.D.). He had a title Khantikâra-râyara-gaṇḍa. Guṇḍappa-dañṇâyaka was an officer of Harihara II. He re-built the tower over the gateway of the Bêlûr Kêśava temple in 1397 A.D. (E. C. V, Belur 5).

Regarding the donee Surêndra-tîrtha-śrîpâda, the head of a matt at Bêlûr, very little is known. There is a small matt at Bêlûr belonging to the head of the Râghavêndrasvâmi Matt. There is however no ascetic at the matt nor is the god Kôḍaṇḍarâma enshrined therein. An ascetic of the lineage of the Râghavêndrasvâmi matt named Surêndra-tîrtha is known to have flourished in 1513 A.D. and the god worshipped in the matt is Râma with the bow (M. A. R. 1917, p. 17). But the date is too early for the present grant. No ascetic of the name of Surêndra with a matt at Bêlûr and worshipping the god Râma as the principal deity is met with so far. Hence it is not possible to find out further details about the donee Surêndra-tîrtha-śrîpâda of the present grant.

The date of the record is given as Bahudhânya-sam. Bhâdrapada śu 10. The only Bahudhânya occurring in the reign of Harihara II is the year Ś1320 Bahudhânya. Taking this year Bhâdrapada śu 10 coincided with Thursday, 22nd August 1398 A. D. The week-day given in the grant appears to resemble Va standing for Vaddavāra which by some is taken to be Thursday and by others as Saturday. Taking the former interpretation, the date of the grant is equivalent to Thursday, 22nd August 1398 A.D.

Translation.

Be it well. When the illustrious mahāmaṇḍalēśvara, lord of the excellent city of Dvārāvati, obtainer of boons from Vāsantikādēvī, Śanivārasiddhi, giridurgamalla, a Râma in moving battle, unassisted hero, Pratâpa Hosyâṇa Vira Ballâlabhûpati captured the fort of Kuṛugôḍ :—

Kûsa Râmaya, son of Bammeya of Balligâve, who was the son of Lenka (personal attendant) Mâcheya, son of Lenka Biṭṭaya, body-guard (mêgâhina-lemka) of Biṭṭidêva :—

On Friday the 1st lunar day of the bright half of Bhâdrapada in the year Ânanda, Śaka year 2027 (?) Lenka Sômeya, elder brother of Kûsa Râmeya set up this stone for Kûsa Râmeya: salutation to Śiva.

Note.

This records the death of a warrior named Kûsa Râmeya, descendant of Lenka Biṭṭaya, who belonged to the bodyguard of the Hoysala king Viṣṇuvardhana, on the occasion of the capture of the fort of Kuṛugôḍ by the Hoysala king Ballâḷa II. The present vîragal is said to have been set up by the elder brother of the deceased warrior. The words expressing the death of Kûsa Râmeya are omitted in the record though the meaning intended is quite clear.

Regarding the date of the death of the warrior, the vîragal has the date Ś 2027 Ânanda sam. Bhâdra. śu. 1 Friday. The last figure 7 is not quite clear. The date however is quite wrong. The king in whose reign the event recorded took place is named Hoysala Ballâḷa who took the fort of Kuṛugôḍ. It is known that this fort was captured by Ballâḷa II in the year Ânanda on the 1st lunar day of the bright half of Bhâdrapada, the year Ânanda being regarded as equivalent to 1194 A.D. (see E.C. V, Belur 204 and Arsikere 5 of 1194 A.D.). The Śaka year given in one of these records is 1117. In the present vîragal also the same figure 1117 ought to have been incised, but the engraver seems to have made a mistake and written 2027. Taking the year Ś 1117 Ânanda, Bhâdrapada śu. 1 corresponds to Thursday, 18th August 1194, if we take the lunar month and Friday, 16th September 1194, if we take the solar month corresponding. The latter was probably the date intended as the week day given is Friday. Hence the date of this vîragal may be regarded as equivalent to Friday, 16th September 1194 A.D.

Kuṛugôḍ is a place in the Bellâri District and is referred to in several inscriptions. This is one of the instances of vîragals set up in the native places of the warriors slain in battle, though the field of battle was far away.

Note.

This inscription is full of lacunæ as several letters are quite worn out and are illegible. It seems to record the heroism of a warrior in protecting the cattle of the village Hiriya Garje against robbers and his death while fighting. A younger brother of the deceased warrior is said to have set up the vīragal. It is dated in Ś 1209 Vyaya sam. Phālguna corresponding to February 1287 A.D. No king is named in the record.

This short inscription in the Hoysalēśvara temple records the gift of two huns by Surisetti, son of Chennisetti, an oil monger of the village Chattichattihalli (same as Chatchathalli near Halebīd) for the whitewashing of the Hoysalēśvara temple (Hoysalēśvara temple). The donation is said to have been made in the month of Chaitra in the year Hēvīlambi. It is not dated in the Śaka era.

The characters seem to belong to the close of the 13th or the beginning of the 14th century A.D.

Note.

The slab containing this vīragal inscription was originally built into the ceiling of the old entrance gateway of Halebīd and the record was noticed in M. A. R. 1917, p. 45, by Mr. Narasimhachar. On the demolition of the gateway, the slab was removed to its present place.

It belongs to the reign of the Hoysala king Ballāla II. It begins with the usual stanza in praise of the god Śaṃbhu and next gives the royal epithets applied to Ballāla II:—obtainer of the hand of five musical instruments, mahāmaṇḍalēśvara, lord of the excellent city of Dvārāvati, obtainer of boons from Vāsantikādēvi, delighter in musk, plunderer of the Chōla army, hunter of maṇḍalikas, gaṇḍabhēruṇḍa to the elephants his enemies, champion over the Malepas, capturer of Talakādu, Gangavāḍi, Nolamba-vāḍi, Banavase, Hānungal, Halasige and Belvala, bhujabala-vira-ganga, Śanivāra-siddhi, giridurgamalla, a Rāma in battle, unassisted hero, viśaṅka pratāpa-Hoysala śrī Viraballāladēvarasar:—

The king Ballāla II is stated to have marched against Murāri Kēśava Nārasiṅga encamped at Hadaḍeya-Kuppa and ordered the van of the army to attack the enemy. What happened next is not very clear. A general named Chenna Kālāma-Sāhani is next mentioned with a string of titles, kaṭakula gōra (protector of his camp), a Rēvanta in horsemanship, a peg to the chest of envious royal sāhanis, a whip to the back of the titled royal sāhanis, a lion for spearmen, a jewel among the titled, an elephant goad to warriors, a Karṇa in liberality, an Indra in the enjoyment of pleasures, a Hariśchandra in truth, a Sahasrārjuna in bravery, delighter in music and dancing, purifier of his race, treasure of peace, a Chintāmaṇi stone to suplicants, a Kalpa tree to suplicants, not given to fear or greed, the sole Mēru to good people, husband of the wives of royal sāhanis who on seeing a warrior take to flight, husband of the wives of sāhanis who on seeing an army move round about, gaṇḍa peṇḍāra, worshipper of the holy feet of the god Ballēśvara, destroyer of hostile troops, etc.

The warrior Chenna Kālāma Sāhani is called gaṇḍa-peṇḍāra and this title is given in line 18 after the name Bijjāla, the Kaṭachurya king. There are some lacunæ after the name Bijjāla. Whether Chenna Kālāma Sāhani had been a subordinate of the Kaṭachurya king Bijjāla and fought against Ballāla II in this battle (see M. A. R.

1917, p. 45) or whether he was a subordinate of Ballāḷa II, cannot be determined. Anyway his valour is highly extolled. He is said, on finding King Ballāḷa encamped at Mēgaṇagere, (a tank higher up?), to have marched forward up to the river (not named: probably the Tungabhadra river or Haridra river is meant as they are not very far off from Hadaḍi a village in Davangere Taluk) and fought bravely along with (or opposed to) Gauriyamalla (or Śauryamalla?), Chaṇḍeya, Kunuama Sāhani and Māyyajīya. The inscription is incomplete as the record stops after this. Probably the rest of the inscription slab was broken up and removed elsewhere.

The date of the battle is given as Ś 1111 Saunya sam. Āsviyuja su. 2 corresponding to 13th September 1189 A.D. Nothing is known from other inscriptions regarding Murāri Kēśava or Chenna Kāḷama Sāhani. The mention of Bijjala in the inscription seems to indicate that Chenna Kāḷama Sāhani was once serving under him. At the time of the inscription, however, Bijjala was not living.

This is an instance of the grant of nettaru-kodage (lit. grant of land for shedding the blood). This was given away to warriors who fought in defence of their country or village.

The present record is dated S 1668 Akshaya sam. Vaisākha Śu 10 corresponding to April 19, 1746 and registers the gift of two plots of land of the annual revenue of 5 hons situated near the village Mārāṇḍahallī in Vakkalēri hobli belonging to the kingdom of Kōḷāla (Kōlār). This grant was made by Channappa of Vakkalēri in favour of Gōpaya, son of Tammayya of Mudakajāla village. He had to pay however a quit-rent of 2½ varahas in lieu of all taxes and imposts. The object of the grant was to recognise the services of his younger brother Hanuma who fought against the Bēḍas of Ālahallī village when they came to plunder the village Mārāṇḍahallī on behalf of some ruler (râjakârya). Hanuma lost his life in the encounter in the year Paingala, i.e., 1737 A.D., 9 years earlier and the grant of land was now made for his relative as compensation.

The writer of the grant is named Kankappa, clerk under the kulakarni of Vakkalēri.

Note.

This record belongs to the reign of the Vijayanagar king Sadāśivarāya when Rāmarāya was actually governing the empire. It registers the gift of the income from the santhe or fair at Mārkaṇḍēśvarapura belonging to Vakkalêri (Vakkalahêri village) situated in Kôlāiarājya (Kolar Kingdom) made by Sitāpaka Maluka Voḍeyar agent of Dilāvāra Khāna Vaḍeyar, governor of Yen.menāḍ belonging to Chêlūr chāvaḍi for the merit of Dilâvara Khâna. The grant was made for the food offerings and illuminations in the temple of the god Mârkaṇḍēśvara at the village Dēvalâpura. The usual imprecations conclude the grant.

The importance of the inscription lies in the fact that a grant was made for a Hindu temple by an agent of a Mussalman Officer Dilâvara Khân for the merit of the latter. The actual donor Sitâpaka Maluka Vadeyar called also Sitâpakhâna Vadeyar seems to have been a Mussalman. Some Mussalman Officers were employed by the Late Vijayanagar Kings. Among them were Dilâvar Khân and Rustumji Khân. In the reign of Sadâsiva Râya, these Officers made grants to Hindu Temples and Priests (see E. C. X, Kolar 147, and M.A.R. 1930, p. 159).

The date of the grant is given as Ś 1479 Naḷa sam. Āshâḍha śu 4 which corresponds to 11th June 1556 A. D.

Note.

This short inscription records a gift, evidently the setting up of the above garuḍagambha pillar by Mallappa, (son or subordinate) of Vâṇarâsi Baḷegidēva Râṇe.

No date is given. A Baḷugidēva Râṇeya, subordinate of the Sēvūṇa king Râmachandra is referred to in a record of 1275 A. D. (M.A.R. 1911, p. 42). The characters of the present record seem to belong to the 18th century and hence Vâṇarâsi Baḷegi Dēva Râṇe of the present record may not be the same as Baḷugidēva Râṇeya referred to above.

Translation.

Lines 1—4.

May the barlike tusk of Hari who took the form of Varâha (Boar) for sport, borne on which the earth possessed the beauty of an umbrella with the Golden Mountain as its finial protect you :

Salutation to Hêramba, the bees dwelling on (lit. householders) whose temples render music with the Veda as an accompaniment. (The meaning of this verse is not very clear).

Lines 4—20.

In the race of the moon who is a treasure of joy to the righteous called Yadu, was born the fruit of the austerities of the earth, possessed of wonderful sweetness. In that great lineage arose a king named Sangama the stream of whose fame shone like the Ganges. Among the sons of that treasure of jewels (Sangama), king Bukka-mahîpâla shone like Kaustubha among gems. The son of that lord of Gaurâmbikâ (Bukka) was Hariharêsvara endowed with good qualities and with fame flowing like a stream and white like a string of pearls. The fourteen worlds are not sufficient to hold his fame arising from the sixteen gifts made by him and sporting in all the cardinal regions.

Pratâpa Dêvarâja was his son, famed in the world. He was, by his qualities, like the embodiment of the happiness of his subjects. That hero made oblations of his enemies in the fire of his valour on the battle-field and held the hand of (married) the Goddess of Victory. His son by Dêmâmbikâ was king Vijayabhûpati, pre-eminent on account of his courtesy, a treasure of learning, distinguished for his knowledge, and brave. The consort of that treasure of compassion, Vijayabhûpati was Nârâyaṇâmbikâ, like Lakshmi of Vishṇu and Pârvati of Śankara. The praise-worthy fruit of their austerities in previous births is their son king Dêvarâya. Ever generous he is dwelling in happiness on earth.

Lines 20—31.

An ornament to the benevolent, highly magnanimous and versed in the secrets of the path of righteousness, the great king Dêvarâja, in the Śaka year counted by moon, arrows, fires and moon (1351), in the year Saṁnya, in the pure month Bhâdrapada, in the bright fortnight, on the 15th lunar day, on Monday, on the holy occasion of the lunar eclipse on the holy bank of the Tungabbadrâ, and in the presence of Virûpâksha, gave away with pouring of water, the famous village Chôlîsattipalli situated in the renowned Tumbekallu-sthala, Kodda-dêsa and Penugundapurî kingdom, making it an agrahâra named Tryambakapura to the assemblage of Brahmans, endowed with righteous qualities and having reached the other shore of the ocean of grammar, Mîmâṁsâ and logic. The names of the pure souled Brahmans who hold the vṛittis in this Tryambakapura are written here along with their gôtras and śâkhas.

Lines 31—48.

The first vṛitti belongs to the guru Kriyâśakti, the teacher (guru) of the universe, born of Kâśyapagôtra and a follower of Yajurveda. One vṛitti belongs to the guru Gôvindânanda, of Bôdhânandânvaya, a physician to the disease of worldliness (bhava—world of births and deaths): To Nâgaṇa, son of Dirgha Malinâtha of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Yajurveda, 6 vṛittis: to Lakshmîkântârâdhya, son of Viśvēśvarârâdhya of Hârîta-gôtra and Yajurveda, one vṛitti: to Kûchibhaṭṭa, son of Pôchaṇa of Kâśyapa-gôtra and Yajurveda, one vṛitti: to the six sons of Nâgapârâdhya, of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rik-śâkhâ, named Janmapârâdhya, Madhuvanârâdhya, Chaudapârâdhya, Nâgapârâdhya, Lakshmanârâdhya and Gangânârâdhya, 6 vṛittis: to Nâgaṇa, son of Râghava of Viśvânîtra-gôtra and Rik-śâkhâ, one vṛitti: to Singaribhaṭṭa, son of Nâgaṇa of Vâsishṭha gôtra and Rîgvêda, one vṛitti: to Aubhalabhaṭṭa, son of Pemmanârya of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîgvêda, one vṛitti: to Nâgaṇa, son of Singanârya, of Kâśyapa-gôtra and Rîgvêda, one vṛitti: to Tipaṇa, son of Gôvinda of Jâmadagnya-gôtra and Rîg Vêda one vṛitti : to Sangana, son of Lakhaṇa of Kâśyapa-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti.

Lines 48—56

To Nṛiharibhaṭṭa, son of Râmachandra, of Vâdhûla-gôtra and Yajur Vêda, two vṛittis : to Singana, son of Narahari of Âtrêya-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Malana, son of Sâvaṇârya of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Janapa, son of Chôlapârya of Hârîta-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Nârana, son of Virana of Agastya-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Basavana, son of Dêvana, of Viśvâmitra-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Nrihari and Singana, sons of Puṭana of Bâdarâyana-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, two vṛittis : to Lakhaṇa, son of Mangana of Kausika-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti.

Lines 56—64.

To Nâgana, son of Gôpana of Śrīvatsa-gôtra and Yajur Vêda, one vṛitti : to Âchana, son of Gôpana of Śrīvatsa-gôtra and Yajur Vêda, one vṛitti : to Nrihari, son of Châyana of Gautama-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Liṅṅana, son of Dêvana of Âtrêya-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Râyana, son of Râmana of Vasishṭha-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Liṅṅana, son of Virana of Kâśyapa-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Ganapa, son of Chaudapa, of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Tippana of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, son of Homapa, one vṛitti : to Viṭhapârya, son of Kêśapârya of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti.

Lines 64—68.

To Nâgana, son of Kêśapârya of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, is given one vṛitti : to Dêvana, son of Viṭhappa of Kaundînya-gôtra and Yajur Vêda one vṛitti : to Tippana, son of Mallappa of Vasishṭha-gôtra and Yajur Vêda, one vṛitti : to Lakhaṇa, son of Nârâyana-dêva of Vasishṭha-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Mallapa son of Dêvana of Gârgya-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti.

Lines 68—79.

To Śrigirimâtha, son of Chadappa of Âtrêya-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, are given 10 vṛittis : to Râmachandra, son of Dêvaṇârya of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, 20 vṛittis : to Janapârâdhya, son of Nâgapârâdhya of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, 4 vṛittis : the three persons named Haribhaṭṭa, son of Nṛisimbârâdhya, Lakhaṇa, son of Madhuvana, Dêvana, son of Chaudapa, all of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda get half a vṛitti each : to Nâgana and Amadâta, sons of Singana and Anbhala of Bhâradvâja-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, one vṛitti : to Chaudapa, son of Mallapa of Kâśyapa-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, half a vṛitti : to Mallapa, son of Tippana of Śrīvatsa-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, half a vṛitti : to Tippana, son of Mâdhava of Śrīvatsa-gôtra and Rîg Vêda, half vṛitti : Mâdana, son of Basavana, Maijâra, son of Gôvinda, Timmana, son of Kôṭidêva, these three persons of Vasishṭha-gôtra and Rîg Vêda get half vṛitti each.

Lines 79—84.

To Kṛishṇabhaṭṭa and Singaṇa of Viśvāmitra-gôtra and Ṛig Vêda, sons of Râghava and Nâgaṇa, one vṛitti (each): to Nâgaṇa of Yajur Vêda and Âtrêya-gôtra, son of Gôpaṇa, half a vṛitti: to Avvaṇa, son of Tippaṇa of Vasishṭha-gôtra and Yajur Vêda, half a vṛitti: to Sangana, son of Dêvaṇa of Ṛig Vêda and Âtrêya-gôtra, half a vṛitti: to Paṇḍari, son of Viṣṇu of Śukla Yajur Vêda and Gautama-gôtra and to Mallappa, son of Nôruappa of Yajur Vêda and Vasishṭha-gôtra, half a vṛitti: to Râmachandra, Bonuṇa, Lôkaṇa and Timmaṇa of the Atri, Vasishṭha and Bharadvâja-gôtras and of the Ṛig and Yajur Vêdas, one vṛitti each is to be given.

Dêvarâya-mahârâya's gift

Note.

This copper plate sâsana consisting of two plates was found in the house of the village accountant of Chôlênahalli. The plates measure 11"×7"× $\frac{1}{4}$ ". There is writing on one side of the first plate and on both sides of the second plate. There is a hole on the top of both the plates. There is no seal nor ring. The letters of the record are well carved in Nandi Nâgari characters. But there are several orthographical errors. The language is Sanskrit. The record is however incomplete as it stops after reciting the names of the donees and referring to king Dêvarâya. Another plate which must have contained the boundaries of the village granted, terms of gift, imprecatory verses, signature, etc., seems to have been lost.

The grant belongs to the reign of the Vijayanagar King Dêvarâya II, son of Vijayabhûpati and Nârayaṇâmbikâ. The usual stanzas in praise of the Sangama dynasty of kings from Yadu and Sangama down to Dêvarâya II are given (cp. E. C. XII, Tumkur 11) after the invocatory verses addressed to the gods Varâha and Gaṇêśa.

The object of the record is to register the gift of an agrahâra village called Chôlîsaṭṭipalli (Chôlênahalli) renamed Tryambakapura situated in the Penugonḍa-puri kingdom, Rodda province, Tumbekallu-sthala to certain Brahmans with Kriyâśakti-guru at their head by the king Dêvarâya II.

The date of the grant is given as Ś 1351 Saumya sam. Bhâdrapada śu 15 Monday with a lunar eclipse and corresponds to 12th September 1429, a Monday with a lunar eclipse and occurring in the month of Nija Bhâdrapada.

The importance of the record lies in its containing the gôtra and sûtra of the royal preceptor Kriyâśakti, not found so far in the inscriptions and literary references to that guru. He is stated in this record to belong to Kâśyapa-gôtra and to have been a follower of the Yajur Vêda. He is also honoured in this record with the appellation bhuvana-guru or world-preceptor. Among the other donees are some names ending in ârâdhya (cp. E. C. XI, Davangere 23 of 1410).

Kriyâśakti was a famous teacher who belonged to the Suddha Śaiva sect of Śaivism, evidently the same as the Kâlâmukha sect. His name, religion and the preference shown to the Kashmir Brahmins and Śaiva agamas by his disciple Mādhavamantrin lead to the inference that he belonged to the Kālāmukha sect. This had numerous votaries in the Karnāṭaka from very early times but practically disappeared after the reign of Dēvarāya II. It is believed that its followers were absorbed by the Viraśaiva or Lingayat cult and the Smārta or Advaita sect. There are references to the guru Kriyāśakti from 1347 A.D. to 1431 A.D. in inscriptions, and hence it is surmised by some scholars that there were several gurus of this name during this period.

The absence of the gōtra and sūtra of the Kālāmukha gurus so often met with in inscriptions should not be taken to denote that they were opposed to Vedic teaching and the Brahman social system. The Kālāmukha gurus are always praised as being well-versed in the Vēdas and Vēdāṅgas. A lithic record at Belgāmi, the chief centre of the Kālāmukha sect, dated 1036 A.D., while referring to the Kālāmukha priest Lakulīśvara-panḍita gives in a verse the essence of his doctrine: Mahādēva is god, his feet are worthy of worship by all the world. The rule enjoined in the three Vēdas for the order of castes and āśramas is dharma. (E.C. VII, Shikarpur 126: translations, P. 98).

There are several inscriptions and literary works referring to Kriyāśakti from the time of Harihara I down to the reign of Dēvarāya II.—The earliest of these inscriptions is the Hecheche copper śāsana of 1347 in which he is spoken of as the guru of Mādhava, minister of Prince Mārapa and praised as an incarnation of Śiva (E. C. VIII, Sorab 375). Heddase Plates of Mārapa contain the same information and are of the same date (M.A.R. 1929, P. 168).

A stone inscription of Bukka I, dated 1368 at Muchchandi speaks of Kāśī Vilāsa Kriyāśakti as the instructor of Mādhava (or Mādhava-mantrin), in Pure Saivism (E.C. VII Shikarpur 281). A copper plate grant of Harihara II dated 1378 speaks of Kriyāśaktiāchārya as the kula guru (family preceptor) of the king (E.C. V, Channarayapatna 256). The Gadag Plates of Harihara II, dated 1379, refer to a grant made by the king at the instance of his preceptor śrīmad rāpaguru mahāmandalāchārya Vāṇivilāsa Kriyāśakti. This is believed to be different from Kāśī Vilāsa Kriyāśakti (M.E.R. 1925, p 88). The Hosahalli Plates of Harihara II, dated 1384, describe Harihara II as having listened to the teachings of Kriyāśakti and Vidyāraṇya (Journal of Bombay Historical Society, Vol. I, No. 2, p. 1). A lithic record of the same reign, dated 1390 A. D. at Śankaratīrtha near Muḷabāgal states that Immadi Bukka, son of Harihara II granted the village Kummāyipalli for the services of the shrine of Vidyāśankara set up in memory of the guru Kriyāśakti who had died in the previous year (1389). This record would establish some connection between him and Vidyāśankara. Whether Vidyāśankara was merely the name of the deity set up or whether he had anything to do with the Vidyātīrtha or Śrīngēri who died about 1356 or with Vidyāśankara, the guru of Nanahari, successor of Mādhavamantrin at Goa cannot be determined (see M.A.R. 1932, p. 106; J.B. Br. A.S. IV, p. 108).

After this we have two copper plates of Harihara, dated 1398 and 1399 which also praise Harihara II as the worshipper of the feet of rāja-rāja-guru-pitāmaha Kriyāśaktidēva who was the worshipper of the feet of Svayambhu Triyambakadēva (M.A.R. 1912, P. 47). A lithic record of the same reign, dated 1403 speaks of the governor of Āraga named Viṭṭhaṇṇa Oḍeyar as a swan at the lotus feet of Kriyāśakti-guru-muniśvara and registers a gift of land to Kriyāśakti-dēva-rāya-voḍeyar and also to the guru of the Śringēri Matt (Singēriya voḍeyar) [E.C. VI Koppa 53: also Koppa 52 and E.C. VIII, Tirtbahalli 133.]

We next come to the records of the reign of Dēvarāya I. A stone inscription at the Harihara temple at Harihara speaks of Dēvarāya as having obtained his supreme knowledge by the favour of rāya-rāja-guru-maṇḍalāchārya Kriyāśakti-guru. It is dated in 1410 A.D. (E.C. XI, Davangere 23). The Daṇḍepalli Plates of Dēvarāya I's son Vijaya-bhūpati call Vijaya-bhūpati as a disciple of Kriyāśakti-dēśika and record a gift by that king of a village called Kriyāśakti-pura to Brahmans. (E.I. XIV, p. 80). A stone record of the reign of Dēvarāya II at Puttūru in South Canara District, dated 1431 A. D. registers a gift of lands on the occasion of the visit of the teacher Kriyāśaktidēva to the place. The Superintendent for Epigraphy, Madras who has noticed this in his Annual Report on South Indian Epigraphy for 1931 (P. 48) gives his opinion that this Kriyāśakti is evidently different from his namesake who was the spiritual preceptor of Mādhavamantrin and also of Harihara II.

In none of the above stone or copper records are the gōtra and sūtra of Kriyāśakti given. A few references to Kriyāśakti in contemporary literature may be noticed here. Tātparyadīpikā, a work in Sanskrit being a commentary on a philosophical treatise called Sūtasamhitā by Mādhava-mantrin tells us that the author (here called Mādhavāchārya) was a disciple of Kāśivilāsa Kriyāśakti. As stated already Mādhavamantrin served under Prince Mārāpa, Bukka I and Harihara II. Kampa-rāya-charitam of Gangādēvi also speaks of Kāśivilāsa Kriyāśakti as her guru. Śrīnātha author of some Chāṭu verses in Telugu states in his work that the goddess Sarasvati got for him the title of Kavi Sārvaśaṇṇa before Chandrabhūsha Kriyāśakti Rāya. (Sources of Vijayanagar History by S. Krishnaswami Iyengar, p. 61). In a foot note on p. 61 of the same work Dewan Bahadur Dr. S. Krishnaswami Iyengar opines that this is a distinct person from Kāśivilāsa Kriyāśakti, the preceptor of Mādhavamantrin and Gangādēvi, the first member of the full title being the personal designation of the occupant and the second that of the office.

Translation.

. . . . While Anṇapa was ruling the earth. Bâgija Bu [tuga] Koṃguṇi and his wife Pa made the gift of bittucaṭṭa. Be it well. On the occasion of eclipse, Gāmuṇḍa granted 10 kaṇḍugas of land to Mārayya of Teni ya Kāśyapagôtra. He who destroys this gift will incur the sin of destroying? tanks, red cow, and Brahmans. The grant made for the tank built by Bûtuga Konguṇi.

Note.

This inscription is fragmentary as the inscription stone is broken on both the sides and a number of letters are lost both at the beginning and end of lines 1—11.

A king is first referred to as ruling the earth. Only the letters ṇṇapa at the end are now left. The name may stand for Anṇapa. There is a Noḷamba king Anṇapa who ruled from 931 to 940 over parts of Tumkur and Chitaldrug Districts. Whether his rule extended over parts of Mysore District cannot be determined definitely. But the exercise of some authority in the Ganga kingdom by the Noḷambas is indicated in some inscriptions (see M.A.R. 1939, p. 177; E.C. III, Mandya 13 of 395). No date is given in the record but the characters appear to belong to the 10th century A.D.

The main object of the inscription is to record the construction of a tank by Bûtuga Konguṇi and a grant made for the same. This Bûtuga was probably the same as the Ganga king who slew the Chôla king Râjāditya at Takkôlam (E.C. III, Mandya 41) about 949 A.D. At the time of the grant he might have been a prince. The present record gives the title Bâgiya to him. It is not clear what it means. His wife is also stated to have joined with him in making a grant of bittuvaṭṭa for the tank built by him. But her name is lost in the inscription except the initial Pa. The record next refers the grant of 10 kaṇḍugas of land to Mārayya of Kāśyapagôtra by some gāmuṇḍa. Probably the donee of this grant Mārayya received confirmation of the grant of bittuvaṭṭa for the tank from Bûtuga and his wife. An imprecation is contained against the violators of the grant. The word bittuvaṭṭa seems to indicate either a portion of the produce of the lands below a tank or some wet lands below a tank granted to the person who built the tank or repaired it.

Regarding the wife of Bûtuga Konguṇi, we have only the initial letter Pa for her name. Even this letter is not very clear. So far we have come across the names of two wives of his, Rêvakanimmadi, the Râshtrakûṭa princess, and Chikkabbe referred to in a record at Ālahalli (E. C. VII, Shimoga Taluk. 96 and E. I., IV, 350).

Very close to the inscription stone is a ruined old tank and it is probable that this was the tank referred to in the lithic record.

Some letters are lost in lines 11, 12 and 16 of the record. This record belongs to the reign of the Chōla king Vira Rajendra Chōla and mentions the death of a warrior named Bîra while fighting the battle of Bayanâd against thieves. His son is said to have got the viragal inscription engraved.

The date is given as Ś 992 Śrî Kara Pushya 10 and the regnal year of Vîra Râjendra Chôla is also given but it cannot be clearly made out owing to lacunæ. Ś 992 is equivalent to 1069 or 1070 A.D. which would be the 6th or 7th regnal year of Vîra Râjendra (see E. C. X, Chintâmaṇi 161) and corresponds to the cyclic year Śaunya or Śâdhârâṇa and not Khara. The nearest Khara corresponds to A.D. 1051 which would fall in the 34th or 35th regnal year of Râjendra Chôla. There is some confusion in the date. Perhaps the word Śrîkara in line 2 might simply mean auspicious and not indicate the name of the cyclic year.

This records the gift of the village Bichanahalli situated in Sôgalavâdîpura-sthala in Hurada-sîme with certain hamlets forming them into an agrahâra named Dêvarâjapura made by the king of Mysore, Dêvarâja Voḍeyar, son of Dêvarâja Voḍeyar and grandson of Châmarâja Voḍeyar. The agrahâra was granted free from all taxes and with all the rights of possession to certain Brahmins not named who are said to have been proficient in all branches of learning. The king Dêvarâja Voḍeyar is stated to have been seated on the throne of Śrîrangapaṭṭana (Serîngapatam). The usual imprecations occur at the end of the grant.

No date is given. The donor Dêvarâja Voḍeyar was the king of Mysore from 1659 to 1672.

Translation.

During the 19th regnal year of Śrî Râjêndrachôladêvar, Koparakêsariparamar, the conqueror of Pûrvvadêsa (Eastern country), Gange and Kaḍâra, —on Thursday, 13th lunar day of the dark half of the month Chaitra, in the year Pramôda, the Śaka year 953—when Sântayya Koṭaga, uncle of Taṭṭala Êchagâvunḍa, son of Bâniga Bimayya, came and seized the cows, the brave Binnânḍi recovered the cows and attained the region of the gods.

Note.

This is one of the usual viragal records describing the exploits of a hero named Binnânḍi in recovering the cattle of the village from the attacks of enemies. It belongs to the reign of the Chôla king Râjêndrachôla I (1012-1044 A. D.) and is issued in the 19th year of his reign in Ś 953 Pramôda Chaitra ba 13 Thursday, corresponding to 2nd April 1050 A.D. Its importance lies in its giving both the regnal and Śaka years of Râjêndra Chôla I and helping in the determination of the year of his accession like a few other inscriptions published already.

Note.

This record belongs to the reign of the Hoysala king Ballāla III and describes the creation of a village called Bankihalli by five gaudas named Bimurakkagaṇḍa, Maṇaṇagaṇḍa, Sambuvagaṇḍa, Kētagaṇḍa and Bichagaṇḍa, sons of Virayagaṇḍa. They are also stated to have constructed a tank and a temple at the village, set up a stone oilmill for the service of the temple and granted some land for food-offerings to the god enshrined in the temple. The gaudas are said to be subordinates of the nāl-prabhu-gaudas of the rich Hōkkunāḍu district in Kūṛṇāḍi belonging to Kumāra-nāḍu. The names of the nāl-prabhu-gaudas are given as Maṇḍanāyaka, eldest son of Vira Baireyanāyaka, Māraṇāyaka, son of Baichayanāyaka, and Baicheva-nāyaka, son of The usual imprecatory verse occurs at the end of the grant and also a sentence with the meaning "may there be increase in prosperity, long life, good health and wealth is found at the commencement of the record."

The record is dated Ś 1214 Nandana sam. Chaitra 15 Brihavāra and corresponds to 3rd April 1292 A.D.

Note.

This record is full of lacunæ as a portion of the inscription slab is broken on both sides and the pieces on each side are lost leaving only the middle portion of the slab intact. It seems to refer to some king as the overlord with the titles, rājādhirāja and rāja-paramêśvara and some subordinate of his is spoken of as the ruler of the throne of Mysore. It is probable that the first king referred to is a king of Vijayanagar. The letters tâpa śrī-sûryya in line 7 may mean that the Mysore king referred to was a sun in brightness. But nothing can be definitely stated about the meaning.

As regards the date, only the cyclic year Viśvâvasu is named and the figure indicating the number of years lapsed in the Śâlivâhana era is lost. The characters seem to belong to the 17th century and it is possible that Viśvâvasu might stand for 1665 A.D. when Dêvarāja Vadeyar was king of Mysore. The previous cyclic year Viśvâvasu coincided with 1605 A.D. At this date the Mysore kings had not yet obtained the throne at Seringapatam and are not spoken of in contemporary inscriptions as seated on a throne. In the later years Viśvâvasu, occurring in 1725 A.D. and 1785 A.D. the Mysore kings are not spoken of as subordinates since the Vijayanagar empire had disappeared by that time.

Lines 1—71.

Salutation to Gaṇâdhipati : Praise of Śambhu, Varâha and Gaṇapati : Genealogy of the Vijayanagar king Kṛishṇarâya from the Moon downwards and his praise (see E. C. V, Hassan 6 for a translation of the verses) : regarding Narasa's conquests Tanachyarâjyam is to be interpreted as the kingdom of Tanjore (see para 106, p. 51, M. A. R. 1918).

Lines 71—98.

On the 12th lunar day which was a Gôdvâdaśi of the bright fortnight of the month Mârgaśira in the year Dhâtu being the 1438th year in the era calculated from Sâlivâhana, on an auspicious day and lagna, during a great tithi, in the presence of the God Virûpâksha, conferring liberation (from births), on the bank of the river Tungabhadra adorned with Hêmakûṭa (hill), the great king Kṛishṇarâya, deserving of respect by worthy people, surrounded by holy and loving purohits and others and also by various learned men, vedic scholars and eloquent speakers, was pleased to grant with pouring of water on gold, as a sarvamânya, with all the boundaries defined, possessed of the rights of nidhi (treasure on the surface), nikshêpa (treasure underground), pâshâṇa (rocks), siddha (ready rights), sâdhya (possibilities), jala (water springs), akshîṇi (imperishables), âgâmi (future rights), trees, wells, springs, tanks, kachchha (river banks), to be enjoyed singly, by sons and grandsons, etc., in succession for as long as the moon and stars last with the rights of gift, mortgage and sale, three villages, namely, (1) Chikkabbehalli with (the hamlets) Mâyappahalli, Dêpa-sâgara and Ânesâsalu villages, highly fertile, situated in the Nâgamangala kingdom, to the east of Guddēhalli, to the south of Hallege, to the west of Ballekere, to the north of Kerekôḍu, (2) Halavumâra Hosahalli, situated in Chennapaṇṇa kingdom to the east of Timmasamudra, to the south of Berlahole, to the west of Śivanalli, to the north of Tagachegere, (3) Vengenalli, situated in Billagondanahalli kingdom, to the east of Chikkanahalli, to the south of Nârasimhiyapuri, to the west of Poḍanallur and north of Jûjuvâḍi, to the wise ascetic Vyâsatîrtha, disciple of Brahmanyatîrtha, who had crossed to the other shore of the ocean of the six darśanas, and was endowed with noble qualities, who was a Tatvavâḍi (discourser on tatvas: a term applied to the members of Mâdhva sect), high-souled and had understood the inner meaning of dharma and determined the purport of the Vedas.

Lines 98—107.

This is the śâsana of Kṛṣṇarâya, who is praised by all who seek favours on earth, who is the source of the prosperity of great authors, and liberal in gifts. Between making a gift and protecting it, protecting is more meritorious than making the gift. By making a gift one attains svarga while by protecting a gift one goes to a region from which there is no fall. Protecting another's gift is twice as meritorious as making a gift oneself. By seizing another's gift one's own gift is rendered fruitless. He who confiscates land given by oneself or by others is born as a worm in ordure for sixty thousand years. The land given to Brahmans is the sole sister of all kings. She is to be neither enjoyed nor held by hand (taxed). This bridge of dharma is common to all kings and should be protected by you from time to time. Râmachandra asks this again and again of all future kings.

Virûpâksha.

Note.

This copper plate record which was found deposited in the Seringapatam Taluk Treasury and was forwarded by the Deputy Commissioner, Mysore District, to the Archaeological Department was noticed in p. 34 of the Mysore Archaeological Report for 1919. The text has now been published along with a translation and note.

The record registers the gift of three villages Chikkabbehalli with three hamlets, in the Nâgamangala kingdom, Halavumârahosahalli in the Channapaṇṇa kingdom and Vengenahalli in the Billagondanahalli kingdom to the ascetic of the Mâdhva sect, Vyâsatîrtha, disciple of Brahmanyatîrtha, by Kṛṣṇarâya, king of Vijayanagar.

Vyâsatîrtha was a great scholar who has composed several important works bearing on the Dvaita school of philosophy, namely, Nyâyâmrta, Tarkatāṇḍava, Chandrikâ and Bhêdôjjivana. His guru was Brahmanyatîrtha. Tradition connects him with the Mâdhva gurus Vijayendra and Vâdirâja both of whom belonged to separate matrs but who are said to have been his disciples. He is said to have popularised Mâdhva religion by publishing its truths in Kannada songs composed by himself. Two great devotees Purandaradâsa, a Brahman, and Kanaka, a Sûdra, who also have composed popular songs full of religious fervour and moral teachings, are said to have been his disciples. He is said to have been connected in his early age with Lakshmînârâyana-tîrtha also known as Śrîpâdarâja who resided at Muḷabâgal and who was the head of a matt at the place. The life of Vyâsatîrtha is extolled in two works Vyâsa vijaya, by Śrînivâsatîrtha and Vyâsayôgîsacharitam, by Sômanâtha. According to tradition as recorded in the first work, the king Kṛishṇarâya was once warned of an evil muhurta approaching and he was advised to put some one else on the throne for that time. Not knowing whom to choose, the king sent out his State elephant with a garland which the animal presented to Vyâsatîrtha. The latter took his seat on the throne, averted the danger befalling the king and in the short time left him signed grants of land to Brahmans. He had the large Vyâsasamudra tank built on the Mysore and Kadapa borders. He lived for twelve years at Tirupati worshipping the god Śrînivâsa. A vrindâvana or tomb at a spot called Navavrindâvana was built for him on an island in the Tungabhadra about half a mile from Ânegondi. According to a song of Purandaradâsa, his disciple, his death took place on Viḷambi sam. Phâlguna ba. 4 which is equivalent to 8th March 1539, Saturday taking the nearest year Viḷambi after the death of Kṛishṇarâya (see Nâgavarma's Chhandômbulhi edited by Kittel, Intro. p. 133).

Vyâsatîrtha is also called Vyâsarâya and a spiritual descendant of his resides at the matt of Sôsale in T.-Narsipur Taluk.

The date of the present grant is given as Ś 1438 Dhâtu sam. Mâr. śu 12 corresponding to 6th December 1516 A.D.

For Vyâsatîrtha we have the following records:—

- (1) Abbûr grant of Kṛishṇarâya to Vyâsatîrtha (E.C. IX, Chennapatna 153 of 1523). (See also M.A.R. 1919, p. 35).
- (2) Gaurâpura grant of Kṛishṇarâya to Vyâsatîrtha (E. C. VII, Shimoga Taluk 85 of 1527).
- (3) Three inscriptions in the Tirumalai-Tirupati, North Arcot District, two in the south wall of the second prâkâra in the Venkaṭêśasvâmi temple, and another in the north street before the Vyâsarâya matt. These are dated in 1524 A. D. and record (a) a money grant by Vyâsatîrtha-śrîpâda-vaḍeyar to the sthânikas at Tirumalai for the service of special offerings to the gods Venkaṭêśa and Gôvindarâja at Tirumalai and Tirupati on certain days, and (b) the grant of house-sites at Tirumalai by king Kṛishṇarâya to Vyâsatîrtha for building a matt (see Tirupati Devasthanam Inscriptions, Vol. III, pp. 329, 330, 338).
- (4) Two inscriptions at Lower Tirupati, North Arcot District, in the reign of Kṛishṇarâya. The first of these dated in 1524 authorises Vyâsatîrtha-śrīpāda-udaiyar to build his matt in the house-site of Sottambhattar at Tirupati which was confiscated by the order of Śāluva Narasimharāya because of the theft of the temple jewels by Nambi Sūrappaiyan previously and also authorises Vyāsātīrtha to receive the donor's share of the prasādam offered in the name of Kṛṣṇarāya for the use of his matt. The second of these is dated in 1528 and records that the sthānattār of Tirumalai agreed to make arrangements for conducting a festival to Śrī Gōvindarājasvāmi from the annual income of 60 pons of the village Oḍḍampattu gifted for the purpose by Vyāsātīrtha (Ibid. pp. 326, 358).

- (5) A copper plate inscription dated in Ś 1417 (A. D. 1525-26) in the reign of Kṛṣṇadēvarāya recording the grant of the village Beṭṭakonḍa renamed Vyāsasamudram with the village Kandakūrn close to which is the big tank called Vyāsasamudram (Sewell's Antiquities, Vol. I, p. 132; Madras Epigraphical Report, C. P. 13 of 1905).
- (6) Stone inscription at Kottapalli near the Pōtarāju temple dated in Ś 1415 Svabhānu in the reign of Kṛṣṇadēvarāya recording the grant of some land to the deity by Vyāsātīrthaśrīpāda-udaiyan (Inscriptions in Ceded Districts, p. 382, No. 50; also Rangacharya's Inscriptions in the Madras Presidency, p. 622, No. 533).
- (7) An inscription on the south wall of the maṇḍapa in front of the Viṭṭhala temple at Hampe, Bellari District, records the grant of some villages by Kṛṣṇarāya in Ś 1435 for services in that temple. Among the donees a certain share is assigned to Gurngaḷu Vyāsarāyan. Vyāsarāya is a name often applied to Vyāsātīrtha (S.I.I., Vol. IV, p. 72, No. 277).
- (8) Jakkarājanahalli and Kannērumadugu grants of Kṛṣṇarāya dated 1521 A. D. for Vyāsātīrtha. (M.A.R. 1912, p. 50).

For a reference to Vyāsātīrtha's part in the religious activities of Kṛṣṇadēvarāya's court and his relation with his contemporary Vallabhācharya, see Gada's Sampradāyadīpikā and Munajidharadāsa's Śrī Vallabhācharya-charitā quoted in Seshagiri Sastri's Rep. Translation.

Śrī Dhmasāgara Madanagārasar granted one mattar of wet land for the maintenance of the tank Gōḷiyakere and its channel situated at the southern weir of the tank at Mavvelva (Māvaḷi). May its destroyer attain the regions to which those who slay Siddhas and Brahmanas go. He who protects this will be blessed.

Kelgu Kēsava engraved this stone.

Note.

This record was engraved below the inscription published previously as Sorab No. 1 at Māvaḷi. It records a grant of land made for the maintenance of a tank at that village. The donor is Madanāgarasar a chief, also referred to in the above record (Sorab No. 1) who was a subordinate of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Gōvinda III and the record has been assigned to C 797 A.D. by Rice. The present inscription engraved below may also belong to the same date.

Lines 1—6.

Salutation to Śrî Mahâganapati : (Praise of Śambhu) : Salutation to Śambhu in whose ear shines in place of the usual ear-ring, the serpent king, on whom rests the earth which has the bright golden Mountain (Mêru) in its centre and is black all around and which is a kuvalaya (blue lotus flower or earth) with a bright pericarp held for sport in her hand by Pârvati.

Lines 6—19.

For protecting that earth was born in the lineage of Yadu, king Sangama. From him was born the highly valiant king Bukka. Placed on the breast of this king who made the hostile kings that had never trembled before shake with fear, the goddess of wealth who had long been unsteady has obtained peace by the grace of Hara, the lord of Pampâ. The son of the mighty-armed Bukka, a destroyer of enemies, took the earth from his father's shoulders to his own shoulders, possessed of the great prowess of Indra. The ornament to kings, Mâdhava, attaining the position of his minister, ruled the earth and possessed of great wisdom reduced to atoms (kaṇastha) the rulers of Konkana and entered Gôvâ famous in all ages (kalpânta-râvâm) and seated himself on the throne renowned in stories. He transferred his great lustre to the wise Narahari-nṛipati (i.e., Narahari succeeded to the position of Mâdhava). Seated on of that throne Bhâskara prospers on earth with the lustre of Mâdhava, possessed of the brightness of great prowess attained by standing on the heads of renowned kings (mountains), and rising up with his greatness and tormenting with his sharp hands (rays) the hearts of his enemies.

Lines 20—31.

Be it well. While the mahârâjâdhirâja râja-paramêśvara, an ornament to the diadems of kings, possessed of great glory, lord of the eastern, southern and western oceans, destroyer of enemy kings, destroyer of kings who break their word, śrî virapratāpa Harihara-Mahārāya was ruling the whole earth seated on the throne at Vijayānagara:—

After the expiry of the Śaka year 1321, in the 22nd year, on the 15th lunar day of the bright half of Kārtika in the year Pramāthi, on Wednesday, on the holy occasion of the lunar eclipse, while the bearer of orders of that Harihararāya, the foremost among the ministers Bāchanna Oḍeyar was seated on the throne of Gôvānagara and was ruling the kingdom of Konkana and Chandragutti:—

Lines 31—58.

In connection with the formation as niyata-śrôta of the village Kāṇvapura in Horahadanād in the Venṭheya of Chandragutti, the original revenue of the village which amounted to 17 hons, 6½ haṇas rose to 211 hons, 8 haṇas at the rate of 12 gadyāṇas (hons) of siddhāya (fixed land revenue) for each gadyāṇa. The revenue from the sarathi (a tax) of the villages in that Guttia-nād (same as Chandragutti division) came to 4 hons, 8 haṇas and 3 viṣas: total revenue 216 varahas, 6 haṇas and 3 viṣas. Of this amount, as the village had been made as a niyata-śrôtriya (land granted to priests on the payment of a small amount of quit-rent per year) for the mahājanas of the agrahāra, a sum of 20 varahas which had been received by the mahājanas from previous times should be paid annually to the palace, but all other taxes on the village should be remitted as in sarvaṇāya lands including hombali, hommāru, kraṇya (sales tax), kaḍḍāya (impositions), biṭṭi (forced labour), biḍāra (camping tax), sēse, marana-biṭṭi (taking of trees by force?), jōḍi (quit-rent), grāsa (feeding of king's servants?) and the tōṭagāṇike (taxes on garden?) uppinakāyakambi (tax on jars of pickles?), nāḍa sarathi and maḷa-braya therein. The village is to be treated as free of all imposts and taxes. From the first lunar day of the bright half of Kārtika in the year Pramāthi the Brahmīns who have been enjoying the agrahāra all along will enjoy divided into 27 vṛttis the (former) revenue of the village with the addition of the following: 36 hons and 5 haṇas and 1 hāga being the income of the lands newly added (?) 7 hons 3½ haṇas earned from the daṇāyakara-svāmya and uḍugore at the rate of 29 haṇas per hundred, 16 hons earned from the tōṭagāṇike (taxes on garden) of the village: all together they will enjoy the revenue of 276 hons and 5 haṇas from the village without the payment of mukkandhāya (payment of one-third of the taxes?) and as niyata-śrôtra. To this effect has Bāchannōḍeyar granted this charter of dharma:—(The meaning of the details of the grant made is not clear).

Lines 58—60.

This bridge of dharma is common to kings and should be protected by you (kings) from time to time. Rāmachandra asks this of all future kings again and again.

Lines 61—67.

Who on earth other than king Bhāskara is so well versed in the use of arms knowledge of śāstras, piety, liberality, courteousness, and diplomacy? Wise, (generous, reliever of the troubles of the people, supporter of good men ever virtuous in deeds, always engaged in doing things pleasing to all, ever enthusiastic, successful in diplomacy, the fruits of his actions showing his skill in undertaking them, magnanimous :—who among the kings on earth is so highly worthy of honour as Bhâskara-kshônipâla ?

Lines 68—71.

The sprouts of mantra (polity or state craft) have been set up by the five agras (full of deceit): with the seven angas united it has now been nurtured by strong roots. It is seen by people with great regard that its fruits can be reached by the hand (its results are the collection of taxes). Thus the tree of state-craft of the illustrious Bhâskara-kshmâpati spreads to all the eight cardinal directions (the meaning of this stanza is far from clear).

Lines 72—75.

He who takes away land given by himself or by others is born as a worm in ordure for sixty thousand years.

Śrī Triyambaka :—good fortune.

Note.

This records the gift of the village Kânṇavapura situated in Hoṛahaḍenāḍ in Chandragutti-veṇṭheya to certain Brahmans as niyata-śrôtra free from all taxes and imposts by Bâchaṇṇa Voḍeyar, governor of Gôvâ and a subordinate of Harihara II. The village was formed into an agrahâra, consisting of 27 vrittis divided among the Brahmans and bringing an aggregate annual revenue of 276 hons and five haṇas from the month of Kârtika in the year Pramâthi. The date of the grant is given as Ś 1322 Pramâthi sam. Kâr śu 15 Wednesday, a day of lunar eclipse and corresponds to Wednesday, 15th October 1399 A.D. The date occurs in the month Adhika Kârtika and a lunar eclipse is shown to have occurred on that day in Svami-kannu Pillay's Ephemeris.

Bâchaṇṇa Voḍeyar called also Bhâskara, is said in the record to have been the ruler of the Konkṇa and Chandragutti kingdoms seated on the throne of Gôvâ. He is spoken of as the successor of Mâdhava and Narahari in that post (the meaning of the stanza referring to their relations in the record is not very clear). Mâdhava is spoken of as the minister of Harihara II and the conqueror of the Konkṇa kingdom and the acquirer of the throne of the city of Gôvâ.

Regarding the three governors referred to in the record, Mâdhava is the same as Mâdhavamantin. He was the minister at first of Prince Mârapa, later of King Bukka I and later still of the King Harihara II. He conquered Konkṇa and its capital Gôvâ and renovated the temples in Gôvâ which had been ruined by the Turushkas. He is also spoken of as the expounder of the Upanishads, the illuminator of the Śaivāgamas, the author of Kāvyaś, performer of mahādānas and the teacher of Nītiśāstra in the Chaudale grant of 1391 A.D. (see M.A.R. 1929, p. 172 and Ep. Ind. XXI, p. 17). He is called in the inscriptions as Mādhavarāja and Vīra-vasanta Mādhavarāja (see E.C. VII, Honnāli 71).

Mādhavamantrin's successor on the throne of Gôvâ was Narahari Mantrin. He is said to have been appointed to that post by Harihara II after the death of Mādhavamantrin which took place about 1391 (see J. B. Br. A. S. IX, p. 227). He was a Brahman of Âtrēya-gôtra. His father is named Brahmarasa and his mother Ambikâ or Manchâmbikâ (see J. B. Br. A. S. IV, p. 108 and Ep. Ind. XXI, p. 17). He is said to have been a disciple of the sage Vidyâśankara and set up in his office (installed) by Mādhavamantrin (Mādhavarājēna kṛita-pratishṭhaḥ) [ibid. pp. 17 and 23]. Whether this Vidyâśankara was identical with Vidyâtīrtha of the Śringeri Matt or whether he was identical with Kriyâśakti who is said to have died in 1388 as stated in an inscription near Muḷbāgal (see E. C. X, Muḷbāgal 11) it is not easy to determine. Vidyâtīrtha is called Vidyâśankara in later literature though he is called Vidyâtīrtha in the contemporary literature and inscriptions (see M. A. R. 1932, p. 106). The Śaiva teacher Kriyâśakti on whose death an image of Vidyâśankara was set up as his effigy is said to have been held in great honour by Immaḍi Bukka, son of Harihara II (see E. C. X, Translation p. 74). Narahari is praised highly in the Kuchara grant as a kingly personage, highly learned and a patron of learning (see p. 108, J. B. Br. A.S. IV).

Bāchaṇṇa Oḍeyar or Bhāskara, the donor in the present record who is praised as prospering by the light of Mādhava (Mādhava-tējaśā vijayate) and as the governor of Gôvâ, is evidently the younger brother of Narahari who is spoken of as his agraja (elder brother) in the Kuchara grant of 1391 A.D. A record of Ś 1319 Dhātu (1396) calls him as Gôvâpuravarādhiśvara and a karmāra (son or dependant) of Vīra-vasanta Mādhavarāja (Mādhavamantrin) [see E.C. VII, Honnāli 71]. He is spoken of as the governor of Bārakūr-rājya under Prince Bukka II in Ś 1328 and is said to have made a gift of lands to Śrī Narasimhabhārati Voḍeya of the Śringeri Matt (M.E.R. No. 369 of 1927). He seems to have been governor of Bārakūr in the reign of Dēvarāja I as late as 1407 A.D. as is known from an inscription at Pandēsvara in S. Canara District (see M.E.R. No. 609 of 1930).

Note.

This records the construction of the navapada and mūḍaṇabhadra with ornamentation by the illustrious Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kāvadēvarasar. His titles given are Kādamba-kaṇṭhīrava and kaligalāmkuśa (an elephant-goad to warriors). No date is given. The characters seem to belong to the close of the 13th century or the beginning of the 14th century. There is a Kadamba King Kāvadēvarasa ruling from C 1258 to C 1307. The present record may belong to him.

Navapada means new area or new room. Mūḍaṇabhadra means eastern entrance. Both these terms may refer to the construction of the above maṇṭapa.

Who can be said to be equal of Gôvindarâja, son of the elder sister of the Mahâprachaṇḍa-daṇḍanâyaka Anantapâla above mentioned? That Gôvindarâja of matchless strength, husband of the goddess of fame, was like the Mêru peak amidst the great mountains and like Indra among the lords of the directions. The learned prospered by his gifts, the earth by good crops and the army (?) by honesty—what can be said of the other daṇḍanâthas?

When the Mahâprachaṇḍa-daṇḍanâyaka Gôvindarasa of such fame was ruling Banavâse twelve thousand by curbing down the wicked and protecting the good, his capital Balipura prospered like the curly hair of the dame of the Kuntala kingdom with lotus bunches, with bees, with sweet-voiced swans, parrots, cuckoos, with groves of mango trees and various new creepers of flowers like Nâga, Pûga, Pâtala, etc.

In that city there lived in happiness Gôpati, husband to the dame of fame obtained by righteous deeds and words, praiseworthy for his knowledge (or one who praises Brahma). The fame of the family and righteousness of that great personality Dehvala-nâyaka, won prosperity to his family and earned fame.

Whom did Vâgdêvi, wife of that great person resemble? Is there any one equal to Vâgdêvi, when she is equal to Arundhati of ancient days in her devotion to her husband?

To that couple Dehvala-daṇḍanâyaka and Vâgdêvi respected by the whole earth was born Soṭṭi-Nâyaka unequalled by others, beloved of his friends and good people, with his qualities of strength, parentage, determination, generosity, depth of mind, purity, goodness, courage, power and love. Again what was he like? The earth praises Soṭṭi-Nâyaka always with great joy as equal to the ocean in the depth of good qualities, equal to Mêru in wealth and prosperity and equal to the ancient sage Manu in his character. He gained Lakshmi of matchless fame by his gifts, righteousness, and purushârtha.

Sallakshane, wife of that Purushôttama in the shape of man, prospered in the whole of earth as if she was endowed with all the good attributes on the earth, by her boundless gifts, by her endless saubhâgya (good fortune) and by her devotion to her husband.

To that pair—Soṭṭi-Nâyaka and Sallakshane who resembled Pârvati, was born a son, Gôpati, with shining qualities and proficiency in all arts.

That Gôpati whose mind was intent on dharma was the birthplace of dharma, the root of purushârtha (objects of human life), the support of greatness, the house of birth of purity, the seed of honesty, the great mango tree to the Nandana grove his relatives, a son to other men's wives (?) a Mêru in unblemished valour:—thus the people of the world praise Gôpati. Of matchless character and pure body, Gôpati-Nâyaka was praised throughout the universe surrounded by oceans. He possessed righteousness, good character and fame. Pleasing his friends and righteous men Gôpati-Nâyaka expended his love on his wife and his money for the cause of righteousness. The ruler of the earth, Gôpati, a friend to the learned men, was regarded as a moon to the Gârgya-gôtra, with the goddess of his fame—white as the moon, with the qualities of courage and liberality.

Thus becoming the abode of prosperity, fame, liberality and righteousness and regarded as the bestower of all that is desired by righteous people, friends, learned men and relatives, Gôpati-Nâyaka making the saying “this body is for doing good to others” really significant rendered pâdapûje (lit. worship of the feet, means satisfaction by payment of money, etc.) to the nagara and sthâna of the five Maṭhas in Balipura, in the Châlukya Vikrama year 27 corresponding to the cyclic year Chitra-bhânu, on the new-moon day of Phâlguna on Sunday with the Vyatipâta and Sankramaṇa, made in the presence of Daṇḍanâyaka Gôvindarasa a grant of one mattar of land as measured by Kachchaviya-gaḍimba in the wet lands of Baḷli (Baḷligâve) and also a house after purchasing the same, for feeding twelve Brahmans. He also granted a sum of ten gadyâṇas from the interest on which the maḷa-braya for his charity might be met.

Whosoever protects this grant will acquire the merit of giving away a thousand decorated cows to Brahmans in Vâraṇâsi, Kurukshêtra and Prayâga and Arghyatîrtha. Whosoever destroys this will incur the sin of slaying those tawny cows and Brahmans in the same sacred places. He who takes away land given by oneself or by others will be born as a worm in ordure for sixty thousand years. Śivâya (salutation to Śiva).

Note.

This record was noticed in p. 40 of the Mysore Archæological Report for 1911. Its text has now been published in full with a translation and note.

This record belongs to the reign of the Châlukya King Tribhuvanamalladêva (1076–1126 A. D.) and records a grant made by Gôpati-Nâyaka, a philanthropic merchant, son of Soṭṭi-Nâyaka and Sallakshane, of some lands and a house for the charity of feeding Brahmans. Soṭṭi-Nâyaka's parents were Dehvaḷa-Nâyaka and Vâgdêvi. The charity was made in the presence of and with the permission of Mahâprachaṇḍa-daṇḍanâyaka Gôvindarasa, ruler of Banavase twelve thousand at Belgâmi (Balipura). Gôvindarasa is said to be a son of the elder sister of Mahâprachaṇḍa-daṇḍanâyaka Anantapâla, a subordinate of Trilhuvanamalla Vikramâditya VI. Both Anantapâla and Gôvindarasa are met with in several inscriptions of Shimoga District (see E. C. VII. Shikarpur 131, 137, 192, 311 and 316).

The relationship of Gôvindarasa or Gôvinda-daṇḍanâyaka to Anantapâla is referred to in an inscription at Belgâmi where the former is called the beloved dêvara (translated as brother-in-law, by RICE) of Anantapâla, (E. C. VII, Shikarpur 137). In the present inscription Gôvindarasa is called agrajeya-tanûja or elder sister's son or nephew. It is difficult to reconcile the two statements.

The date of the record is given as the new-moon day in the month of Phâlguna in the cyclic year Chitrabhânu, 27th year of Châlukya Vikrama era with Vyatîpâta and Sankramaṇa, a Sunday. The Châlukya Vikrama era having commenced in A. D. 1076, the 27th year of the era corresponds to 1102 A. D., which coincides with the commencement of the cyclic year Chitrabhânu. Phâlguna-bahulâ 30 of this year corresponds to 10th March 1103 A. D. a Tuesday with no Sankramaṇa. If we take the new-moon day with which the month Phâlguna commenced, as is done sometimes, the date would fall on the 8th February 1103 A. D., a Sunday as stated in the grant. Even here there is no Sankramaṇa, which is merely added to the date to give the appearance of additional religious efficacy to the grant. The date of the grant may therefore be taken as 8th February 1103.

Several letters are quite worn out and are illegible in parts of the inscription.

Om! Salutation to Śiva. Salutation to Śambhu beautiful with the chāmara, that is, the moon touching his lofty head and the foundation pillar for the commencement of the city of the three worlds. Salutation to Sômârdhadhâri (bearer of the crescent moon) whose body is made up of clear knowledge, who has the three Vêdas for his divine eyes and who is the bestower of happiness.

The great Hoysala dynasty of kshatriyas which prospers on the peak of the mountain of the big breast of the dame Śrî, which helps the world to get rid of the great suffering, which is the Sanjivana to set the world free from the brave hostile kings and which is full of pearls of the highest qualities, is shining steadily free from all obstacles.

In that dynasty was born like a pearl Vinayâditya the lord of earth, tormentor of the race of the proud enemies in the battle-field, resembling the pearl by his position as a crest-jewel among kings, possessed of noble qualities, shining person, good character, high birth.

Vinayâditya's son was the king Ereyanga, praised by people. His son was the famous high-minded Vishṇu-nṛipâla. His son is this Narasimha.

The ruler Narasimha became great in the world, with the nails of his feet marked by the fine mark on the big foreheads of the assemblage of kings bowing before him. He was the great Râma in the battle and rendered highly meritorious deeds and conquered all the kings on earth.

Ēchaladêvi, who became famous like the Kalpa creeper in the world by her generosity and who was praised by the world became the consort to that ruler Narasimha.

As formerly the flower-arrowed Cupid was born for women's pleasure to Vishṇu and his consort Śrî. so to king Narasimha and his consort Ēchaladêvi was born the meritorious altruistic king Ballâla of victorious arms, a Yama to the race of mighty enemies. When the destruction fire at the end of the world to the group of brave hostile kings, Vîra Ballâladêva of matchless strength, caused the drum to be sounded at the commencement of battle, Lâla was deprived of ease, Gûrjara was seized with

This records the grant of the village Habukanahalli as an umbali (rent-free land granted for the maintenance of the village officials, etc.) for the sénabóvas (village accountants) of Kanatur. The donor is called Góvindarasa Ayya, agent for Râmapa Ayya. It is stated that the village had a revenue of 20 varahas out of the total revenue of 220 varahas for Tumakûru-sîme. The date is given as Manmatha sam. Chaitra śu 1 and is not calculated from any era. The usual imprecation is found at the end of the grant.

The characters seem to belong to the 17th century.

This record is incomplete. Some letters are much worn out in lines 5 and 6. It seems to refer to the conquest of a village (not named) in the Noḷambavāḍi province by some one during the expedition of the Chālukya king Vikramāditya and the Ganga king Konguṇi Arasa against the Pallavas at Kāñchi. The characters seem to belong to the end of the 8th or the beginning of the 9th century. The present record apparently refers to the Chālukya king Vikramāditya II and the Ganga king Śrīpurusha who conquered Kāñchi from the Pallavas (see M.A.R. 1939, p. 121).

Mallidêvarasa's son Irungolâdêva's Be it well. The illustrious mahâmaṇḍalêśvara, tribhuvanamalla, capturer of Talekâḍ, bhujabala Vîraganga Hôsaṇa śrî Narasimghadêva's sukhumâraya (good son or favourite) :— while prosperity befell — Śrîyâdêvi and Irungolâdêva, — After bowing to Maṇḍanadêśiga and god, on the full moonday of the bright fortnight of Śrâvaṇa, in the year Vikrama, for conducting every day, the religious services of the afternoon, food offerings, water, flowers, incense, lights, betel leaves, food for Brahmans services day and night

Note.

This record belongs to the reign of the Chôla Chief of Niḍugal named Mallidêva-Chôla and records a grant made for the services in some temple not specified by his son Irungolâdêva. Owing to a number of lacunæ in several lines in the middle of the inscription and at the bottom of the inscription caused by the letters being worn out and lost it is not possible to make out the full contents of the record.

The Chief Mallidêva is stated to be a subordinate of some Châlukya king whose titles only are given and are those of the later Chalukya kings of Kalyâṇi. Lines 16 to 19 of the record refer to the Hoysala king Narasimghadêva and seem to state that Irungolâdêva's wife was Śrîyâdêvi and that either Irungola or more probably Śrîyâdêvi was brought up under the protection of or was a daughter of Narasimghadêva. The word used to show the relation between Narasimghadêva and Śrîyâdêvi is sukhumâraya which means good son but is probably a mistake for sukumâriya meaning good daughter.

We learn that Irungola and Śrîyâdêvi performed obeisance to Maṇḍanadêśiga and the god (dêvar). Maṇḍanadêśiga was apparently the priest in charge of the temple of the god. The name of this deity is not given although the record registers a grant for the services of the god made by Irungola and Śrîyâdêvi.

It is possible however to infer from the text that the grant was made by a subordinate of Irungola.

The date of the grant is given as Vikrama sam. Śrâvaṇa śu. 15. It is not dated in any era like the Śaka era. There are several records of the Niḍugal chief Mallidêva between 1150 and 1175 A.D. The characters of the present inscription belong to the 12th century A.D. The nearest Vikrama for the period of Mallidêva is equivalent to 1160 A.D. The next cyclic year Vikrama would go to 1220 A.D., when the Châlukya power had disappeared. If the date 1160 A.D. be accepted, the.

Hoysala king Narasimha referred to in the present record could be identified with Narasimha I. Śrāvaṇa śu. 15 of this year Vikrama corresponds to 20th July 1160 A.D. which may be taken as the date of the record.

Lines 1—15.

May there be no obstacles.

Salutation to Sambhu, beautiful with the fly-flap the moon touching his lofty head and the foundation pillar for the city of the three worlds. May the Elephant-faced (Gaṇēṣa) who for sport puts on the elephant skin of his father and with the dancing movements of a fully formed elephant, removing fear (from devotees), causes happiness to the Great Dancer (Śiva). May Sarasvati who explains the meaning of the eternal truth as revealed by the light of wisdom and who protects the universe by her power of speech bring you prosperity. May Hari who assumed the form of Boar and raising up the earth from the ocean felt its smell with his snout and supported it firmly protect (you). May the Earth of great glory who by her good qualities wards off misfortune and bears great wealth yield repeatedly abundant crops and fruits for the Brahmans. May Moon, the lord of herbs, the sole source for the joy in the eyes, bringer of delight to the three worlds, the sole abode of nectar, and the brother of Lakshmî bring peace to the world.

* There are many mistakes in the imprecatory verses.

Lines 15—34.

There shines the glorious lineage of Yadus, the kinsmen of Kṛishṇa and the witnesses to his sports, dispensers of happiness to earth and free from imperfections. In that lineage arose Sangama-bhûpâla, like the moon rising from the milky ocean, lord of digits (arts), beloved of the moonlight Kâmâyî (his wife). That couple worshipping the Lord of Pampâ got sons of great prowess resembling the five faces of the god. The first of these was the brave Harihara, the second Kampabhûpati, the third Bukkabhûpati and the fourth was called Mârapa. While these sons prospered, king Bukka, the refuge of the righteous, equal to Manu and Mândhâtṛi became the preserver of his lineage. The flames of the fire of his prowess burnt brightly in the forest of enemies. His fame made the cardinal directions white like the light of the moon in the heavenly circle. The first (of the past great emperors) was a devotee of Mâtanga (elephants or chaṇḍâlas). The second suffered from great calamities; another played with dice; another was cursed with a bad name; another felt infatuated over a dancing girl of Indra; another was born with poison; another seized the cow of the chief of ascetic:— enough with these (old emperors). You, King Bukka, free from all blemishes and possessed of great splendour are the best of sovereigns. [The names of the emperors of the past age referred to are Kâkutstha, Hariṣchandra, Naḷa, Purukutsa, Purûrava, Sagara and Kârtavîrya]. Kṛishṇa and Bukkabhûpa are beloved of many women, the first is the enemy of Kuvalaya (elephant of that name), the second is the protector of Kuvalaya (earth). Among the several wives of his, Gauri full of love and daughter of a king, was his most beloved queen like Gauri, the daughter of the Himâlayas of the god Śiva.

Lines 35—44.

From that king Bukka, was born King Harihara, an equal of Kârtikêya in good qualities, and a protector of Vêdic dharma. Neither Hari alone nor Hara alone is able to protect the world from the evil of Kali. The good people believe that both the above gods have come to earth in the form of Harihara. His lawful wife was Mêlâyî, the best of women, bearing sons like Bhavâni, wife of Śiva. By her Harihara got a son Bukka, who was a Kalpa tree to the learned men and a thunder-bolt to the mountains the hostile kings. His son was Bhûpati, noble in character, whose mother Tippâyî was a virasû (the mother of a hero) like Kausalyâ.

Lines 44—54.

Two servants of his father Bukka Bhûpa were Kâmaṇa and Bommaṇa, chiefs of nâyakas (lit. lords; applied usually to the Bêḍas), protectors of those who took shelter under them. They were the sons of Lakamanâyiki and Abbenâyaka. His minister Bommaṇa who was bold and powerful like a lion and was engaged in acts of dharma, made up his mind to do something that would bring merit to his lineage. Thereupon he instructed some great Brahmins to build a tank across the small stream called Banjehaḷḷa which flows near Nilugallu between Kôṭekere and Râyadurga and is joined by a small tributary called Mosaḷe. The Brahmans built up an embankment accordingly with their own funds. Seeing the tank and the wet lands under it, the liberal-minded Bommaṇṇa, devoted to his master, granted them to the Brahmans under the name newly given, Bukkarâjapura.

Lines 54—70.

In the Śaka year counted by mountains, sky, fires and moon (1307), in the year Krôdhana, in the month Śrâvaṇa, on the occasion of lunar eclipse, Bommaṇṇa, son of Abbenâyaka and younger brother of Kâmaṇa, a treasure of good qualities, granted the agrahâra, east of the tank to ninety-three eminent Brahmans. Those Brahmans, engaged in six Karmas, whose blessings prove true, desirous of getting a charter (śâsanôtsukâh) and thinking that he (Bhûpati) would be their future sovereign (went to him), blessed him and narrated their object. Bhûpati heard their representation and with the help of his ministers determined the boundaries of the villages and in the presence of Virûpaksha (god), in the year Prabhava, in the month Jyêshṭha, during a solar eclipse granted, in order to last as long as moon and stars endure, the village named after his father to the Brahmans with a sâsana on which his seal was engraved. The creeper of gift which was formerly attached to the celestial tree came to earth attached to Śibi. With Jimûtavâhana it became full of shootings and bore buds in the time of Karṇa and under the lofty Bhôja it flowered. Now under Bhûpati the creeper of gift is firmly established and prospering highly yields the several fruits (desired).

Lines 70—81.

Then the gôtras, names and sâkhâs of the Brahmans who own vṛittis in this agrahâra are written in the vernacular of the country.¹

To Nâgapa, son of Âditya of Âtrêyagôtra is given one vṛitti. He belongs to Yajuś-sâkha. Next are related the boundaries of the eight directions beginning with north-east of the agrahara:—North-east boundary consists of a stone set up with Vâmana's effigy carved thereon in the tamarind tree where the Hagare and Mosale unite. Eastern boundary consists of a stone set up in the western bank of (the river) Hagare : South-eastern boundary consists of a stone set up in the Tuggila tree above the rising ground to the north of Rêkeya Bommanahalli : Southern boundary consists of a stone bearing the effigy of Vâmana set up by the side of the temple to the north of Mosale : South-south-eastern boundary (âgnâyada tenkaṇa sîme) consists of a stone bearing the effigy of Vâmana set up on the southern bank of the central Mosale rivulet : South-western boundary consists of a stone bearing Vâmana's effigy set up near Gollarâma's land ? Western boundary consists of a stone set up in the high ground to the west of Killiguḍḍa. North-western boundary consists of a stone set up in the wet land of Châkôja : North-west-north-eastern boundary is determined by the boundaries stated in the śâsana of Bukkâmbudhi up to Belidingaladâlu (banyan tree ?) North of the above comes the hillock of Akaliyagôḍe and the stone bearing the effigy of Vâmana set up in the boundary of Viḍudabôḡayanahalli ;

Lines 190—199.

This bridge of Dharma is common to all kings and should be protected by you from time to time : Râmachandra repeatedly begs this of all future kings. Collecting taxes on tax-free lands brings the sin of killing a crore of cows : but the remission of taxes where taxes are payable brings the merit of giving away a crore of cows : Good fortune : Salutation to Râmachandra.

Śrî Râmanâtha

Lines 199—211.

To all kings there is one sister viz lands given to Brahmans. They should be neither enjoyed by them nor taxed. One who confiscates land will not be purified even by the gift of a crore of tanks, of hundreds of virgins and a crore of cows. He who takes away land given by oneself or by others is born as a worm in ordure for sixty thousand years. Protecting other's gift is twice as meritorious as making a gift oneself. By taking away others' gifts, one's gift is rendered fruitless. Between making a gift and protecting it, protecting is more meritorious than making a gift. By making a gift one gains heaven, by protecting one attains a region from which there is no fall. May good people excuse mistakes of hand.

Salutation to Hari, Hara and Hiraṇyagarbha.

Śrî : śrî : śrî :

Note.

This śâsana consists of five plates with a ring and seal, but there is no impression on the seal. The record begins on the front side of the 1st plate, is continued on both sides of the 2nd, 3rd and 4th plates and on the front side of the 5th plate and concludes on the back side of the 1st plate.

After the usual invocatory verses in praise of the gods Sambhu, Ganêśa, Sarasvati and Varâha, the record describes the descent of king Sangama from Yadu. He is said to have prayed to the God Virûpāksha of Pampâ and got five sons by his wife Kâmâyî. Only four sons are named in the record, Harihara, Kampa, Bukka and Mârapa. Muddappa's name is omitted. Bukka I's son by Gauri, Harihara II is praised as an incarnation of Hari and Hara combined, seeing that neither god alone could protect righteousness from the evils of Kali. Harihara II's son by the queen Mêlâmbika, Bukka II is called a kalpa tree to the learned and a thunderbolt to hostile kings. Bukka II is said to have got a son Bhûpati by his wife Tippâyî.

The object of the śâsana is to register the gift of a village Bukkarâjapura as an agrahâra to certain Brahmans who helped in the construction of a tank across the river Banjehallâ near Nilugallu where it united with the stream Mosale, between Kôṭekere and Râyadurga. The Brahmans are said to have constructed the tank with their own funds at the instance of the officer Bommaṇa, younger brother of Kâmaṇa and son of Abbenâyaka. Bommaṇa is called Nâyakâchârya like the Chitaldrug Pâlegars and probably belonged to the same Bêḍa caste. Bommaṇa, who was an officer under Bukka II set up the agrahâra to the east of the tank and gave it to the Brahmans dividing it into 93 vṛttis and naming it after his master. This event took place in Ś 1307 Krôdhana sam. Śrâvâṇa śu 15, a day of lunar eclipse and corresponds to 22nd July 1385. These Brahmans with the object of getting a proper charter or śâsana went to Prince Bhûpati and thinking that he would be their future sovereign blessed him and got a charter from him in the presence of the God Virûpāksha (at Hampe) for the agrahâra of Bukkarâjapura made by Bommaṇa. Prince Bhûpati, in consultation with his ministers issued a copper śâsana with his seal and signature for the above grant on the new moon day of the month of Jyêshṭha with a solar eclipse in the year Prabhava corresponding to 16th June 1387. The names of the holders of the vṛttis and the boundaries of the village granted with the usual imprecatory verses come next. The signature Râmanâtha occurs at the end of the grânt.

Of the rulers mentioned in the record, Bukka II was the eldest son of Harihara II (1377-1404) and ruled parts of Mysore as viceroy under his father in 1377, 1386, 1388, 1397 and 1399 (see E. C. XII, Pavagada 92, E. C. IX, Bangalore 139, etc.). He also made a grant in Tanjore in 1381 and in Salem District in 1394 and in Tanjore District again in 1402. In 1404, on October 5, he is named as sitting on the throne of Vijayanagar. From this date to some time between August and November 1406 when he died, Bukka II is described as king of Vijayanagar (see pp. 201-208, Historical Inscriptions of Southern India, by Sewell and Krishnaswamy Iyengar.)

Prince Bhûpati or Bhûpati Voḍeyar, son of Bukka II, who issued the śâsana served also as viceroy of Muḷbâgal, South Arcot, Tanjore, etc. during the reign of his grandfather Harihara II. His grants are met with from 1386 to 1421 A. D. At the time of the present grant in 1387 he was believed to be the future ruler of the kingdom. But Harihara II was succeeded for a short time by Bukka II and after a short dispute between him and his younger brother Virûpâksha, the throne was seized by their younger brother Dêvarâya in 1406. Why Bhûpati Voḍeyar who belonged to the elder branch did not succeed to the throne cannot be determined. He however continued to govern as viceroy under his uncle Dêvarâya I till about 1421 (South Indian Epigraphical Report for 1936, p. 84). He was a patron of literature and the Sanskrit work Prayôgaratnamâlâ of Chaṇḍapâchârya was composed under his patronage. He is praised in the work as Râja-Vyâsa-Vâlmiki. His signature Râmanâtha is also met with in another copper plate grant of 1386 A. D. (see E. C. XI, Molkalmuru 31). At the time of the present grant, in 1385, Bukka II was viceroy under Harihara II.

INSCRIPTIONS OUTSIDE THE STATE.

The following records were found engraved on some images in the Purnachandra Nahar Museum, Calcutta. Eye-copies of these inscriptions were made during a visit to the above institution in the year 1939 at the invitation of Mr. Nahar.

The Kannaḍa inscriptions show that the images were originally prepared in the Kannaḍa country and were later on acquired for the museum at Calcutta.

Writing on the pedestal of a Jaina image of brass (8 inches in height) containing a panel of the twenty-four Tirthankaras in the Nahar Museum, Calcutta.

Kannaḍa characters and Sanskrit language.

1. ಸಕ ರಿಜಳಲ ಶ್ರೀ ಮೂಲಸಂಘ ಭಚಾರಕ
2. ಶ್ರೀ ಧರ್ಮಚಂದ್ರೋಪದೇಶಾತ್ ಪ್ರಣಮ

Translation.

Śaka 1548. By the teaching of Śrī Dharmachandra-bhaṭāraka belonging to the Śrī Mûla-saṃgha : salutation.

Note.

This inscription belongs to the Śaka year 1548 corresponding to 1636 A. D. and refers to a salutation by a disciple to the Jaina guru Dharmachandra of Mûlasaṃgha who taught the Jaina dharma.

50

To the right of the same image.

Nâgari characters and Sanskrit language.

1. ಶ್ರೀ ಮತಿವೀರ
ಶ್ರೀ ಮತಿವೀರ

Note.

This gives the name of Śrī Matibîra. He was probably a disciple of Dharma-chandra and may belong to the same date.

51

On a bronze group of images of the Chaturvimsati-tīrthankaras at the same place.

Kannada characters and language.

1. ದೆಮಾಯಪಗಣಾಂತಿಯ ನೊಂಪಿ ನಿಮಿತ್ತ
2. ವಾಗಿ ಮಾಡಿನಿದ | ಪ್ರತಿಷ್ಠೆ

Translation.

Demāyapa got this consecrated in connection with the vow of Āṇanti.

Note.

This inscription is engraved on the back of the image of Mahāvīra (?) seated in padmāsana on a lotus seat with the lion carved in the centre and a cow-headed yaksha (male attendant) and yakshi (female attendant) on either side. Mahāvīra forms the central figure of a group of images of the 24 tīrthankaras (called Chaturvimsati-tīrthankara) here. The image is about 6 inches high. A person named Demāyappa, evidently of the Jaina community is said to have performed a vow āṇantiya-nómpi and at the end of it or as part of it, is said to have set up the group of the images of the Chaturvimsati-tīrthankaras. The characters seem to be of about 1200 A. D.

52

On the back of the pedestal of another group of images in bronze.

Kannada characters and language.

1. ಶ್ರೀ ಜಿನವಲ್ಲಭನ ಸಜ್ಜನ
2. ಭಗಿಯಜೆಯ ಮಾಡಿನಿದ
3. ಪ್ರತಿಷ್ಠೆ

Translation.

The image caused to be made by Sajjana Bhagiyabe, wife of Jinavallabha.

Note.

This inscription is engraved on the back of the image of a Jina, 15 inches high, seated in the ardhapadmāsana pose on a simha-pīṭha with a yaksha to the right and a yakshi to the left and two chauri-bearers at the back with the triple umbrella above and the kalpa-vṛiksha and the dēvas on the top. The figure is reproduced in the frontispiece of the book 'Epitome of Jainism' by Mr. Purnachandra Nahar.

The characters seem to belong to 900 A.D.

Records a grant of land made for the maintenance of a tank at Māvaḷi. Madanāgarasar, the donor, was a subordinate of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Gōvinda III.

Registers the gift of the village Sāliggāme by Kongaṇi Muttarasar to a Brahman named Bhūtaśarma. The gift is said to have been made in the presence of all the sāmantas and Attāṇi. Perbbāṇa Muttarasar, Sīyavallavarasar, Ṭegureyar, Maṇiyar, Nandyālar, Śīmbalar, and the chāturvaidyas are said to have also been informed of the grant.

The record refers to the heroism of a warrior named Śrī Munja, servant of Bālāditya.

Appears to refer to the conquest of a village in the Nolaṃbavādi province by some one during the expedition of the Chālukya king Vikramāditya, and the Ganga king Konguṇi Arasa against the Pallavas at Kānchi.

Records the construction of a tank by Būtuga Konguṇi and a grant made therefor. His wife is also stated to have joined him in making a grant of bittuvaṭṭa for the tank built by him.

Nilasinda referred to in this record may be a chief of the Śinda dynasty of rulers. Cp : item 3 above. He is said to have been killed by a servant of Bālāditya.

This is a vīragal record describing the prowess of a warrior named Baṇakameṇḍigavuṇḍa of Kesambaḷa.

Records a grant of some lands and a house made by Gōpati-Nāyaka, a merchant, for the charity of feeding Brahmans.

Describes the exploits of a hero named Binnāṇḍi in rescuing the cattle of the village from the attacks of enemies.

Mentions the death of a warrior named Bīra while fighting the battle of Bayanād against thieves.

Contents and Remarks

Records a grant made for the services in some temple by Mallidēva's son Irungolādēva. The record refers to the Hoysala king Narasinghadēva and appears to state that Irungolādēva's wife was Śrīyādēvi and that either Irungola or more probably Śrīyādēvi was brought up under the protection of, or was a daughter of, Narasinghadēva.

See the previous inscription.

Records that Ballāla II marched against Murāri Kēśava Nārasinga encamped at Hadaḍeya Kuppa and ordered the van of the army to attack thee nemy. The warrior Chenna-kālama Sāhaṇi fought hard in the battle. Whether this warrior was a subordinate of the Kālachurya king Bijjala or of the Hoysala king Ballāla II cannot be determined.

Records the death of a warrior named Kūsa Rāmeya, on the occasion of the capture of the fort of Kuṟugōḍ by the Hoysala king Ballāla II.

Fragmentary record contains some verses in praise of a queen of the Hoysala king Ballāla II.

Records that the god Gopālādēvaru was set up at Bêlūr in that year by Anṇambhaṭṭa's son Dōrapa and that certain gaḍas made a grant of land named Kārabayaḷ for the god.

Describes the creation of a village called Bankihaḷḷi by five gaḍas who are also stated to have constructed a tank and a temple at the village, set up a stone oilmill for the services of the temple and granted some land for the god.

Records the construction of the narapada and mūḍaṇabhadra by Kāvādēvarasar.

Records the death as mahāsati of a woman named Bonmakka on the death of her husband Jaḍavāra Cheli Bayachiseṭṭi.

Copper plate record registering the gift of a village Bukkarājapura as an Agrahāra to certain Brahmans who helped in the construction of a dam across the river Banjehaḷḷa near Nilugallu. The Brahmans are said to have constructed the tank with their own funds at the instance of the officer Bommaṇṇa, younger brother of Kāmaṇa and son of Abbenāyaka. (Prince Bhūpati Voḍeyar, son of Bukka II, who issued the śāsana served also as Viceroy of Muḷbāgal, South Arcot, Tanjore, etc. during the reign of his grandfather Harihara II.) Why Bhūpati Voḍeyar who belonged to the elder branch did not succeed to the throne cannot be determined.

Records the gift of some lands at Bêlûr for the expenses of the worship of the god Râma, and of the feeding of the ascetics in the matt of the ascetic Surêndratîrtha of Bêlûr in place of a money grant of 4 varahas and 8 hapas made previously by the king Bukkarâya I. No ascetic of the name of Surêndra with a matt at Bêlûr and worshipping the god Râma as the principal deity is met with so far.

Copper plate record registering the gift of the village Kânṇapura to certain Brahmans free from all taxes and imposts by Bâchaṇṇa Voḍeyar, governor of Gôvâ and a subordinate of Harihara II. Bâchaṇṇa Voḍeyar called also Bhâskara, is said in the record to have been the ruler of the Konkaṇa and Chandragutti kingdoms seated on the throne of Gôvâ. He is spoken of as the successor of Mâdhava and Narahari in that post.

Copper plate record registering the gift of an agrahâra village called Chôlisattipalli, renamed Tryambakapura, situated in the Penugonḍapuri kingdom, Rodda province, Tumbekallusthala to certain Brahmans with Kriyâśakti-guru at their head by the king Dêvarâya II. The importance of the record lies in its containing the gôtra and sûtra of the royal preceptor Kriyâśakti, not found so far in the inscriptions and literary references relating to that guru.

Copper plate record registering the gift of three villages Chikkabbehalli with three hamlets, in the Nâgamangala kingdom, Halayunârahosahalli in the Channapatṇa kingdom and Vengenahalli in the Billagonḍanahalli kingdom to the ascetic of the Mâdhva sect, Vyâsatîrtha, disciple of Brahmanyatîrtha, by Kṛishṇarâya, king of Vijayanagar.

Records the grant of a village for the enactment of a marionette show of the Râmâyana story.

A fragmentary record registering the gift of some land for the god Tirumaladêva.

Registers the gift of the income from the santhe or fair at Mârkaṇḍêśvarapura belonging to Vakkalêri situated in Kôḷâlarâjya, made by Sitâpa Maluka Voḍeyar, agent of Dilâvara Khâna Voḍeyar, governor of Yemmenâd, belonging to Chêlûr chavadi for the merit of Dilâvara Khâna. The grant was made for the food offerings and illuminations in the temple of the god Mârkaṇḍêśvara at the village Dêvalâpura. The importance of the inscription lies in the fact that a grant was made for a Hindu temple by an agent of a Mussalman Officer named Dilâvara Khân for the merit of the latter.

Records the gift of the village Bichanahalli, situated in Sôgalavâḍipurasthala in Huradasîme, with certain hamlets forming them into an agrahâra named Dêvarâjapura, made by Dêvarâja Voḍeyar, king of Mysore.

A fragmentary record. Appears to refer to some king as over-lord with the titles, râjâdhirâja and râjaparamêśvara and to some subordinate of his, who is spoken of as the ruler of the throne of Mysore.
